ARMY CONSIDERS TRAINING PILOTS IN CIVILIAN SCHOOLS

Study Begun Looking to Use of Private Facilities to Create Reserve of Flyers for Emergency.

AVIATION R. O. T. C. POSSIBLE OUTCOME

War Department Says Departure From Centralized Plan 'Should Be Productive of Much Good.'

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Building,
WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The War Department began a study today to determine the extent to which existing civilian activities may be utilized by the army for preliminary training of pilots and air mechanics.

At present no decision has been reached, it was stated, as to whether the inquiry will include such non-military Government establishments as the Civilian Conservation Corps. The idea in mind is a possible extension to aviation of the Reserve Officers Training Corps system in high schools and colleges, the purpose of which until now has been confined to preparation of officers for ground branches, such as infantry, cavalry, artillery and engineers.

The program to be studied contemplates a radical departure from the army's present centralized method. All training for pilots is now conducted at the Air Corps Training Center at San Antonio, Tex. The schools for enlisted men are at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., and at the new Lowry Field, in Denver.

Reported Friction.
This announcement followed a dispute between President Roosevelt's declaration at a press conference Tuesday that he had not heard of any plan to train young civilians in aviation so they would be available for military service.

A spokesman for the War Department described as "evidently based on gossip" widespread reports of friction between President Roosevelt and the General Staff regarding aviation developments in the army. "These rumors are to be effect that the great expansion plan is primarily the President's, and that the General Staff had made the announcement of it was not made until it appeared in the newspapers."

At the same time, the spokesman laid stress on his declaration that the former goal of 2320 war planes by June 30, 1940, as recommended by the General Staff, was never in the eyes of the General Staff more than "an ideal figure," and "an irreducible minimum below which the national security would be imperiled."

Five-Year Program.
The figure of 2320 planes was stated, it was continued, in a direct statement, because the air program involved the replacement of all army planes with modern equipment, a large increase of percentage for ground installations, bases, airports, depots and posts. The statement was placed under a five-year plan, the statement added, because of "budgetary and development limitations." It proceeded:

"Military airplanes have tremendously developed in size and performance. Air tactics have been radically changed by war in Ethiopia, Spain and China. Strategic considerations have been modified by world events. All these factors relate to the number and size of planes suitable for our army. The matter has been under continuous study, more intensive than ever in the light of recent events. This is truly a case in which it is the interest of the country are to be safeguarded."

Questions Undecided.
The department's inquiry, according to the informant, has not yet reached the point of a decision as to whether students will be sent commercial aviation schools for primary training, directed by military National Guard or Reserve instructors. Under this plan, it reported, the schools would be for instruction time, and all other equipment, including planes, would be furnished by the Air Corps. It is admitted that the Air Corps Training Center in San Antonio is overcrowded. Under this plan the head of the statement declared:

"A careful study and inspection have been undertaken today to determine to what extent existing civilian activities may be utilized by the army for preliminary training of pilots and air mechanics—with a view to lessening military costs."

JAPAN INSISTS POWERS ACCEPT 'REALITIES IN EAST'

Foreign Minister Tells U. S. and British Envoys 'It May Be Necessary to Revise Open Door Policy in China.'

By the Associated Press.
TOKYO, Dec. 8.—Foreign Minister Hiroshi Arima was reported by Domei, the Japanese news agency, to have told the United States and British ambassadors today that "it may be necessary to revise the principles of equal opportunity and the open door in China."

Arima talked with Joseph C.
Grew, American envoy, and Sir Robert Leslie Cragie, British ambassador, in separate interviews designed to clarify Japan's position that her Chinese conquests have ushered in a "new order" in East Asia.

Arima insisted, Domei said, that there need not be any collisions between Japan and foreign powers over their interests in China if the latter would only "recognize realities in the Far East."

Domei said that the two ambassadors were expected to consult further with Rensu Sawada, Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs, on concrete issues on which their two governments already have protested to Tokyo.

The United States on Oct. 6 protested against several instances of alleged discrimination against American interests in Japanese-occupied parts of China. Japan replied Nov. 12 that "ideas and principles of the past" no longer applied to China's "new situation."

On Nov. 2 Japan announced that its conquests in China were to establish "a new order" which will insure permanent stability in East Asia. It said a great economic-political-cultural bloc would be formed of Japan, Manchoukuo and China.

Before today's conferences the authoritative Tokyo newspaper Asahi said Arima would discuss with the ambassadors abolition of extraterritoriality in China, the system under which nationals of the United States, Britain and other Powers enjoy special privileges and immunities.

John M. Tully, Chief Narcotic Inspector here, told reporters that James S. Lambert, 30-year-old salesman for a St. Louis firm, was charged, as one of the principal figures in the case, Federal agents began their investigation in May, 1937, sending an addit-informer and an agent and the latter's wife to Chillicothe, Mo., where Lambert made his headquarters.

As a result of the investigation
Lambert and the following osteopaths were arrested in the last several months: Dr. Claude E.
Todd, Williamstown; Dr. Gilbert H.
Galloway, Elberton; Dr. Cecil Prophet, Bethany; Dr. Ernest Simpson, Milan; Dr. Zack A. Barnes, King City; Dr. E. O. Holmes, Novelty; Dr. Earl W. Porter, Canton;
Dr. Addie Jett Porter, wife of Dr.
Earl Porter, and Dr. Grace L. Gray, Kahoka.

The informant reported to Tully last fall, after he had bought narcotics from Chillicothe peddlers, that Lambert had offered to sell him 1000 morphine tablets for $100, eliminating the middle man. The price of 1000 morphine tablets bought at wholesale for legitimate purposes is $10.25.

In the first sale the informant sent Lambert a postal money order. On Oct. 3 the informant introduced Lambert to a narcotic agent, who explained that he was a peddler "looking for some of that $100 morphine." The agent bought two 1000 tablet lots, paying $100 each for one, and sending Lambert a money order for the second. On Nov. 15 the agent met Lambert on the pretense of buying an additional supply, at $150 per 1000 tablets, and arrested the salesman.

Lambert Confessed, Agent Says.
Lambert, who was discharged by his employer and released on $5000 bond after a warrant was issued against him, confessed, Tully said, that he obtained narcotics from quantities from his firm on orders signed by Todd, Galloway, Prophet, Simpson and Barnes, osteopaths.
Each of the osteopaths was charged with issuing narcotic prescriptions outside their professional practice.

Holmes, Gray and the two Porters were charged in warrants with illegal sale of narcotics to the agent and the latter's wife. All of the osteopaths were released on $1000 bonds.

THOMAS FORTUNE RYAN ESTATE
INCREASES BY $10,000,000
Sales and Collections Responsible, Says Guardian for Heirs.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—A report filed in Surrogate's Court disclosed yesterday value of the estate left by the late Thomas Fortune Ryan, trading magnate, had increased by some $10,000,000 to a total of $37, 068,668.

This increase was accounted for by sales and collections.
The report was filed by Thomas I.
Scheridan, official guardian for the granddaughter, 10 great-grandsons and eight great-granddaughters of Ryan.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The 11-
story clubhouse of the National Republican Club will be sold tomorrow
to satisfy a bank debt and its president, John R. Davies, is glad because.

amounted to running a hotel, the club will be in a much better financial position and will be able to devote more time and money to political activity.

9 OSTEOPATHS, SALESMAN HELD IN NARCOTIC CASE

Placed Orders Through His Firm
Prescriptions Obtained From Practitioners in Several Small Towns in Missouri.

By the Associated Press.
AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 8.—Four members of the crew were injured, three of them seriously, when the Missouri Pacific's crack passenger train, the Sunshine Special, was derailed today at McNeill, 15 miles north of here.

The injured:
Engineer J. C. White, San Antonio.
Fireman J. K. Brown, San Antonio.

George Hyman, San Antonio, an express messenger.
J. D. Muckelroy, San Antonio.
White was believed the most seriously injured. The engine overturned and he was pinned in the wreckage.

Seven of the 12 coaches left the tracks and careened into the hills of the Austin White Lime Co.
Observers said it appeared the train ran into an open switch. The speeding locomotive ripped up nearly 200 yards of track before it came to a stop, its wheels spinning in the air.

All of the injured were taken to an Austin hospital.
Railroad men estimated it would be 24 hours before the smashed locomotive and derailed cars could be righted. None of the passenger coaches overturned. The baggage car, buckling from the force of the long train behind it, was badly damaged.

Conductor E. B. Choate of San Antonio was in the rear of the train when it left the rails and escaped injury. The diner, last coach to leave the tracks, possibly served as a brake to hold other coaches on the rails, observers said.
Engineer White's legs were pinned down by a metal bar beneath the locomotive and rescuers, fearful of using blow-torches, laboriously employed hacksaws to sever the metal. White directed the men's work.

Two workmen at the line kill narrowly escaped injury when a coach struck a freight car in which they were working. The freight car was nearly derailed.

The 17 passengers of the St.
Louis-bound train were taken by automobile to Palestine, Tex., and placed on a new train which was made up there.

REPUBLICAN CLUB BUILDING
TO BE SOLD FOR BANK DEBT
Head of Organization Glad It Will Be Relieved of 'Running a Hotel.'

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The 11-
story clubhouse of the National Republican Club will be sold tomorrow
to satisfy a bank debt and its president, John R. Davies, is glad because.

amounted to running a hotel, the
devote more time and money to
political activity.

Davies, a former Municipal Court Justice, said the club, which now leases the entire building from the present owner, the Library Square Realty Co., will rent only the first four floors after the sale, abandoning little-used hotel accommodations for its 1600 members.

Club members formed the Library Square Realty Co. when the building was erected in 1903. The company's debt amounts to $75,000, consisting mostly of obligations to bankers. Davies' improved financial condition would help it take an active part in the campaign of 1940.

ESTRANGED WIFE KILLS SELF
AND HER 14-YEAR-OLD SON
California, Coroner Says Notes Left Indicated Boy Approved Mother's Plan.

By the Associated Press.
SAN JOSE, Cal., Dec. 8.—A woman who said she could not face the holiday season separated from her husband, shot and killed her 14-year-old son and herself here today, apparently with the boy's consent, authorities reported.

Victims of the tragedy, Coroner
C. C. Spaulding said, were Mrs.
Peggy Mason, 38, and Dale Mason.
Notes found in the room told of Mrs. Mason's loneliness, Spaulding reported, and indicated the boy approved the death pact by expressing desire that some of his belongings be given to playmates. The husband, Wilker Mason, was believed to be in New Orleans.

MRS. ANNA HAHN EXECUTED FOR POISON MURDER

Cincinnati Woman Collapses in Death House and Is Carried to Electric Chair.

By the Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 8.—Mrs.
Anna Marie Hahn was put to death last night in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary for one of the four murders of which she was accused.

Her attorneys lost a last-minute appeal to the United States District Court and when her time came she slowly stood up and marched from her cell with one of her counsel and her three matrons.

Half fainting, Mrs. Hahn sobbed a prayer as the death march began. She wore blue cotton pajamas and a brown robe.

The procession took her past the cells of 11 men also sentenced to death. Each stood at attention as she passed.

"Good-by, Mrs. Hahn," they whispered.
"Good-by, boys and God bless you," she replied.

Mrs. Hahn, a 32-year-old German-born alien, was assisted into the execution chamber by her three matrons—Mrs. Rene Tipple, Mrs.
Joie O'Brien and Mrs. Esther Kleis, first women witnesses at an execution in Ohio.

Colleges at Chair.
"Oh, oh," she moaned, and collapsed as she neared the chair.
Guards seized her and thrust her, squirming, into the brown-varnished chair.

"No, no, no!" she implored. "Mr.
Woodard, Mr. Woodard, don't do this to me."
"I'm sorry, but we have to do it, Mrs. Hahn," the Warden said softly.
A guard held melting salts under her nose.

"Don't do it, please don't," she moaned. "My boy, think of my baby." She referred to her son, Oscar, 12.

"Can't anyone do something?"
she asked, looking at the seated witnesses as the guards fastened her legs and arms. "Isn't there anybody who will help me?"

She shook her head in despair and said, "Nobody's going to help me."
She Calls to Priest.
"Father, come close," she called to the Rev. John A. Sullivan, Catholic chaplain of the prison, as the black leather mask was placed over her face.

The priest took her hand and Warden Woodard stepped to the button which signals the three guards waiting at the switch.
"Be careful, Father, you'll be killed," she cautioned in a whisper, fearing the current would be applied as he held her hand.

"Our Father Who art in heaven," she began, "hallowed be Thy name.
Thy kingdom come."

GRAND JURY GETS 21ST WARD BALLOTS

It Will Recount Those in Precinct 43 Where Discrepancies Were Found.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—Eight American Newspaper Guild members were arrested after a mole today along the picket line at the Hearst Building, where the Guild is on strike against the Chicago Evening American and the morning Herald and Examiner.

Those arrested after the disturbance, which lasted about three minutes, were Harry Wohl, president of the Chicago Newspaper Guild, affiliated with the CIO American Newspaper Guild; Don Stevens, executive secretary of the Chicago Guild; his wife, Sada; Virginia
Gardner, a newspaper reporter;
Nate Aleksovsky, Herald and Examiner copyreader; Charles Cain, David Keniston and H. Richard Seiler, international representative of the American Newspaper Guild.

Witnesses said about 100 persons were on the picket line on the Wacker drive side of the building when truck drivers backed their trucks to the curb to load papers.
The drivers started through the massed line of pickets. Blows were struck with fists and lengths of rubber hose, but the witnesses said they could not identify the hostile workers.

The witnesses said 12 policemen, using their clubs freely, charged into the combatants. Four men were bleeding when order was restored.

No serious injuries were reported although Cain was treated by a police surgeon for head injuries.
No charges were preferred against any of those held.

The Guild issued a statement saying the truck drivers "attempted to crash the picket line wielding rubber hoses."

Police Lieut. William McCarthy said his men gave the pickets "every chance in the world to picket peacefully." He said that hereafter no picketing would be permitted on the Wacker drive side of the building. After the melee the pickets moved to the main entrance to the building on West Madison street.

Three circulation employees of the Herald and Examiner were arrested earlier and charged with assault and battery and disorderly conduct on the complaint of four men who said they were striking branch managers.

FOR DEATH OF YOUNG CHILDREN
One Convicted in Case of 5-Year-Old Stepdaughter, Another of Strangling Girl, 4.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—President Roosevelt invited advisers to the White House today to discuss prospects of getting a Government reorganization bill through the next Congress.

Reorganization legislation stirred up one of the hardest fights on Capitol Hill last year. The measure finally was defeated by a narrow margin in the House.

Those invited to the White House today are members of the committee that drafted a report on regrouping Government bureaus and agencies which was used as the basis for Roosevelt's recommendations to the last Congress.

The committee are Louis Brownlow, Luther Gulick and Charles E. Merriam.

ANTI-ITALIAN OUTBREAK IN PARIS HALTED BY POLICE

Thousands of Students Demonstrate Against Tunisia and Corsica Demands — 'Venice for France,' They Shout.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Dec. 8.—Thousands of students, demonstrating against Italian demands for Tunisia and Corsica, clashed with police today, while reports spread that Germany and Italy were uniting to back the demands.

French observers reported Fuehrer Hitler would call an Italian-German conference at Munich to determine the next move of the Rome-Berlin axis.

The conference, they said, was decided on after a reported demand by Premier Mussolini that Germany support Italy in her campaign for Tunisia and Corsica.

These reports, weakened in some quarters and strengthened in others, Premier Daladier's reported plan to use the international situation to obtain a favorable vote in Parliament.

Cries of "Venice for France." Cries of "Venice for France" and "Ethiopia for the Negroes" were raised by the students as they paraded before the pantheon and along Boulevard Saint Michel in the Latin Quarter of Paris.

At the corner of boulevards Saint Michel and Saint Germain the students hurled themselves against police lines and were thrown back by police reinforcements.

The students then assembled in front of a building where an Italian exposition is being held, but were dispersed.

President Calls Daladier.
The demonstrations, which chose others in various parts of France, came as Premier Daladier was called to Elysee Palace by President Lebrun for an unexpected consultation on the French-German war renunciation pact signed Tuesday and its possible bearing on the Italian Colonial claims.

The President's action was so unexpected that Daladier was forced to cancel a scheduled appearance before his Radical-Socialist party's parliamentary group.
Other groups met during the morning to arrange last-minute strategy before the opening of Parliament this afternoon, when Daladier's foreign policy was scheduled for a bitter attack.

Berlin by special train at 9:10 a. m.
Prominent among the members of the diplomatic colony who went to the Italian Embassy to see him was the Italian Ambassador, Raffaele Guariglia.

The German Foreign Minister chatted amiably with Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, a few minutes on the station platform and,
even after he entered the train, leaned out of the window for a final few words.

Massing of Troops Reported.
Reports from the Spanish frontier that Italian troops were concentrating in insurgent Spain within easy striking distance of France were circulated today.

These reports, which lacked official confirmation, said the asserted Italian troop movement had begun Nov. 22 and was still incomplete.

The reports originated mostly from travelers who had reached France over the Pyrenean Mountains along the frontier. Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco has closed the border between France and insurgent Spain.

These travelers said troop concentrations included motorized units and much artillery. One report said that more than 10,000 Italians were concentrated at Logrono, in Northern Catalonia.

Such troops could be for a new offensive against Spanish Government forces in Northern Catalonia.

8 NEWS GUILD PICKETS HELD IN CHICAGO CLASH

Demonstrators in Strike

ITALIANS CLASH WITH FRENCH IN STREETS OF TUNIS

Police Forced to Break Up Repeated Demonstrations — More Troops Sent to City in Tunisia.

VIGOROUS PROTEST MADE BY ITALY

Many Fascists Arrested, Public Buildings Patrolled — Red, White and Blue Ink Put on Consulate.

By the Associated Press. TUNIS, Tunisia, Dec. 8. — The French Government strengthened its armed patrols here today and the Italian Consul-General lodged a vigorous protest against continuing heavy reinforcements of mobile guards were ordered to Tunis from the neighboring French possession of Algeria.

This action was taken after repeated clashes between French and Italian demonstrators on Avenue Jules Ferry in the center of Tunis. French students fought Italians carrying signs hostile to France and shouting against the French Government. Several times the demonstrators, friendly to France, joined the demonstrations.

These developments followed a clash between police and hundreds of Italian citizens, many of whom were arrested when they attempted to demonstrate in support of the Italian consul in Tunis.

Among those arrested was Ubaldo Rey, head of the Italian war veterans in Tunis and a leader in the Italian community in Tunisia — totaling 94,289 at the last census.

Today's demonstrations began in the main thoroughfare of Tunis when groups of Frenchmen began collecting and shouting against the Italian campaign for slices of France's African and Mediterranean possessions. The French population of Tunisia is 1,080,000, extending the French empire.

No sooner had the French groups been broken up by police than the Italians began forming in processions, chanting the Fascist marching song, "Gloria alla patria."

Three hundred mounted guards were recalled from the interior and assigned to patrol duty in the outskirts of the capital.

The military territory on the Southern Tunisia frontier, bordering Italian Libya, remained closed to all except the French military — as it normally is. Vague rumors of troop movements in the area — about 500 miles from Tunis — could not be confirmed.

Police squads guarded public buildings, including the Italian Consulate, which was attacked last night by Frenchmen who smashed windows and smeared the white walls with red and blue ink to make the hues of the tricolor.

Travelers from Libya, who reported both sides of the frontier were guarded by normal garrisons, said there were several anti-Jewish demonstrations in Tripoli last night by the Italian population.

BUND CHIEF ATTENDS LUNCH GIVEN FOR CONGRESSMAN DIES

Head of Inquiry Into Un-American Activities Revises Speech on Reds to Include Nazis.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Dec. 8. — Fritz Kuhn, leader of the German-American Bund, an organization called pro-Nazi by its critics, appeared today at a luncheon in honor of Representative Martin Dies (Tex.), Texas chairman of the House committee which has been investigating un-American activities.

Kuhn and his party of eight came as guests of James Wheeler Hill, national secretary of the Bund, whose name was on the printed guest list.

The luncheon was given by the New York State Economic Council at the Hotel Biltmore.

Dies had planned to confine his speech principally to Communism but after Kuhn's arrival he said he would expand his remarks to include Nazi activities in this country.

Dies, who sometimes ago denied Kuhn's request to appear before the committee, explained that he had so acted because the Bund leader had not made his offer "with clean hands."

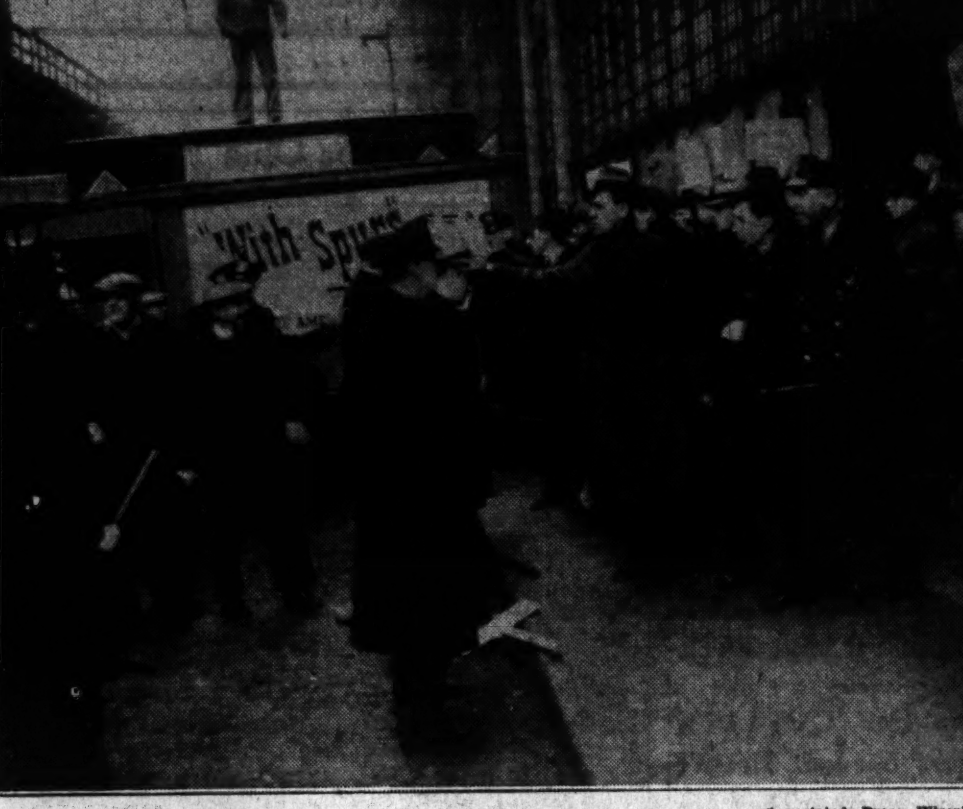

Kuhn, remarking that he was a "guest," said he had attended to hear what Dies has to say.

Merwin K. Hart, president of the Economic Council, said in reply to inquiries that the luncheon was public and that anyone could attend. There were about 750 guests.

PARIS POLICE HALT DEMONSTRATIONS AGAINST ITALY

Spain but the French were concerned by reports of Italian troops so close to the French border. As Von Ribbentrop ended his visit, which the political writer Fernand wrote:

"Germany conspires against the French empire at the very moment when she promises to respect her continental frontiers." The Premier's associates said he had staked the life of his government on the national defense issue, aware that his slight majority in the Chamber would make him a "prisoner" of his own Radical-Socialist party.

Although even pro-Government observers gave Daladier little more than a 30-vote majority just before the Chamber of Deputies convened, they said the international situation might increase his support.

Some Press Comment. On the other hand, the opposition press said that the opposition to the government was rendered at Munich and showed the dictators its blindness and weakness qualified to stop the totalitarian states in North Africa.

Madame Genevieve Tabouis, writing in Premier Daladier's newspaper L'Ouvre, said the Italian-German conference at Munich would include Field Marshal Hermann Goering, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, Von Ribbentrop, Italian Ambassador Bernardo D. Attolico and representatives of both the German and Italian general staffs.

Perkins declared Von Ribbentrop came to Paris "to weaken the bonds which tie us to Britain, the United States and our associates in Eastern Europe."

"These good words of the past," he said, "were only designed to isolate us and stretch us out on a table where chloroform will be administered."

Support at Home. Daladier found plenty of support both at home and in the colonies for his defense of France's empire. Many believed that Tunisia and Corsica demands were the opening of a campaign for other demands that would get official Italian sanction.

The demands so far have been voiced by the press and by demonstrations, which brought a protest from Paris. Counter-demonstrations have followed in France and by French sympathizers in Tunisia and Corsica.

Students of Toulouse University marched through the streets of Toulouse yesterday carrying huge placards labeled "We Want Sardinia, Sicily and Tripoli!" — Italian possessions.

At Tunis, Tunisia, 1000 railroad workers marched from the Central Station to the nearby Italian Consulate and smeared the building with red, white and blue — the colors of France.

Daladier appeared to have been strengthened by strike developments of the last 24 hours.

The liner Paris sailed for New York from Cherbourg with naval officers and men filling out the strike-riddled crew. Aboard were 150 American volunteers returning home from the Spanish war.

Crews of the liner Cuba and the Port of France, which arrived at Le Havre yesterday, voted overwhelmingly against a strike. Several vessels of smaller lines left port during the day, although the crews of the Normandie, the Paris and other French Line ships remained on strike.

The strike of metal workers in the North collapsed completely. Even in the Communist areas of the industrial suburbs strikes

HUSBAND DEFENDS ALIMONY SUIT WITH OWN BOOKKEEPING

Bills Wife for Share in Food, Chores; Judge Impressed but Not Enough.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Dec. 8. — When Casey Shelton added up his wife's share of the household expenses he figured it just about wiped out his $153 arrearage in temporary alimony payments.

Shelton, who is 38 years old, lives in the same house with his estranged wife, Minnette, and their daughter, Nancy, 6.

The Sheltons, buying their own food separately, continued to dine at the same table even after Mrs. Shelton filed suit for divorce.

In Circuit Court yesterday Shelton gave an accounting of the household expenses he had assessed against his wife. They included the butter, eggs, coffee, sugar and other food of his which she took when she ran short.

There was no objection when she ate one of his apples one day, nor when she drank some milk. But it all went into the account book. Shelton mowed the lawn a job which he estimated was worth $3, so he put $150 down as Mrs. Shelton's share. He billed her for $1 for fixing the awning.

Judge Philip J. Finnegan was impressed with the novelty of Shelton's defense but not enough to accept it. He ordered Shelton to pay up the arrearage — all of it.

EDEN MAY ARRIVE LATE FOR TALK BECAUSE OF GALE

Outter to Be Sent to Meet Aquitania If Necessary; Due to Land Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Dec. 8. — A gale at sea may make Anthony Eden late for his address tomorrow night before the National Association of Manufacturers.

The former British Foreign Secretary was aboard the liner Aquitania, delayed by heavy seas. Officials said a cutter would be sent down the bay to pick up Eden if necessary, although they expected the ship to dock in time.

Eden is scheduled to speak at 10:15 p. m. (9:15 St. Louis time) on "Democracy and the Modern World." It will be broadcast nationally by the three major networks.

The diplomat, expected to visit President Roosevelt and Mayor La Guardia before returning to England Monday.

were drifting back to their jobs if their employers called them. Through these internal and external events Daladier felt his political strength was great enough to refuse flatly to deal with the Communist and Socialist parties.

Both left-wing parties have demanded "that the Premier's decree laws, whose tax burdens and lengthening of working hours started the one-day general strike, be tempered."

But, through Finance Minister Paul Reynaud, who spoke early this morning before the Chamber of Deputies Finance Committee, the Government refused to change the laws.

The committee, after hearing Reynaud, approved the budgets of the various Ministries and finally adjourned at 2:45 a. m.

WARRANT FOR DODD AFTER AUTO HITS GIRL

Ex-Ambassador Says He Continued on, Unaware His Car Had Injured Child.

By the Associated Press. HANOVER COURTHOUSE, Va. Dec. 8. — A warrant was sworn out here today against William E. Dodd, former Ambassador to Germany, in connection with an accident to a Negro child near here Monday.

State Police Trooper Carlisle Johnson left immediately for Round Hill, Va., Dodd's home, to execute the warrant.

Dodd, speaking by telephone from his home, said the child ran directly into the path of his automobile, that he swerved the car and then continued on his way because he thought the child had escaped injury.

The child, Gloria Grimes, 4 years old, was reported to be in a serious condition in a hospital at Richmond.

Dodd said the girl ran into the road about 30 feet in front of his car, and that he was traveling about 45 miles an hour.

"I put on the brakes, turned the car, and because I did not know the child had escaped," he said.

Dodd said he had sent money to the child's family. Hospital attaches said the girl had suffered cerebral concussion, a fracture of the skull and lacerations.

The warrant charged that "William E. Dodd Sr., on information received did unlawfully and feloniously operate a certain motor vehicle bearing Virginia license No. 287-219 on the State highways in a careless and reckless manner and strike one Gloria Grimes causing injuries and did fail to stop and take account of said accident."

The warrant also charged that Dodd, by failing to stop and take account of the accident, represented the United States in Germany from 1933 to 1937.

Pronounced Dead. A metallic-smoking smoke drifted across the small, white-lit room. Three doctors examined her and pronounced her dead at 8:13 p. m. She was the first woman to be electrocuted in Ohio.

Veterans of many executions said this was one of the ghastliest of the 214 conducted in the State's 104-year-old penitentiary.

"I never saw anyone protest so against death," said Warden Woodard.

Father Sullivan conducted brief, private funeral services at a mortuary today, and Mrs. Hahn's body was buried in Mount Calvary Cemetery here.

Mrs. Hahn's son, Oscar, attempted to visit her at the last moment before she was taken to the execution room, but was refused permission. He had been with her most of the day. He went to the prison chapel and remained there during the execution.

Mrs. Hahn fell into a hysterical fit of sobbing after she parted about 5 p. m. with her son. Asked if Mrs. Hahn maintained innocence until the last, Joseph Hoodin, her lawyer replied: "I can't answer that. I've got certain papers which she wrote, indicating he had not read the papers."

Mrs. Hahn's collapse as she walked to the chair was a surprise to those who witnessed her display of steel nerves at her trial.

The specific crime for which Mrs. Hahn was put to death was the poisoning of Jacob Wagner, 78, gardener, in Cincinnati's German settlement.

Prosecutors accused her of killing three other elderly Germans and crippling another in a "murder for profit" scheme to gain the men's small holdings, poisoning them and acting as their nurse during illnesses. The State said she wanted their money to recoup horse-race betting losses.

In addition to the death of Wagner, evidence was introduced at the trial concerning the deaths of George Obendorfer, 67; Albert Palmer, 72; and George Geissman, 67, as well as the illness of George Heis.

Mrs. Hahn was indicted in Wagner's and Geissman's deaths Aug. 15, 1937, convicted of Wagner's murder Nov. 6, 1937, and entered Ohio penitentiary a year ago Dec. 1.

All Ohio courts and the United States Supreme Court turned down her appeals for a new trial. Gov. Martin L. Davey declined to intervene, termed Mrs. Hahn a "cold-blooded" killer.

Scientists' findings pointed the way for conviction. The jury of 11 women and one man, after a month's trial, said a poison-saturated pocketbook taken from Mrs. Hahn the day of her arrest clinched their belief in her guilt.

A toxicologist testified he found poison crystals in the purse. He said the lining was saturated with the poison, commonly used to exterminate rats. A chemist said enough poison to kill 17 persons was detected in remnants of a supper found in Geissman's attic room.

A Denver chemist testified Obendorfer died of the same metallic poison in Colorado Springs, and the State showed Obendorfer and Mrs. Hahn had traveled together to the mountain resort.

Sidney Brant, one of the attorneys who tried vainly until an hour before Mrs. Hahn's death to save her by an appeal to the Federal court, finally was the one to summon her for the death march. In their appeal to the Federal court

Fascist Press Talks of 'Defense' In Tunisia Against French Attacks

Article Attributed to Mussolini Thrusts at Britain and France in Imaginary Chat Between Benes and Haile Selassie.

By the Associated Press. ROME, Dec. 8. — The Fascist press today coupled reports of an Italian protest against anti-Italian violence in Tunisia with a warning that Italians in that French protectorate "would take measures of legitimate defense" if violent demonstrations against them continued.

Dispatches from Tunis said the Italian Consul-General there had protested to the French Resident-General against attacks on Italians said to have occurred during demonstrations Sunday countering the Italian agitation for French territory.

(In Paris the Foreign Office said an exchange of letters had taken place between the Italian Consul-General and the French Resident-General in relation to the demonstrations.)

The Italian Foreign Office bulletin, "Informazione Diplomatica," expressed approval of the Franco-German "Good Neighbor" declaration of Tuesday, but it also said that "certain French circles still adhered to 'the spirit of Versailles.'"

No Weakening of Axis. "In responsible Roman circles," the Foreign Office statement said, "the signature of the Franco-German declaration at Paris has been received with full comprehension of the causes which inspired it and with open approval, inasmuch as it brings a considerable clarification to relations between the two countries."

Informazione Diplomatica added the accord, signed in Paris by French Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet and German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, occasioned no surprise in Italy because von Ribbentrop had communicated its text to Premier Mussolini at the end of October.

"It does considered that a declaration such as the one signed at Paris would serve the cause of peace," the bulletin said.

It added that Italy viewed the improvement in relations between France and Germany with the same favor that Germany had accorded a previous British-Italian friendship agreement.

"It is, however, with regret," the statement continued, "that responsible Roman circles are constrained to observe that Bonnet's policy is encountering violent hostility in too many French quarters which are unable to free themselves from the spirit of Versailles and would—which is absurd—lead history back to it (the post-war Versailles treaty)."

Informazione Diplomatica concluded that any belief that the Paris agreement might weaken the Rome-Berlin axis was an "illusion" which could arise "only in the brain of those who do not yet know the nature, style and development of the policies of the axis."

In Rome newspapers published reports of "disgraceful violence" at the Italian consulate in Tunis Sunday. One account said "practically all the first floor windows were broken."

In Mussolini's Paper. The Italian campaign for acquisition of Tunisia and other French territories took on a more official aspect as Premier Mussolini's own newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, of Milan, offered France a picture of those who resist the Fascist-Nazi advance.

This was an article giving an imaginary conversation between the former Emperor of Ethiopia and former President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia. It was unsigned, but informed persons expressed the opinion that Mussolini himself had written it. All other newspapers advertised the article as a customary item of the dictator contributes something to his newspaper.

Benes was quoted as saying: "If I had observed my instincts I would have negotiated with Henlein (Konrad Henlein, Sudeten German leader) and would have finished his career in the hands of the Gestapo of Karlsruhe. It would have saved the state and I still would be in the presidential palace at Prague."

The Negus was made to say: "After the defeat of Malchic, in which all my forces were pitted without results... I decided to sue for peace. . . . Some day when I am reduced to extreme misery I shall appeal to the magnanimity of Mussolini and perhaps it will not be in vain."

Both then explained how British and French promises of aid had made them decide on resistance against their better judgment.

U. S. ENVOY IN CHINA CALLED HOME FOR CONSULTATION

Ambassador Johnson Will Arrive About Jan. 15; He Will Report to Roosevelt.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. — Acting Secretary of State Welles announced today that Nelson T. Johnson, United States Ambassador to China, had been summoned home for consultation with President Roosevelt and other officials here.

Johnson will arrive about mid-January after a motor, airplane and steamer trip by way of London. He has advised the Chinese Foreign Office that he will be away only a brief time.

Welles said that inasmuch as Johnson had not been back to this country for four years it seemed desirable to call him home to report personally to the President.

It was indicated the suggestion came from the White House.

The announcement followed reports from Tokyo that Foreign Minister Arata had requested Japan's view of its special privileges in China in opposition to the open door policy.

Welles also announced that Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy had advanced his sailing date and will leave London Saturday for New York. He is expected to report here immediately.

The two weeks' presidential conferences with Ambassador William Phillips of Rome, Hugh H. Wilson of Berlin and William C. Bullitt of Paris now have terminated, it was said. Wilson will leave tonight for Florida on a month's vacation. Phillips will sail for Rome Dec. 14 and Bullitt plans to embark Jan. 7 for Paris.

AIRLINER FORCED DOWN IN SEA; 10 LOSE LIVES

Two Occupants of Japanese Plane Rescued by Steamer Near Okinawa Island.

By the Associated Press. TOKYO, Dec. 8. — Ten of the 13 persons aboard a Japanese airliner were given up for lost today after the plane had been forced down in shark-infested waters near Okinawa Island, midway between Formosa and Kyushu, southernmost land of Japan proper.

The steamer Miyake Maru reported that it had found the wreckage of the plane, rescued two survivors and picked up two bodies. Authorities announced later that search for the others might have been abandoned. Airplane and ship had participated in the hunt.

The plane carried eight passengers and a crew of four, all Japanese.

An official report said the airliner developed engine trouble shortly after leaving Formosa, but continued with one motor in an effort to reach Okinawa.

HITLER, DERATED BY FATHER OF VON RATH, 'PALE WITH RAGE'

Refused to Give Funeral Oration Because Victim's Parent Wanted to Talk of Revenge.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Dec. 8. — The New York Neue Volkszeitung, Social Democratic weekly newspaper, said today Adolf Hitler "turned pale with rage" and refused to deliver the funeral oration for Ernst vom Rath, assassinated Nazi official, Nov. 17, because the father berated Hitler for speaking of vengeance as they stood at the youth's bedside.

The newspaper said Hitler, bled as a speaker at the funeral in Düsseldorf, met the father mourning at the bier.

Hitler tried to console the elder von Rath, the newspaper said, and told him that the whole German nation would avenge the son's murder at the hands of a Jewish youth. The father replied that he did not want any talk of revenge over his son's grave and that the assassin had been driven to his act by despair over Nazi-persecuted relatives, the newspaper said.

Treupen, the newspaper added, the Fuehrer turned pale with rage and stalked away, ordering Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop to make the oration in his place.

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish Frontier), Dec. 8.—Reports from both insurgent and Government Spain indicated today that Generalissimo Francisco Franco was preparing for a new offensive on the eastern civil war front.

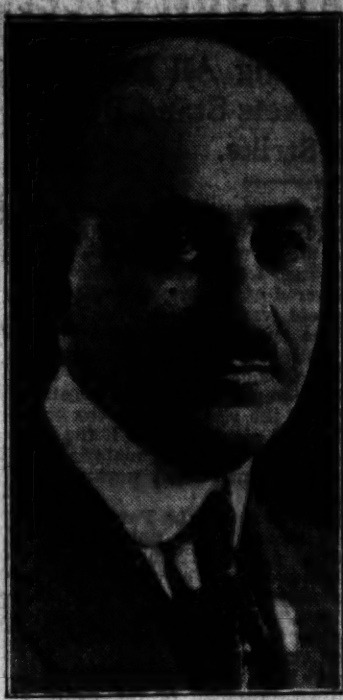

As they had done before launching previous drives, insurgent authorities closed the French frontier to prevent leakage of their plans. It was still possible to enter insurgent territory, but no one was allowed to leave.

Barcelona advised the Government secret service had reported large concentrations of insurgent troops behind the Ebro front, while roads leading to the battle line were covered with troops and ammunition convoys.

Man, Apparently Transient, Thought to Be Victim of Fall.

The body of a man about 70 years old, apparently a transient, was found under a Missouri Pacific Railroad trestle yesterday at Crescent, St. Louis County. A leg was broken and police said he apparently had fallen from the trestle. The body was decomposed.

The man, 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighed about 150 pounds. He wore a gray overcoat, gray suit, blue work shirt and black shoes. His hat bore the name of a St. Louis firm. A pair of glasses and $5 were found in pockets of the clothing.

THOMAS N. KARRAKER KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Former President of Old
St. Louis National Bank
Loses Life.

Thomas N. Karraker, a bond salesman and former president of the old St. Louis National Bank, was killed late yesterday when his automobile crashed into the rear of a large truck trader on Illinois Highway No. 67, about a mile east of Freeburg. He was 63 years old and resided at 8799 McPherson avenue.

He was employed by the investment firm of Friedman, Breckman, Smith, and apparently was returning home after calling on banks in his territory in Western Illinois. Deputy Coroner O. G. Schneidewind of St. Clair County said extensive damage to Karraker's automobile indicated he was driving at a high rate of speed.

Garfield Nowlin, driver of the truck and trailer, which was loaded with 10 tons of coal, told Schneidewind he felt only a slight jar when Karraker's automobile struck the trailer. The front end of the car was wedged under the trailer. The Deputy Coroner, who said Karraker died of a skull fracture, returned a verdict of accident. Karraker, formerly associated with a bank at Mounds, Ill., moved to St. Louis about 20 years ago. He was president of the St. Louis National when it closed in January, 1933. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Antonette Karraker, and daughter, Miss Sarah Karraker, a student at Washington University.

19 REPORTED KILLED IN PHILIPPINE TYPHOON

Storm Does Heavy Damage in Provinces Southeast of Manila.

By the Associated Press.
MANILA, Dec. 8.—A typhoon swept over several provinces southeast of Manila today, leaving thousands homeless, causing floods over a wide area, and disrupting communications. Meager reports listed 19 dead.

The storm passed south of Manila, hit Northern Mindoro Island and swept into the China Sea. All regions over which it passed reported heavy damage to private and public properties, and to crops. Sorsogon, Albay and Camarines Sur provinces were hardest hit. Masbate, Romblon, Marinduque, Leyte, Samar and South Tamaras provinces also suffered damage. Communication lines in 15 provinces were put out of service.

At the center of the typhoon passed over the Sorsogon region of Southern Luzon Island, one of the lowest barometric readings in the history of the Philippines—29.40—was registered. Winds reached a velocity of more than 75 miles an hour.

Eighteen dead were reported on Samar Island and one in Camarines Sur province.

At Legaspi two bridge boats worth $100,000 sank in the harbor. Red Cross and Government relief agencies quickly set about providing aid for the injured and homeless.

Earlier warning of the approaching storm caused abandonment of first attempts to raise the German Condor multi-colored plane from Manila Bay, where it made a forced landing Monday.

Salvagers reported the plane threatened to break when they tried to lift it by means of a derrick from shallow water 200 feet offshore. Sand and water added to the plane's normal weight of 10 tons.

The salvagers said they planned to resume operations. The plane, returning to Berlin from Tokyo, where it had flown on a good-will trip, landed in the bay when three of its four motors failed. The five crewmen and one passenger were rescued uninjured. Alfred Henke, flight commander, said a broken fuel line caused the trouble.

WOMAN ARRESTED, ACCUSED OF INTERCEPTING A LETTER

Postal Inspector Says Envelope Contained Bill of Goods She Bought on Another's Account.

Mrs. Nora Hoyer, 55 years old, was arrested yesterday at her home, 4231 Grace avenue, on a Federal warrant charging her with intercepting a letter. She pleaded not guilty when arraigned before United States Commissioner John A. Burke and was released on $1000 bond for appearance Jan. 11 for preliminary hearing.

The warrant charged Mrs. Hoyer took a letter addressed to Mrs. W. M. Kiefaber from a mail carrier Tuesday "with intent to intercept and obstruct correspondence." Post-office Inspector Fred R. Hayer said Mrs. Kiefaber formerly lived at a rooming house conducted by Mrs. Hoyer on Halstead avenue but now was in Chicago.

Mayer said Mrs. Hoyer, knowing Mrs. Kiefaber had a charge account at a downtown department store, had bought $231 worth of goods on the account. It was a letter containing a statement of the account and a request for payment that was the basis of the warrant. Mrs. Hoyer contended she was authorized to make purchases on Mrs. Kiefaber's account.

SALE OF SEATS TOMORROW FOR CHRISTMAS FUND REVUE

Cast for the 20 Scenes Includes 150 City Employees as Well as Professional Actors.

Reserved seats for a radio and stage show which will be held Dec. 19 in the Municipal Auditorium Convention Hall to raise funds for the Mayor's annual Christmas dinner for the poor will go on sale tomorrow at the Auditorium box office.

The show, under auspices of the Public Employer's Welfare Association, will be a musical revue in 20 scenes. Revenue from the sale of tickets yearly feeds about 50,000 persons on Christmas day. Mayor Dickmann is general chairman of the Dinner Committee.

The cast this year will include 150 City Hall employees, a chorus including Municipal Opera chorus members, amateur actors, and professional performers from local hotels and radio stations.

FATHER DEMPSEY'S CHARITIES REPORT ON YEAR'S ACTIVITIES

708,514 Free Meals Given to Men and Women, 15,857 to Children;
$30,000 Families Aided.

A total of 708,514 free meals and $1,155 free lodgings have been given to needy men and women during the last year by Father Dempsey's Charities. It is stated in a report being sent today to prospective contributors, asking for funds to support the organization in 1939.

The report also says that 15,857 free meals have been given to children, and 30,000 needy families have been aided during the last year. An average of 49 children a day have been cared for in the Day Nursery.

The Rev. James P. Johnston has been director of the charities since the death of the Rev. Timothy Dempsey in 1936. Samuel W. Fordyce is chairman of the fund campaign committee.

PROBATIONARY POLICEMAN SEIZES OIL STATION BURGLAR

Negro Is Caught in Act of Opening
Cash Register at 4301 Washington.

Probationary Patrolman Robert B. Evans paused on his beat early today to investigate a shadow moving in a filling station at 4301 Washington boulevard and caught a Negro in the act of opening the cash register.

The burglar, who said he was Arthur Flynn, a former convict, had taken $4 and some cigarettes from a vending machine in the filling station before Evans arrived. Police said Flynn had served a term at Alton Intermediate Reformatory and recently was released from the Workhouse, where he had served a sentence for robbery.

180 AMERICAN FIGHTERS
LEAVE SPAIN ON WAY HOME

Men Cross Into France, Where They Are Given Cigarettes and a Hot Breakfast.

By the Associated Press.
LA TOUR DE CAROL, France, (at the Spanish Frontier), Dec. 8.—A contingent of 180 American volunteers in the Spanish Government's international brigade left Spain today for the United States. The men, checked out by the League of Nations Control Commission, mostly from New York, Chicago, Cleveland and San Francisco. They were given three packages of cigarettes each and a hot breakfast when they arrived at this little border town. The Americans immediately pooled their cigarettes to send 75 packages back into Spain—one for each of their comrades who are still waiting to leave. There were only two wounded men among the group.

The journey to the United States was to be resumed today, by way of Cherbourg or Le Havre. Last Friday, 323 American fighters passed through this town bound for home.

LACLEDE STOOD STILL, WITNESS
TELLS INQUIRERS

Passed Through Stormy Period From 1925 on, Hans Vittinghoff Testifies at State Hearing.

By ROY F. CARROLL.
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 8.—"What's wrong with the Laclede Gas Light Co?" Attorney James A. Linton, representing the Missouri Public Service Commission, asked an expert witness today at the commission's inquiry into the natural gas problem in St. Louis.

"Why can't it (Laclede) sell cheaper gas?" the questioner continued. "Why can't it accept the proposed price of the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation?"

The witness, Hans Vittinghoff, an engineer for Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation of New York, replied:

"Laclede has had for many years one of the best reputations in the gas world. It had relatively low rates and excellent management. But it passed through a stormy period from 1925 on.

"What happened to the company, I don't know. It certainly stood still. But I have great faith in the present management."

The period to which the witness referred as "stormy" was that of the Munroe control, and control of Laclede by Harley L. Clarke's holding company, Utilities Power & Light Corporation, bought control of Laclede in 1927 from Charles A. Munroe's group, who had held it since 1924. Asked about Munroe, the witness said: "I don't recall that he was so very unpopular."

Vittinghoff testified late yesterday that operation by Laclede under prices at which the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation offered to supply it with natural gas would not be "attractive" to Laclede.

A report by Stone & Webster on its survey of the gas situation in St. Louis was one of the principal supports for the position taken by the Laclede company in informing the commission last Monday that it could not make a change-over from mixed gas sales to straight natural under the pipe line's price proposal, because the offer would not enable the lowering of the present gas rates in St. Louis.

Objections to Proposal.

Vittinghoff, in testifying the proposal would not be to the advantage of Laclede, said a rate must fulfill two functions: first, that of inducing the customer to purchase gas, and second, it must give the company a return on its investment.

"A rate that does not meet both requirements is not a proper rate," Vittinghoff said.

He said Laclede had suffered more than gas companies in some other cities, in the decline of residential use of gas, due to lessened purchasing power of many of its customers. He said the company served more lower middle-income customers in St. Louis than the average in large cities, because the bulk of the upper middle-income customers resided in St. Louis County, although employed or having business in the city. The county is served by another company, the St. Louis County Gas Co.

Vittinghoff said Laclede's problem in marketing gas in St. Louis had been complicated through pre-empting of a considerable part of the large industrial business by the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation, which serves several large gas users in St. Louis with natural gas direct from its pipe line.

After Vittinghoff had declined to give an opinion as to the financial condition or financial structure of Laclede, the Commission's counsel asked him if it would be possible for any company, properly financed and considering existing gas market conditions in St. Louis, to accept the price proposal of the pipe line company and serve straight natural gas to all users in the city. The witness declined to express an opinion.

Rate Not "Promotional."

Reverting to the rate structure, Vittinghoff testified, he did not think the existing rate schedule of Laclede would materially increase the consumption of gas. Various forecasts offered in evidence in the hearings, by different engineers, all have involved the theory that Laclede must materially increase its business in St. Louis to improve its situation, either under the present mixed gas operation or in a changeover to straight natural gas.

The rate for domestic users, he said, was not sufficiently promotional, and "does not offer a reward to the domestic user for an increase in consumption."

Vittinghoff declared Laclede was more heavily taxed than most utility companies, stating it paid taxes amounting to 17 per cent of its gross income. Taxes for a test income period of 12 months ending last Oct. 31, prepared by the company, are placed at $1,147,460 for the year.

The witness expressed a hope the company "might get some relief" from its tax load, but did not explain how this would be effected, when Linton remarked that the trend of taxation for utilities was upward, rather than down.

Asked about Clarke and Munroe, Harold C. Hanke, Associate City Counselor, asked Vittinghoff as to the nature of the "stormy" conditions which, as he had stated, Laclede encountered. The witness replied:

"I saw by the papers that you

RUSSIAN PRINCE'S COMMISSAR ROLE IN SHOW IRKS EXILES

So Alexis Obolensky Resigns as President of Nobility Association.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Prince Alexis Obolensky has resigned as president of the Russian Nobility Association because some members objected to his playing the role of a Soviet Commissar in a Broadway musical comedy.

The Prince, a court figure in the days of the Czar, said he had resigned rather than cause friction with older called Russians in the organization who "still have fresh wounds in their hearts against the Soviet Government."

"If an actor plays the part of a murderer, that doesn't make him one, does it?" he asked. "Certainly not. I took the part simply because I wanted to work."

Princess Obolensky, who manages a dress shop here, said she shared her husband's views.

"In old Russia, of course, he didn't work," she explained. "But times have changed, and everybody has to earn a living. It's better to work than to be idle."

The Prince, tall, white-haired and regal in bearing, plays a small part in "Leave It to Me."

He is saved from death when Victor Moore, portraying the American Ambassador, accidentally shoots a lunatic who pulls a pistol on the commissar.

Munroe's group, who had held it since 1924. Asked about Munroe, the witness said: "I don't recall that he was so very unpopular."

NEW NAZI ANTI-JEWISH MOVE TO HIT MARRIAGE

Under It Non-Jews Refusing Divorce, Will Be Rated as Members of Oppressed Race.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, Dec. 8.—Foreign diplomatic quarters were advised today that the next Nazi anti-Semitic legislation would decree that existing marriages between Jews and non-Jews either must be dissolved or the Gentile partner would be declared Jewish.

In other words, if the non-Jewish wife of a Berlin Jew declares she will stay with her husband, she must share his life in Berlin's shabby, squalid ghetto street. As this would become Jewish from the moment that she declared herself unwilling to accept divorce, these sources said, presumably she would not be allowed to attend a Christian church. Pastors or priests will not be permitted to conduct services in ghetto districts, as Nazis oppose Christian missionary work.

In many cases non-Jews married to Jews hold title to such possessions as family homes. Unless such non-Jews agree to divorce, it was said, property in their name would fall under the stringent Economic Ministry decrees which virtually forbid Jews to own real property.

The United States Embassy still is without an answer to its representations concerning the possible effect on American Jews in Germany of the new decrees issued by Economics Minister Walther Funk.

Officials said, however, that probably not a dozen cases of resident American Jews would come up. They said the only way the Embassy would hear about non-resident American Jews would be through complaints either to the Embassy or Consulate or to the State Department in Washington. So far there have been no such complaints.

UNDERPASS BASIS OF $50,000
SUIT AGAINST STATE BOARD

Highway Commission Charged With Damaging Property of Holckamp Lumber Co.

Suit for $50,000 was filed in Circuit Court at Clayton today by the Holckamp Lumber Co. Afternoon against the Missouri State Highway Commission. The company says it was damaged by the building of the underpass at Gravois road and the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad tracks, in front of its property.

The petition alleges that the underpass, completed a year ago, shuts off the entrance to the lumber yard from Gravois road, causing a large loss of business and depreciation of value of the property. The company purchased the property and made improvements on it at a cost of $100,000, the petition states, and in August, 1930, donated it to the commission as a 10-foot strip along the entire length of the property with the understanding that the highway would be widened at the existing grade.

FORMER AUSTRIAN OFFICIAL
EXPULSED FROM NAZI PARTY

Announcement Says He Was Involved in Corruption in Connection With Bakery.

VIENNA, Dec. 8.—Joseph Buerckel, Adolf Hitler's deputy in Austria, has expelled Franz Winkler, former Austrian Vice-Chancellor, from the Nazi party, an official communique published in this morning's papers announced.

The communique said the disciplinary action was taken because Winkler was involved in corruption in connection with the "Anker bread factory," Austria's biggest bread manufacturers.

Max Fuchser, director of the factory, was arrested a few days ago and expelled from the party.

Winkler, Vice-Chancellor under Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, who was killed in an attempted Nazi push in 1934, was obliged to resign in the spring of 1934 because of his nationalist sympathies. In June, 1934, he emigrated to Germany.

NIEVES STOP TRAIN AND PART OF CARGO OF CIGARETTES

Truck Backed Up to Car After Hose Is Disconnected at Isolated Crossing.

By the Associated Press.
JERSEY CITY, N. J., Dec. 8.—A gang of thieves brought a Pennsylvania railroad freight train to an unscheduled stop early today and then stole part of a carload of cigarettes.

Pennsylvania railroad police Jersey City said that the gang connected an air hose at an isolated railroad crossing where a truck was waiting. The truck backed up to a freight car, said, and the work of loading with cigarettes started.

Thieves were seen by train members as they fled before they piled their attempted haul.

Wholesalers estimated that entire freight car of cigarettes would be valued at approximately $80,000.

STATE DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE REPORT

Treasurer Lists $63,922 in Donations, $43,994 in Expenses.

The Democratic State Committee received contributions totaling $63,922 and spent $43,994.70 in the political campaign ending with the Nov. 8 elections, John J. Nangle of St. Louis, committee treasurer, reported today. The balance on hand, including funds previously contributed, is $25,811.

Nangle, in the report filed with the Recorder of Deeds, listed approximately 2400 contributors. Many of the amounts were small, in such sums as $4.20 and $5.20, indicating they were collected from State employees on a salary percentage basis.

The State committee sent $15,964 to the various county organizations, in amounts ranging from $75 to $700. The next largest expenditure was $14,687 for publicity and advertising. For advertising, $7036 was spent with small newspapers. A total of $6404 was spent in salaries and other expenses in connection with the State headquarters, and $3402 for the campaign speaker's bureau. Expenses of the women's division amounted to $38.

In an additional report, Nangle, chairman of the Democratic State Committee for the City of St. Louis, listed contributions of $1,043 and expenditures of $10,684. The principal expenditure, $10,000, was a contribution to the Democratic City Committee, which filed its report yesterday.

The largest contribution listed in the report was that of $500 by former United States Senator Harry B. Hawes. Other contributors included: Jesse McDonald, $400; Walter B. Muckerman, $400; August A. Busch Jr., $250; Adolphus Busch III, $250; Albert Bond Lambert, $250; and Thomas J. Sheehan, $200.

Contributions of $100 were attributed to F. O. Watts, Thomas J. Maffitt, W. Rufus Jackson, Edwin B. Meissner, O. S. Harting, William J. Brennan, Thomas Farrington, John S. Swift, Guy A. Thompson, J. S. Lehmann and Andrew S. Knapp. Other contributors and amounts included C. W. Gayford, $150; William L. Igoe, $50; and James J. Carroll, $50.

Contributions of $62,572 and expenditures of $61,813 were listed in the Democratic City Committee's report yesterday. The largest single contribution was $500 from Beverly Brown, operator of a racing news service, who is powerful in Democratic politics. A considerable part of the subscriptions consisted of collections from city employees.

INDUSTRIALISTS AT ODDS ON HULL TARIFF POLICY

Bitterness Develops at New York Convention, Threatening Manufacturers' Co-operative Program.

EFFORTS TO PREVENT AN OPEN FIGHT

Delegates Hear Iowa Farmer Warn Business to "Keep Your Hands Off of Our Farm" Plans.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—A bitter "revolt" by industrialists opposed to the Hull-reciprocal trade agreement program developed in committee rooms today and said leaders participating in the discussion, threatened to disrupt the National Association of Manufacturers' 1939 program of co-operation with the Government.

Vigorous lobbying in the resolutions committee was led by the co-operation faction, in the hope of preventing an open fight on the convention floor when the 1939 platform was scheduled to come up for adoption late in the day.

A member of the resolutions committee, one of the leaders of the co-operation group, said he hoped his side had won, asserting that such a fight at this time might embarrass Secretary of State Hull in Latin America and nullify the effect of the manufacturers' gesture of co-operation with labor, Government and consumer.

"Industry's program for American progress," the Association's 1939 platform, as tentatively prepared in committee, was geared throughout to the following statement in the preamble:

"America's progress depends upon a united effort of industry, commerce, agriculture and labor in co-operation with Government."

Hope for Brief Tariff Clause.
The co-operation group spokesmen said they hoped that the resolutions committee would retain in the program an "inoffensive" and brief tariff clause.

The co-operation leader said he thought his faction had won a satisfactory compromise in an earlier fight within the tariff committee, which adopted in its report a statement of policy asking for only three major changes in the Hull program:

1. Calculations based on American production costs, not foreign costs.
2. Revision of schedules by one or both houses of Congress (the administrative branch now exercises control).

3. Full opportunity for farmers, labor and industry to be heard during negotiations and before agreements are concluded.

Regulation and Democracy.
Meanwhile convention delegates in the open session heard:

1. Senator Joseph C. Mahoney urged the industrial leaders to restore confidence to the public by submitting to regulation designed for the best interests of the public as a whole, rather than a small business group.

2. Lewis Morris, Iowa farmer, warned the business leaders to "keep your hands off our farm program."

3. W. W. Waymack, editor, Des Moines Register and Tribune, asserted that democracy depends on a large secure middle class, the backbone of which is the individual farmer.

O'Mahoney Statement.
O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, who is chairman of the temporary national economic committee (the so-called "monopoly" investigating group) told the manufacturers most arguments for Government regulation had fallen into two groups:

1. "Those which would increase the discretionary control of Government over business by setting up some form of tribunal which in particular cases in advance of action could tell business what it may or may not do."

2. "Those which would more clearly define the acts which are prohibited and provide for better enforcement."

"The continued expansion of discretionary Government control over business is dangerous," he said. "The economic life of a people... thrives best in a free atmosphere."

"No desirable substitute for competition has been proposed. Our objective should be the development of a rule by which the practices we all know to be wrongful shall be effectively banished."

O'Mahoney pointed out that a major portion of industrial production consisted of items which did not have to be purchased at once. In periods of deflation, consumers tended to postpone purchases of items not immediately required, with far-reaching unemployment inevitably resulting.

He argued, therefore, that some form of regulation was required to soften or prevent such violent fluctuations.

Such regulations or supervision, he said, should be worked out not by business alone, representing only part of the community, but "must be written by the Government—the people's Government—in the interests of all."

Morris asserted that America "is in for continued, uncertain, selfish, crack-pot hard times for a decade or two."

He likened the country's immediate economic outlook to mumps, measles, chickenpox, scarlet fever, etc., perhaps a major operation.

"The world is war mad, war scared, with each country trying to save itself," he said.

PRESS FREEDOM ISSUE IN CONTEMPT CASE

California Supreme Court Hears Appeal of Los Angeles Times From Fines.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—The issue of freedom of the press was discussed yesterday before the State Supreme Court in arguments on the appeal of Los Angeles Times executives from contempt of court fines totaling $1000.

The contempt convictions followed editorials the paper published concerning cases pending in Los Angeles courts at the time of publication.

Counsel for the Los Angeles Bar Association, which filed the contempt actions, contended that constitutional freedom of the press was not involved. The bar lawyers argued that this guaranty does not apply when courts find a definite offense has been committed.

On the other hand, a theory that defendants in contempt-by-publication cases are entitled to the same protection under United States Supreme Court rulings, as freedom-of-speech defendants accused of endangering the Government, was advanced by A. L. Wirin, counsel for the Southern California branch of the American Civil Liberties Union. Wirin intervened in behalf

Iowa Candidate's Only Expense Is Sending In Statement.
CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Dec. 8.—When G. A. Evans campaigned unsuccessfully for Linn County Treasurer, he carefully watched his expenses. When he submitted his account yesterday, he had only one item to list.

It was: "Four cents to send in statement of election expense."

The courts should have no better advantage than the Government, Wirin contended. In the Times case, he said, there was no evidence that actual administration of justice had been interfered with.

Allen Ashburn of the bar association contended "no court ever has upheld, under any circumstances the right of anyone to commit contempt under the guise of freedom of the press."

The Supreme Court, he argued, has no power to decide whether Superior Judge Emmet Wilson erred in construing the various editorials as contempt. Legally, he said, each court is the final judge of its own contempt. The Supreme Court can decide only whether er Judge Wilson exceeded his jurisdiction. Ashburn contended. No decision in the case is expected for two or three months. The court granted the opposing briefs.

MOVIE AND RADIO STARS TO TELL OF SMUGGLED GOODS

Katharine Hepburn, George Burns, Jack Benny Among Witnesses Called by U. S. Grand Jury.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—A Federal grand jury today that several movie and radio stars had received goods smuggled into the United States by Albert N. Chaperau, indicted for smuggling commercial articles and cosmetics.

The Federal grand jury which voted smuggling indictments against Chaperau and Mrs. Elma N. Lauer, wife of a New York State Supreme Court Justice, has called as witnesses Katharine Hepburn, George Burns, Jack Benny, Wallace Ford, Joseph Moskowitz, movie executive, and Ralph Hitz, hotel manager.

To Be Given Chance to Explain. Assistant United States District Attorney Joseph Delaney said the witnesses had received smuggled articles of clothing or jewelry from Chaperau, and he wanted to give them an opportunity to explain their possession.

"They can be prosecuted under the law," he said, "but we do not wish to do that if proper explanations are given."

David Berger, counsel for Chaperau, said, meanwhile, that the Government's injection of Miss Hepburn's name in the case "has proven the straw that broke the camel's back. My client doesn't know Miss Hepburn and she doesn't know him."

Berger also gave out a statement in which he quoted Chaperau as

TOWN TURNS OUT ITS STREET LIGHTS DURING FULL MOON

Woburn, Mass., Mayor Says City Doesn't Need Both, and Saving Is Necessary.

By the Associated Press.
WOBBURN, Mass., Dec. 8.—If there's a full moon, Woburn doesn't need street lights, Mayor William E. Kane's new rule to save money.

He put it into effect last night, telephoning the electric plant to "put 'em out."

Officially his explanation was that the combination of street lights and full moon caused a glare hazardous to motorists.

"I couldn't put out the moon so I put out the lights."

Unofficially, he linked his order to an economy campaign. "We had better start saving money," he said. "I see by the newspapers that the city may be asked to pay a heavy fine."

He referred to the possibility that the State might fine the city for failure to meet school department salaries. Woburn officials have been asked to appear before a grand jury Friday.

The Mayor was impatient with residents who protested against the darkening of street lights. He offered free 200-watt bulbs to all who would install them in their porch sockets.

"In that way," he said, "they can have all the light they want on their sections of the street."

A year ago Kane's plan to parade drunks in a lion's cage as a temperance move, brought him wide notice. Kane obtained the cage, but dropped the plan when its legality was questioned.

"confessing" that he "smuggled in a dwarf for Snow White, a wig for Shirley Temple, a necktie for Charlie McCarthy... and I also failed to pay duty on a novel deep frog for the throat of Fred Allen."

One Says Watch Was a Gift. Hitz, president of the National Hotel Management Co., said in a statement that a Parisian merchant had advised him he was to receive a novelty key watch as a present and that Chaperau had delivered it. Delaney said he was "perfectly satisfied" with the explanation.

Chaperau is accused by the Government of using diplomatic immunity to bring in the smuggled goods. He was held in default of $20,000 bail.

The Government has asked French, British, Australian and Canadian authorities for any records they have on Chaperau.

Mrs. Lauer, charged with conspiring with Chaperau to smuggle in hundreds of dollars worth of French apparel to avoid payment of custom duties, was described by her husband as "a very sick woman." She will be arraigned next Monday.

TWO GET 60 DAYS, ONE 90 IN FAKE ACCIDENT PLOT
Two Implicate the Other, Who Is Found Guilty Also of Stealing Auto Fog Lamps.

Two youths pleaded guilty today of conspiracy to defraud the Public Service Co. by filing a fake accident claim and were sentenced to 60 days in the Workhouse by Judge James W. Griffin of the Court of Criminal Correction. A third youth, charged jointly, pleaded not guilty and was sentenced to 90 days after a trial in which the other two testified for the State.

Those pleading guilty were Armando Bellegamba, 17 years old, and Zuma Ariola, 19, who testified the third defendant, Kenneth Holland, 22, a night club entertainer, instigated a plan by which Bellegamba pretended to fall from a street car at Broadway and Market street and filed a claim against the company. The arrests resulted when company attorneys suspected the validity of the claim.

Holland, on the witness stand, denied the charge and said his part in the case started when he took Bellegamba to a physician after seeing him seated on a curb at the intersection, as though in pain. Following conviction on the plot charge, he was tried before Judge Griffin on two charges of petty larceny in theft of fog lamps from parked automobiles. He was found guilty and sentenced to concurrent 90-day Workhouse terms.

PHOTOGRAPHS SHOWN AT CANAL SPY TRIAL

German's 'Nature Views' Took in Strategic Points, Army Officer Testifies.

By the Associated Press.
CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, Dec. 8.—Lieut. W. H. Parr of the Coast Artillery testified today in the trial of a German on charges of photographing Canal Zone fortifications that the defendant had once asked him to be allowed to visit Fort Sherman.

Lieut. Parr said under cross-examination that he had played tennis with the 35-year-old defendant, Hans Heinrich Schackow, and offered to take him to his Fort Sherman house and also to Fort San Lorenzo, an old Spanish fort on the reservation.

Three other Germans are accused with Schackow in the Canal Zone's first espionage case. His trial opened yesterday.

Request to Visit Fort. In direct examination it was brought out that Lieut. Parr was approached by Schackow Oct. 15 for permission for himself and a party to visit Fort Sherman the following Sunday.

The officer testified he told Schackow he was unable to obtain permission for Schackow's party because the reservation was closed to all but United States citizens.

Elvin F. Maughan, an expert Air Corps photographer, testified that Schackow had a camera of a modern, powerful German type that could take pictures clearly from a distance of half a mile.

Lieut. S. W. Foote, adjutant at Fort Randolph, identified a Government exhibit as a photograph taken by Schackow and showing clearly a sign, "Military Reservation, No Trespassing." He testified that Schackow's group traversed a board walk along which there were three similar signs and later entered a gun emplacement area where all batteries were marked by signs.

Strategic Spots Photographed. Lieut. Foote testified that all photographs that Schackow had developed were "nature views" showing a background of strategic landmarks, one of them a 40-yard channel by which landing parties could approach in calm weather, and another twin hills used as landmarks by aviators. A third, he testified, showed the extent of a new military road.

Later court was adjourned to permit the jurors to visit the area at Fort Randolph where the prosecution charges the pictures were taken.

300,000 IN GERMANY SEEK TO COME TO U. S.

Most Applicants Are Jews—Regulations Permit Only 27,370 to Come in Annually.

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Government officials have received information that there are now nearly 300,000 persons awaiting permission to migrate to the United States from Germany.

They attribute the pressure to the new anti-Semitic laws in that country. Nearly 90 per cent of the German applicants for admission to the United States are reported to be Jews.

The flood of applications is the greatest since passage of the present immigration laws in 1924. Inasmuch as regulations permit only 27,370 Germans to enter annually, it would take 11 years to work through the present waiting list provided all are accepted. The German quota will be filled this year for the first time since 1929.

The pressure has been so great on the four American consulates which grant immigration visas in Germany that they have had to call for reinforcements. Several new consular officials and clerks have been dispatched to offices in Berlin, Hamburg, Stuttgart and Vienna.

A. M. Warren, chief of the visa division, left for Germany a week ago to inspect the consulates and check up on enforcement of rigid qualifications for those given visas. After leaving Germany, Warren

COLLEGIANS HIRE 'GHOST' TO WRITE THESES FOR THEM

New York Man Maintains Three Assistants and Six Typists.

By the Associated Press
NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—George Hitchcock Smith keeps so busy ghost-writing school papers, mostly for college men, that he has three assistants and a staff of six typists. He has been in the business seven years.

Smith—which is not his real name—is 33 years old, thin, pale, studious. He has prepared three Ph. D. and seven M. A. theses in the present year, he says.

"I believe I am aiding students who use my service," he explains. "My essays are thoughtfully worked out and carefully written. If a student will read them over, he'll get a lot more out of the assignment than if he had dug through stuffy books and copied down a lot of facts that don't make any impression on him."

Smith says he tries to encourage the student to read up on the topic. Most of the students who ask him to do a piece of ghost-writing are reasonable rates are "A" scholars, he says, adding, "I guess it's because most college curricula overload the student."

"Not a lot of brighter men and women want time for the subjects that interest them most, so, like business executives, they delegate tedious assignments to me."

will proceed to Poland, Czechoslovakia and other nearby countries where a proportionate flood of visa applications are on file. Nearly 90,000 Poles are on the waiting list, while only about 6000 annually can be given visas.

The heaviest pressure began early in November, following the anti-Jewish riots in Berlin and other German cities, although more than 200,000 German applications were on file then.

Jews From Austria Besiege U. S. Consulate in Naples.
By the Associated Press
NAPLES, Dec. 8.—More than 9000 Jewish refugees, three-fourths of whom fled from Austria after its annexation by Germany, are besieging the American Consulate here, pleading for admittance to the United States.

Foreign Jews must leave Italy within the next three months, but under the present immigration quota it would take six years before all those who have applied could be given authorization to enter the United States.

The Naples Consulate, which is the visa headquarters for Italy, has been swamped with applications since the Jewish exodus from Austria began last March. A total of 4200 names were put on the waiting list.

Seventy-five per cent of these were German. The next largest group were Polish. Of the 4200, visas have been issued to 420, leaving 3780 on the waiting list.

The Naples Consulate had been allotted a total of 492 visas for German citizens, 65 for Polish citizens, and 50 for all other nationalities during the current emigration year ending June 30, 1939.

consular official said that doubtless some of those registered have found means of getting to other countries, especially in South America, but added they did not believe this number would amount to more than several hundred.

The American Consulate has been the scene of frequent episodes in which distraught Jews have threatened to take their own lives if visas were not granted.

CURLING BEARDS PROFITABLE FOR SMALL TOWN IN UTAH

Players With Location Company of "Union Pacific" Require Care to Look Best.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CEDAR CITY, Utah, Dec. 8.—Beauty operators of this small Southern Utah town think motion picture location companies are just dandy. They're especially grateful to the men. The odd circumstance that is booming their business seems to be just one of those things which Hollywood alone can bring about.

The "beauticians" are doing a landoffice business in curling old gentlemen's beards. The aforementioned old gentlemen are part of a large troupe of Hollywood folk gathered here to make location sequences for Cecil B. de Mille's "Union Pacific." Script of the picture calls for their beards to be curly. No curl, no check.

But the air in Southern Utah right now is especially damp, deftly and completely removing all traces of curl from the atmosphere players' beards. With visions of paychecks staring them in their over-shrubbled faces, the old gentlemen are standing in line these nights to have that nice, curly condition of their shagginess retained.

MAN LINKS BROTHER TO MURDER IN CANADA

Testifies Defendant Had Grip Bearing Initials of Wealthy Farmer.

By the Associated Press
SINTALUTA, Sask., Dec. 8.—The preliminary hearing of Harry Hoppel, 24-year-old Arcola (Sask.) farmer, charged with murdering J. A. Kaesser, was in adjournment today after Hoppel's brother, Jack, appeared unexpectedly yesterday and testified for the Crown.

Hoppel, arrested in Oregon, Ill., is accused of shooting the 65-year-old Mooseman (Sask.) farmer. A coroner's jury has found that Kaesser was shot to death Nov. 9. The wealthy farmer's body, with four bullets in the back, was found Nov. 12 near Sintaluta. His blood-spattered automobile was abandoned in Winnipeg.

After more than a dozen witnesses had testified at the hearing, Jack Hoppel, appearing unexpectedly, testified that Harry had brought two bags, one of them marked "J. A. K.", to his room in Winnipeg. He testified, also, he had seen a pocketbook marked "J. A. Kaesser."

"Who had it?" he was asked.

He replied, "My brother, Jack."

Arnold Graham, 24, of Winnipeg, testified at the inquest that Harry Hoppel told him he had "hit a man on the head with a wrench" while driving by automobile to Winnipeg. He testified he saw Hoppel several times between Nov. 9 and Nov. 11 in Winnipeg and that he took a ride in the blood-spattered car, later found to be Kaesser's, and in it he found a blood-stained wrench.

Graham testified that when he asked Hoppel about the blood on the car and wrench, Hoppel said: "He got a hit from a man. When he was stepping into the car, he said, he hit him on the head. He said he dragged him to the side of the road and drove to Winnipeg."

Graham testified he saw two grips in Hoppel's room, one of which was marked "J. A. K." The hearing will be resumed Friday in Regina.

MAN KILLS ANOTHER IN FIGHT

Throws Brick at Man He Says Threatened Him With Knife.

Nathaniel Hatcher, a Negro, 1920 Division street, was killed last night in a fight with another Negro in an alley in the rear of Hatcher's home. Police arrested Perry Rogers, who said he threw a brick at Hatcher when Hatcher advanced on him with a knife after accusing him of being attentive to Mrs. Hatcher.

Hatcher, 33-year-old laborer, was dead of a fractured skull when police reached the scene.

MAIL SCHOOL HEAD

DENIES FRAUD CHARGE

De Montreville Ends His Direct Testimony After Six Days on Stand.

Clarence de Montreville, founder and president of the Public Service Institute, a correspondence school for persons seeking Government jobs, concluded today six days of direct testimony before a jury in United States District Judge George H. Moore's court, where he and 11 associates are on trial on charges of using the mails to defraud.

De Montreville ended his direct examination with a denial that he had devised a scheme to defraud, that he represented his school as any connection with the Government or had any influence in obtaining jobs for students or that enrollment in the school was necessary to get such jobs.

In order to liquidate the school, letters were sent advising students that installment balances for the courses would not be collected if they would sign in closed releases from their contracts for the courses. These letters were dated July 23, 1937, or 17 days after he was cited by the Postoffice Department to appear and show cause why he should not be denied use of the mails.

Questioned about enrollment of a student who was hard of hearing and another who was blind in one eye, handicaps which the government contended would make it impossible for them to get civil service jobs or at least would prejudice their chances, De Montreville said he had no knowledge of their disabilities.

He testified yesterday that since the school opened in September, 1935, he had fired 25 salesmen for making misrepresentations to students. Salesmen usually received 70 per cent of down payments and 30 per cent of subsequent payments, although some received the full down payment, he asserted, adding that commissions were forfeited if the salesman made misrepresentations.

Although there were 7069 students named on files at the school, 425 DeBaltiere avenue, there were only 4001 active students who took courses, de Montreville said.

DR. STRAYER SAYS SCHOOLS SHOULD TEACH TOLERANCE

Proposal to Excuse Pupils for Religious Instruction Needs New Study, He Says.

A proposal pending in the Board of Education to excuse pupils during the school day to receive religious instruction at places and by persons designated by their parents will require a new study, Dr. George D. Strayer, director of the survey of the public school system here, said in an address last night. He added that the churches would need increased support for the undertaking.

"No school," he said, speaking at a dinner at Second Presbyterian Church, Taylor avenue and Westminster place, "is worthy of the name that does not seek to inculcate in children a spirit of tolerance and good will. Indeed, the very essence of our democratic way of life proposes that we shall be free in our religious beliefs and practices."

There is an awakening at the present time to the need for more significant religious education. If adequate provision is to be made, many of the churches will have to reform their practice and develop their programs. An impartial survey of religious education, as carried on in Sunday schools and at other times by the churches of the United States, would show that all too frequently teachers are not well qualified for the work which they are undertaking. In very many cases the curriculum of religious schools is poorly organized. Possibly one of the greatest weaknesses is due to a lack of motivation and a failure to carry over religious instruction in the actual every-day lives of boys and girls.

CONGRESSMEN WIND UP 6-DAY JUNKET THROUGH FLORIDA

15-Car Special Train Starts North After Passengers Inspect State's Resources.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 8.—"The Florida Resources Special," 15 cars long and carrying 120 Congressmen and business leaders and their wives, rolled northward last night after a six-day tour of the State.

The tour was sponsored by the State Chamber of Commerce to acquaint the Congressmen and business men with Florida's part in the economic picture of the South, described by President Roosevelt as "the nation's No. 1 economic problem."

Harold Cole, State Chamber of Commerce president, said the tour would enable the Legislators to consider Florida problems in the light of firsthand observations.

The train picked up passengers in New York and Washington Thursday and took on Florida business men here yesterday.

FRENCH EX-MINISTERS

NAMED IN PARIS TRIAL

Two Accused of Blocking Police Search for Russian General Who Disappeared.

PARIS, Dec. 8.—La Plevitakala, lone defendant in the case of the missing Russian general, was all but forgotten today amid prosecution charges against two Socialist ministers of the 1937 Chautemps Government.

The two-Marx Dormoy, former Minister of Interior, and Vincent Auriol, former Minister of Justice—were accused of blocking police investigation into the disappearance of Gen. Eugene de Miller, head of the White Russian war veterans, who vanished Sept. 22, 1937.

The accusations were made yesterday by Maurice Ribet, lawyer for Mme. de Miller, who is presiding over a civil suit against La Plevitakala, former Ukrainian concert singer, in addition to the state's criminal charges. La Plevitakala is charged with complicity with her missing husband, Gen. Nicholas Skobline, in kidnapping Gen. de Miller.

Ribet declared that intervention by Dormoy and Auriol had resulted in the recall of the French destroyer sent out to bring back the Russian freighter Maria Ivanova, which White Russian witnesses said had taken aboard a large wooden box at Le Havre five days after Gen. de Miller disappeared. This box, these witnesses said, was believed to have contained the body of de Miller.

Ribet said he believed Vladimir Potemkin, then Soviet Ambassador to Paris, telephoned his friend, Vincent Auriol, and asked him to ask Dormoy to drop the Soviet claim for a few hours, thus enabling the freighter to escape search.

Presiding Judge Albert Delongchamps said he would summarize the testimony Saturday despite the fact that Parliament will be in session. Dormoy is a member of the Senate.

$2300 DAMAGES FOR FALL

Cafe Ordered to Pay Woman Who Says She Slipped on Floor.

A jury in Circuit Judge Ernest F. Oakley's court awarded yesterday $2300 to Mrs. Mary J. Boswell, 2710 South Grand boulevard, in her $15,000 damage suit against the Planters Building Coffee Shop, 411 Chestnut street.

Mrs. Boswell, wife of Detective Charles H. Boswell, alleged injuries suffered in a fall there in August, 1937, resulted from negligence by the coffee shop owners. She declared she slipped on a polished floor.

"No school," he said, speaking at a dinner at Second Presbyterian Church, Taylor avenue and Westminster place, "is worthy of the name that does not seek to inculcate in children a spirit of tolerance and good will. Indeed, the very essence of our democratic way of life proposes that we shall be free in our religious beliefs and practices."

WOMAN ADMITS ERROR

IN IDENTIFYING BODY

Retracts Statement That Dead Man Was Husband—Mate Is Alive.

Mrs. Louise Adams, a WPA worker, testifying at a reopened coroner's inquest today, retracted her identification of a body taken from the Mississippi River May 31, 1937, as that of her husband, Walter Adams. She declared that her husband was living.

There was no testimony to show the identity of the man whose body was recovered at the foot of Marzetta street. The body will be transferred from National Cemetery, Jefferson Barracks, to Pottery Field, after the inquest. It received a veteran's burial because Adams served in the World War.

Mrs. Adams told Coroner Louis R. Padberg that her husband came here seven weeks ago, having been missing since Jan. 21, 1937. She appeared ill, said he was suffering from tuberculosis and obtained his Army discharge papers, so that he could gain admission to a Federal veterans' hospital at Outwood, Ky., where he is now, she said. She explained that she had not notified the coroner of her mistake in identification, made in the original inquest a year and a half ago, because she had been ill.

She declared she had had no insurance on her husband's life to collect and said he had been at liberty on bond in connection with an automobile accident at the time of his disappearance.

The bond, she continued, was arranged by her brother-in-law, Thomas Lawler, 5098 Delmar boulevard, but she did not give the surety's name. The bond was forfeited.

Benefits Nation of Sufferers!

COLUMBUS, OHIO: For over 20 years Dr. F. M. Edwards (widely known physician) successfully treated scores of patients for constipation and the headaches, lack of energy and mental dullness which often result.

This wise Doctor knew liver bile must flow freely every day into your intestines or fatty foods can't be properly digested and you may become constipated. So he kept this in mind when he perfected his famous Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

Olive Tablets, being purely vegetable, are harmless, yet they assure gentle, thorough bowel movements and ALSO help stimulate bile flow. Test their goodness TONIGHT! 15¢, 50¢, $1.00.

for failure of Adams to appear but the forfeiture was set aside on the showing of his supposed death, she said. She did not meet the body until the occasion in court when the forfeiture was dropped, she insisted.

Her identification of the body was based on the white hair, light brown beard, a bump on the head such as her husband had suffered in the motor accident, and general appearance, Mrs. Adams said. She said Adams was 51 years old, a musician and a native of St. Louis.

Thomas Fenwick, an embalmer for Mullen Bros., undertakers, testified that his company had received notice from the Veterans' Administration Tuesday that the administration had information Adams was living, demanding a refund of $98 paid for the funeral and ordering removal of the body.

Adams' mother, Mrs. Hattie Adams, 4614 Delmar, told the coroner she had not seen her son since Christmas, 1936, and did not see the body. She said she had collected $300 insurance on her son's life. Adams' son, Walter Jr., who recently was released from the State penitentiary, paroled on an automobile theft charge, testified that he had not seen his father for two years and knew only what his stepmother, Mrs. Louise Adams, told him about the case.

The inquest was continued to Monday because Lawler was out of the city today. Assistant Circuit Attorney James M. McLaughlin said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that, in his opinion, Mrs. Adams had made the identification in good faith. Mrs. Adams told the reporter her husband had been released from Leavenworth Federal prison in 1936 after a term for interstate transportation of a stolen automobile. Police records do not show he was there.

FIRST AIRPLANE CARRIER LAUNCHED BY GERMANY

Space for 40 Crafts; Christened Graf Zeppelin; Compared to U. S. Vessel.

KIEL, Germany, Dec. 8. — Germany's first aircraft carrier, a 12,200-ton vessel with space for 40 planes, was launched today in the presence of Reichsmarschall Hermann Goering and high naval officials.

It was christened the Graf Zeppelin by Countess Hella von Brandenstein-Zepplin, daughter of the famous airship builder.

An array of Germany's newest warships assembled in the port and thousands of persons crowded vantage points around the Deutsche Werke Shipyards to watch the launching.

Goering, as Air Minister, declared the new vessel was proof that Germany's arms now are strong enough to enforce peace in a turbulent world.

ICKES IS ACCUSED AT DIES HEARING OF RADICAL TALK

Retired Army Reserve
Colonel Says Secretary of the Interior Attacked Supreme Court.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. — Secretary of the Interior Ickes was accused by a Dies Committee witness today of delivering a "radical" speech.

Latham R. Reed, the witness, told the House committee investigating un-American activities, headed by Representative Dies (Dem.), Texas, that Ickes was addressing the American Civil Liberties Union at the time.

Reed, who said he was a retired colonel in the army reserve, also said the Civil Liberties Union was guilty of un-American activities.

After associating Ickes and Felix Frankfurter, Harvard law professor, with the group, Reed replied to a question of Representative Starnes (Dem.), Alabama, a committee member:

"Ickes was a speaker at the annual banquet of the union in New York City last December. The address was on the subject of 'Nations in Nightmares'."

"Do you recall the theme of it?" Starnes asked.

"The tenor of it was, in my opinion, distinctly radical and it wound up with an unwarranted attack on the Supreme Court."

Representative Thomas (Rep.), New Jersey, asked Reed if the Frankfurter, to whom the witness referred, was the one mentioned as a possible appointee to the Supreme Court.

"There is no question about it," Reed replied.

Can't Name Other Candidates.
Representative Dempsey (Dem.), New Mexico, another committee member, interrupted to remark that "a lot of people" had been mentioned for the vacancy created by the death of Justice Cardozo and asked the witness to name some of them.

Reed said he could not recall the names of any others and said he remembered Frankfurter "because of his connection with the American Civil Liberties Union."

The witness exhibited to the committee what he said were pamphlets illustrating policies of the union. He said they opposed the American Legion's suggestions for universal finger printing, the Labor Department's "raids on aliens," prohibition against Communist party use of the public schools and the Postoffice Department's "sweeping censorship" of fraudulent or seditious literature.

Reads List of Names.
Reed read from what he said was a letterhead of the organization the names of Roger Baldwin, Heywood Brown, Harry F. Ward and Frankfurter.

The witness said that Baldwin had testified before a House committee in 1931, that as far as "advocacy alone" was concerned, he advocated murder and assassination.

In answer to a question by Representative Mosier (Dem.), Ohio, a committee member, Reed said he believed Ward also was president of the American League for Peace and Democracy. Mosier remarked that the league "appeared in our testimony as a distinct Communist-front organization."

When Reed came to the name of Amos Pinchot on the letterhead, Starnes asked the witness to identify him.

"He is a brother of Gifford Pinchot," Reed replied.

Veterans' 11-Point Plan.
Earlier in the day, the Veterans of Foreign Wars suggested an 11-point legislative program to eliminate "the danger from foreign 'isms' in the United States."

Eugene I. VanAntwerp, commander-in-chief of the organization, outlined the program in testimony before the House Committee investigating un-American activities.

Makes Specific Proposals.
VanAntwerp made these specific legislative proposals:

Require all organizations with dues-paying members in more than one state which distributes literature in more than one state to file with the Library of Congress its constitution, statement of purposes, names of officers, financial statement and a summary of its activities during the preceding year.

Require filing with the Library copies of newspapers, magazines, books and pamphlets issued by any corporation, association, society or other organized group.

Dissolve secret organizations which advocate force or violence to advance their purposes.

Make it a crime to advocate overthrow of the United States Government.

Withhold Federal appropriations from schools which openly advocate foreign "ism."

Require oaths of allegiance from all Government employees.

Limit Government employment to American citizens or those who have declared intention to become citizens.

Register and fingerprint aliens. Deny public relief to aliens who have not signified intention to become citizens.

Require the Labor Department to deport all aliens who have been found guilty of any penal crime, have become public charges, are ineligible for citizenship, or advocate force or violence to overthrow the Government. Reduce immigration from all countries to 10 per cent of present quotas.

PRIVATE PENSIONS URGED INSTEAD OF SOCIAL SECURITY

M. L. Joslyn, Chicago Manufacturer, Would Exempt Profit-Sharing Employers From Law.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. — M. L. Joslyn, Chicago manufacturer, broached to the Senate Profit-Sharing Committee today a plan to substitute private pensions for the Government's established social security system.

Joslyn, president of the Joslyn Manufacturing and Supply Co., which manufactures fittings for telephone and power lines, proposed that the Government establish a profit-sharing commission which would approve the pension plans of individual business firms.

He suggested that those employers who operated under approved plans be exempted from social security taxes as long as payments made to the credit of employees equaled or exceeded amounts set aside under the Government plan.

In addition, he said the Government should waive income taxes on all money paid to employees at retirement. As one condition for approval of the privately operated plan, the witness said there should be a limitation of $15,000 placed on all yearly salaries of officers or employees of the company.

The Profit-Sharing Plan.
Joslyn explained to the committee a profit-sharing plan now in operation in his company. He said that from 2 1/2 to 5 per cent of the employees' wages were deducted and placed in a profit-sharing fund. The company pays into this fund not less than 10 per cent of its net operating earnings yearly.

The money thus accumulated is invested in securities approved by the State for investment of trust funds. When an employee becomes 60 years old or is disabled he receives from the fund the entire amount of his credit there.

Previously, George Reith, statistician for a New York investment house, had suggested to the committee the establishment of a "compulsory" form of profit-sharing. Reith proposed the formation of a Government authority which would fix a national profit-sharing rate to be graduated according to local conditions.

Charles Beard's Letter.
Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), of Michigan, a committee member, read a letter from Charles Beard, president of the Council of American Industries, in which Beard estimated that industrial wage advances are reflected by consumers' price advances of one and one-half their amount, while profit-sharing does not increase consumers' prices at all.

Beard suggested that industries which shared profits with employees advertise that fact, asserting that there was a "latent good will" on the part of consumers to such industries.

INQUEST ORDERED IN DEATH OF MAN, WOMAN IN FIRE

Investigation of Blaze in Rooming House at 4343 Delmar Boulevard Is Set for Tomorrow.

ONE WOMAN STILL IN SERIOUS CONDITION

She Is Mrs. Addie Olds — Samuel Robinson Killed in Leap—Mrs. Roy Cunningham Fatally Burned.

An inquest will be held tomorrow in the deaths of Samuel Robinson, a World War officer, and Mrs. Roy Cunningham, who were killed in a fire in a rooming house at 4343 Delmar boulevard yesterday.

Robinson, 51 years old, who was on leave from a veterans' CCC camp at Pacific, Mo., died yesterday afternoon at City Hospital, four hours after the fire, of a fractured skull suffered when he leaped from a second-floor porch and struck his head on the concrete pavement.

Mrs. Cunningham, 55, wife of a paperhanger, was burned to death in her third-floor room.

Mrs. Addie Olds, 58, a widow, 4428 A Page boulevard, who was visiting Mrs. Cunningham, is in serious condition at City Hospital with severe burns of the head and body.
She was carried down a ladder by firemen.

Fire Chief Lawrence Cornoyer said the fire apparently started from a small gas stove in a first-floor room. Flames, discovered about 10:30 a. m. by several of the nine persons in the house, spread rapidly up the back stairway.

An open burner on the gas stove in the first-floor room, from which the occupants were absent, led firemen to surmise that the fire was started by a gas flame. The room was that of Mr. and Mrs.
Paul Vinson and their three children. Mrs. Ann Van Kemper, manager of the rooming house, told reporters that Mrs. Vinson and the children left the city to visit relatives several days ago and that she last saw Vinson Tuesday morning.

Vinson, an interstate truck driver, returned from Chicago today and told police he had not used the gas stove Monday night and that it was not burning when he left home Tuesday. Vinson said he had given his key to Mrs. Van Kemper, who had promised to have the room decorated.

Robinson, unmarried, stopped at the rooming house on his visits to St. Louis. Records at the CCC camp show he was a Second Lieutenant during the World War and had a mother residing in Winslow, Ariz. Neighbors, who saw him on the porch and shouted to him to await the arrival of firemen, said he was encircled by flames. In his leap he struck the building next door and crashed to the sidewalk. He had been burned severely on the arms and legs.

Mrs. Olds and Mrs. Cunningham were trapped in the latter's room and sat on a third-floor window sill screaming for help. Firemen reached Mrs. Olds with a ladder, but Mrs. Cunningham fell backward into her room and was burned to death. Her body was identified at the morgue by her husband. Mrs. Olds came to St.
Louis about two weeks ago from Springfield, Ill.

Damage to the building and contents was placed at $2300 by Chief Cornoyer, who said he would make an investigation to determine what caused the fire to spread so quickly.

YOUTH HOSTELS ALONG ROUTE SOUTHWEST OF CITY PLANNED

Chain of Low-Cost Lodgings Sought for Hikers and Bicyclists.

Tentative plans for a group of youth hostels along a circular, 100-mile route southwest of St. Louis were made yesterday at a meeting of the St. Louis Youth Hostels Committee at the Y. W. C. A. A hostel is a farmhouse, camp or other building where groups of hikers or bicyclists may obtain a night's lodging for low cost, usually 25 cents.
The hostels would be placed about 15 miles apart. Plans for one at De Soto, Mo., have been started by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and Women's Civic League there.
The North St. Louis Optimist Club has agreed to equip and maintain another near Imperial, Mo.

The St. Louis Hostels Committee consists of representatives of civic and social groups, headed by Miss Anne Goddard, 21 Brentmoor place.
The hostel program started in Europe.

Ralph Myers, Rensselaer, Ind., Trapped by Officers Posing as Gunmen Ready to Shoot Father.

OFFER OF $1000 FOR A RISKY 'JOB'

Price Cut to $700, Check Passed, It Is Charged, in Plan to Kill Retired Telephone Man, 72.

By the Associated Press.
RENSSELAER, Ind., Dec. 8.—Ralph Myers of Rensselaer was reported by State Police Detectives Premont Lemler and Edward Rose today to have confessed a plot to have his 72-year-old father, George M. Myers, murdered so he might get his $75,000 estate.

The detectives said they posed as Peoria (Ill.) hoodlums to trap the younger Myers last night. He was arrested beside an automobile in which the detectives were seated with a third man in the downtown section. Earlier, they said, he had met them in the country near here and outlined a plan for killing his father.

Lemler and Rose reported Myers, in jail, had expressed willingness to plead guilty to a charge of conspiracy to commit murder.

Offered $1000 for job.
The detectives withheld the name of the man who told them of the plot. They said Myers had admitted going to the man Saturday and offering to tell him how he could earn $1000 for a risky "job."

Reduces His Offer.
Later, the detectives drove back into the city. They said Myers walked over to their parked car a block off the main street and turned over a $700 check to the go-between. He had lowered the price he offered for the crime, they said.

State Policemen James Bortell and Francis Vogel stepped up and arrested him.

Myers has a wife and a son. The elder Myers, retired, once owned the Jasper County Telephone Co. He has several farms.

RESORT OWNER SHOT TO DEATH

Attacked in Bed Near Alpena, Mich.; Partner Wounded.

ALPENA, Mich., Dec. 8.—Beryl

Bergman, 55 years old, co-owner of Lockout Inn, was shot to death in bed, and his partner, William Gilliland, 60, was seriously wounded today at the resort 17 miles south of Alpena.

The shooting occurred about 7:30 a. m. in one of several cabins grouped about a gasoline station and tavern. Gilliland, shot in the stomach and one hand, told State Police Bergman was shot by an intruder who then entered Gilliland's room, asked him how much money he had, and shot him when he replied, "Not very much." State Police began a search for a 21-year-old employee of the inn, who they said was missing. Bergman's automobile also was gone.

Nearly 100 years ago, the Pacific Coast saw a great rush for gold. The hardy pioneers wanted to collect the precious metal. Now, they want to give some away. The picture shows the crowd milling and crowding for the privilege of paying good money for 15,000 Rose Bowl game tickets which were yesterday put on sale. Only one ticket window was opened at first. Many had waited from dawn and four persons were prostrated by the heat.

C.) and Leo Gruskowski, Center (Ky.); center, John Dulch, San Diego State (Cal.); backs, Sammy Padjen, Dickinson (Pa.), Bobby Kientz, College of Pacific (Cal.), Everett Elkins, Marshall (W. Va.), Harold Brill, Wichita (Kan.).

The South led all sectors on the team made up of stars from the nation's smaller colleges. It placed four men on the eleven which sports a backfield averaging 196 pounds and a line averaging 193. The Far West, East and Middle West placed two men each and the Southwest one.

Most of the athletes are unknown outside their own sectors. But, as Knute Rockne once said, "many a great back never sees the Yale bowl; many a superb tackle plays before crowds of about a thousand all his life." The pros since have proven "The Rock" a true prophet. Next year as in the past some 50 per cent of the national pro league operatives will be drawn from these "big frogs."

In the smaller colleges a back really has to do everything. The Associated Press all-star eleven presents a wealth of fine backs with the first four a tested quartet that has speed, power and all around technical skill.

Gaylon Smith, one of the most powerful runners in Dixie, disported for Southwestern (Tenn.) College's strong eleven. The headline writers missed him but the pros haven't. They regard him as one of the most likely prospects in college ranks. A 200-pound bucker of exceptional ability, Smith rated praise from everyone who saw him. He is a fine kicker and passer as well, a genuine triple threat.

With him in the "Little All America" backfield are Ted Faniel, another triple threat, from Bradley Tech., undefeated in 12 straight games; Darrell Tully, another 200-pounder who played for East Texas State Teachers' College, and last but not least, Sammy Roeder, the Franklin and Marshall back who led the East in scoring.

Panish was one of the best ground gainers. He averaged 13 yards a try on runs from scrimmage and punt returns. A smart, elusive runner in the open field he brought back punts 220 yards from his safety position in Bradley's games with St. Louis of the Missouri Valley Conference and Chicago of the Big Ten.

Roeder was a great defensive back as well as an able runner, kicker and passer. Tully was the key man of the offense and defense that made East Texas one of the sector's best small college elevens.

Just behind the first four is another group of able operatives. Chief among these is Sammy Padjen, a 155-pound fullback who picked up an average of six yards

JOCK HUTCHISON, M'LEOD LEAD IN SENIOR TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 8.—Veteran professional golfers entered the final 18 of their 35-hole medal play seniors' golf championship today, with $2000 to be distributed among winners of the three age divisions.

Yesterday's 18-hole round found Jock Hutchison of Golf, Ill., and Fred McLeod of Washington, D. C., setting the pace with cards of 73—three over par.

Hutchison, defending titleholder and competing in Class C for players from 50 to 54 years old, carded a 39 and par 36 for his 75. McLeod, who won the National open 30 years ago, played in Class B for players 55 to 59 years old and put together a 38 and a 37.

On their heels were Frank Bell of Garden City, L. I., in Class B, with a 76, and a trio with cards of 78—David Ogilvie of Augusta and John Inglis of Elmford, N. Y., each a Class B player, and Jack Campbell of Jenkins, Pa., of Class A for players over 60.

TERESAS WIN SOCCER GAME ON VOGT'S GOAL

By the Associated Press.

It was fitting that Leonard Vogt should score the goal that enabled St. Teresa to defeat St. Philip Neri, 1-0, in their Parochial Schools Soccer League game at Fairground Park yesterday afternoon. For it was this tall, skinny center half-back who throughout the match broke up the enemy raids and pressed the attack into the Neri half of the field.

After the teams had played a full game without a score, extra periods were ordered by Referee Schultz and Kehoe. It was in the early part of the first extra period that Vogt, captain and leading scorer of the Teresas, smashed a line drive from outside the penalty area to beat the Neri goalkeeper for the winning point.

As a result of their victory, St. Teresa will oppose St. Ambrose, southern division champions, in the championship final series. First game will be played at Sherman Park tomorrow afternoon and the second game next Tuesday at Carondelet Park.

Although the team was outplayed through the greater part of yesterday's game, St. Philip Neri was always dangerous. The long kicking of the Teresas' fullbacks, swinging the tide in favor of the green-clad side, and when the ball was in mid-field, the Teresas' halfbacks dominated.

Twenty-nine schools entered teams in the Parochial Schools Soccer League and out of the lot St. Ambrose won on the south side, St. Teresa on the north.

The scores were the result in two high school soccer games yesterday. In a non-league match, Chamblaine and Western Military stopped at 1-1. Clayton held Country Day to a scoreless draw in their St. Louis District League match.

It was reliably reported that Bill Watson, center halfback of the Burke club, is being sought by the Manhattan club of Chicago. U. S. A. rules prohibit tampering with players under contract but it is understood Watson has received an offer from the Chicago club to quit the Burke and join them. He is scheduled to play for the Burke Sunday in their first round national cup match against the Lindells at West Side Park.

WINN EXPECTED TO ACQUIRE CONTROL OF LAUREL RACE TRACK

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 8.—The Baltimore Sun says that Matt Winn, vice-president and director of the Maryland State Fair, Inc., which operates the Laurel race track, "is expected to announce shortly he has secured the controlling interest in the corporation from the Butler family."

Winn has been interested in the Laurel track for many years, and was a close associate and adviser to the late Jim Butler, principal owner and directing head of the Laurel plant.

Trade Winds and Cross Currents

THE trade winds do blow. The stars come and go. And every team's stronger, we hear.

Which is one for the book—like eight pennant winners next year.

THE Browns also feel that a man-for-man deal involving Tom Carey and Mar-

Will, assisted by luck, take 'em out of the ruck. And maybe in Pennantville park 'em.

Bob Feller, who was fined $100 and deprived of his driver's license for 90 days, says: "I need my license so I can drive. I am doing a lot of speaking now." But not so much speeding, we take it.

Bob says his schedule in the Knute-and-Fork Banquet League makes a car a necessity. We believe we get his point. You can't eat up the miles with a knife and fork.

However, it is thought that payment of the fine automatically closed the case, rendering an appeal futile unless he can get the case transferred to Judge Landis' court.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 8.—The Baltimore Sun says that Matt Winn, vice-president and director of the Maryland State Fair, Inc., which operates the Laurel race track, "is expected to announce shortly he has secured the controlling interest in the corporation from the Butler family."

Winn has been interested in the Laurel track for many years, and was a close associate and adviser to the late Jim Butler, principal owner and directing head of the Laurel plant.

Trade Winds and Cross Currents

THE trade winds do blow. The stars come and go. And every team's stronger, we hear.

Which is one for the book—like eight pennant winners next year.

THE Browns also feel that a man-for-man deal involving Tom Carey and Mar-

Will, assisted by luck, take 'em out of the ruck. And maybe in Pennantville park 'em.

Bob Feller, who was fined $100 and deprived of his driver's license for 90 days, says: "I need my license so I can drive. I am doing a lot of speaking now." But not so much speeding, we take it.

Bob says his schedule in the Knute-and-Fork Banquet League makes a car a necessity. We believe we get his point. You can't eat up the miles with a knife and fork.

SENATORS FAVOR TAX CONCESSION TO AID RAILROADS

Vandenberg, Herring and King Would Waive Levy on Paper Profits Through Buying of Securities.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Three Senate Finance Committee members said today they favored helping the railroads reduce their income tax burden under a plan involving income tax concessions. Such a proposal was incorporated in the 1938 tax bill as it passed the Senate, but House objections eliminated it. Under the plan the Government would waive income taxes on any paper profits which might result when the railroads bought their own securities at less than par. Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, said he thought the proposal might go a long way toward enabling the railroads to reduce interest charges on long term obligations. Senator Herring (Dem.), Iowa, called it "a possible way out of the railroad problem," and Senator King (Dem.), Utah, said he would support it if there was a safeguard to preserve private operation of the carriers. On the other hand, Senator Truman (Dem.), Missouri, of the Railroad Finance Investigating Committee expressed doubt that the proposal was practical. He said most of the carriers could not obtain funds for such purchases. Leo M. Cherne, executive secretary of the Tax Research Institute of America, suggested to the Senate profit sharing committee that railroads be permitted to purchase their outstanding interest bearing obligations during 1939 and 1940 without incurring income tax liability. Vandenberg called the proposal "absolutely sound." "You and I," he said, "can go into the market and buy railroad securities for 20 cents on the dollar. When the railroad does that, though, it has to pay income tax on the 80 cents 'paper profit' that it makes."

Vandenberg suggested some of the railroads could float new bond issues to finance the purchase of their old securities if the tax were removed. Truman, however, expressed belief the proposal would create a false price for the securities that might defeat the purpose. "I'm inclined to think," Truman said, "that the Government is going to have to furnish some kind of subsidy if it wants to keep the railroads running."

ART GALLERY'S MILLIONTH VISITOR, GIVEN $50, FAINTS

Kansas City School Girl, on Recovering, Says She'll 'Buy Some Clothes.'

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 8.—Phyllis Noyes, a sixth-grader at Bancroft School, went to the William Rockhill Nelson Art Gallery yesterday with a group of schoolmates. With her friend, Barbara Sheridan, she approached the turnstile. "You go first, Phyllis," Barbara said. "No you go first," Phyllis insisted. So Barbara went first, and Phyllis followed. As she passed through the turnstile she was handed an envelope containing a $50 bill. "You," said Paul Gardner, gallery director, "are our millionth visitor. You win our $50 prize." The little girl's eyes widened, and she toppled over in a faint. "Maybe I'll buy some clothes," she said when she recovered.

TAXLESS TOWNS DENOUNCED BY OFFICER OF T V A

J. A. Krug Declares They Throw Whole Cost of Local Government on Consumer of Electricity.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—So-called taxless towns were sharply criticized today by J. A. Krug, chief of the TVA power planning division. Krug told the TVA investigating committee these were communities in which municipal power plant profits paid the cost of local government. This, he added, was shifting "the entire tax burden from the taxpayer to the electric rate payer."

Krug said this was contrary to the TVA policy of getting "the widest possible use of electric power at the lowest possible rate."

"These so-called taxless towns maintain the vicious pattern of low consumption and high rates," the witness said. Krug said the TVA act required that preference be given rural cooperatives and municipalities in marketing of TVA power and this had been accomplished under the program. The witness said private utilities generally charged rural and suburban customers more than urban residents while TVA made no such distinction. Krug, starting his second day before the committee, distributed bulky copies of TVA contracts with its various power outlets among the committee members.

Tennessee Board Says Chattanooga Times Had Preferential Rate.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 8.—The Tennessee Public Utilities Commission, asserting the Chattanooga Times had been favored with a preferential electric rate since 1919, ordered its chief engineer yesterday to conduct an investigation looking to a correction of "this discrimination."

The commission said the Tennessee Electric Power Co. had served the Times Printing Co., publishers of the Times, with a rate "substantially lower" than the "duly filed and established rate applicable to other customers of the same class."

In its formal order, the commission said it "does not find that the favors were accepted by the newspaper in order to be in any way reciprocated," and absolved the paper of any irregularity in connection with the rate schedule. The order added: "No evidence has been presented to the commission indicating that this customer, the Times Printing Co., was aware of the fact that it was receiving electricity upon more favorable rates than those accorded other customers of the same class. Nor is the commission aware of any facts indicating that this customer was knowingly a party to any attempt to circumvent the laws requiring impartial treatment of all patrons of utility services."

The commission said the power company had violated established rates through failure to file with it the rate schedule under which the Times had been billed. Commissioner Leon Jourlmon said no accurate estimate of the difference between the discriminatory rate and the published rate could be made until after the investigation is completed. Jo Conn Guild Jr., president of the utility company, said in a statement issued from Chattanooga that "no newspaper which is in favor of TVA and municipal ownership has been cited."

MONOPOLY LEGISLATION IS UNLIKELY FOR YEAR

Committee's "Groundwork" Study Expected to Delay Specific Recommendations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—There were indications today that the Federal Monopoly Committee may delay for a year or more any specific recommendations for new anti-trust legislation. Well-informed persons said a belief was growing among some members that committee procedure would make it virtually impossible to enact a monopoly law at the coming session of Congress.

The committee has decided to conduct a broad "groundwork" study of business machinery before proceeding to legislative problems. It gathered data on the use of patents by the automobile industry this week, and will make a similar study of the glass container industry beginning Monday. It then will adjourn for the holidays.

Spokesmen said that any undue delay in working out legislation may draw opposition from Thurman Arnold, chief of the Justice Department's anti-trust division; Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, and Leon Henderson, the committee's executive secretary. Arnold and Borah are members of the investigating group. Borah long has urged a "direct approach" to the monopoly problem through enactment of control legislation. He has contended that additional, lengthy studies contribute nothing new to the vast store of information already gathered on monopolies.

Under the law, the committee may continue its activities until 1940. It has a $500,000 appropriation. Regardless of what course the committee pursues, Congress may Accident Occurs Two Hours After Dynamite Blast; Three Bodies Recovered.

THEFTFORD MINES, Que., Dec. 8.—Seven miners were killed by a rock slide in the Bell Asbestos Mine here two hours after a dynamite blast last night. Three of the bodies have been recovered.

The men were 20 feet below the head of the shaft, clearing away debris of the blast, when the sudden slide occurred. Two men escaped uninjured.

One body was recovered last night, another about midnight and the third early today after workers from the Bell Mine and other plants worked for hours.

LOWER RAIL RATES TO FAIRS

14 Cents a Mile to New York or San Francisco From St. Louis.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 8.—Walter S. Franklin, vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, told the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission yesterday Eastern railroads would cut passenger rates to the New York World's Fair and San Francisco Exposition next year as an experiment.

The long haul rate, from Chicago and St. Louis to New York or to the West Coast, will be 14 cents a mile, and range up to 24 cents a mile for shorter trips, he said. If the experiment is successful, he added, it might lead to permanent reductions. The cut on westbound trips will become effective Feb. 1, on eastbound trips, April 1.

YEZHOV, SOVIET POLICE DIRECTOR, REMOVED

Relieved of Duties at Own Request—Lorenti Beriya Succeeds Him.

MOSCOW, Dec. 8.—Nikolai Yezhov was removed from the post of Commissar of Internal Affairs, which includes the political police, it was officially announced today. Lorenti Beriya, former party secretary in the Russian State of Georgia, was appointed to succeed him.

The announcement said Yezhov was "relieved at his own request" of the Commissariat of Internal Affairs but retained the Commissariat of Water Transport.

There had been some rumors that Yezhov's health was failing but nothing was said about it today. On the other hand, official mention that he requested to be relieved of duty was interpreted by some observers to mean he would be withdrawn from public affairs gradually.

Yezhov's predecessor was Genrikh Yagoda, who was relieved of the Police Commissariat in 1936 and made Minister of Posts and Telegraph.

Yagoda was sentenced to death for treason last March, one among those caught in the great purge in which Yezhov had an active part. Beriya was relieved of his post of party Secretary of Georgia last August, and it was made clear then that he was being groomed for promotion.

His work in Georgia for Stalin was eulogized, especially his ruthless elimination of enemies of the people, asserted Trotskyists, counter-revolutionaries, and others.

SHE'S JOINED THE ALL-BRAN "REGULARS" ALL RIGHT!

WANT TO JOIN THE "REGULARS"?

Would you like to? Then here's some good advice. Ordinary constipation is usually due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. So instead of seeking temporary relief, why not get at the cause of the trouble? Eat a natural laxative food—Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy, toasted cereal contains the "bulk" you need. And All-Bran is one of the richest of tonic, vitamin B<sub>1</sub>. Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water and join the "regulars"! Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer. Served by restaurants everywhere.

SIXTIETH ANNIVERSARY of the POST-DISPATCH

Next Sunday the POST-DISPATCH will celebrate its sixtieth anniversary with a special section of twenty articles on the theme "Whither America?"

The special section explores significant changes which have occurred in America in the past decade and looks into the future.

The discussion is limited to America because of the peculiar urgency of American problems at this time, and the special character of these problems in a world of growing conflict between democracy and totalitarian government.

On the occasion of its fiftieth anniversary, the POST-DISPATCH published a symposium on the "Drift of Civilization," and a notable letter from President Coolidge. The Sixtieth Anniversary Section, "Whither America?" adds a new American chapter to the symposium of ten years ago.

ARMY AND NAVY TIGHTEN LID ON MILITARY SECRETS

Regulations Prepared to Keep Map Makers and Photographers Away
From Vital Spots.

SOME ALIENS FIRED OR SHIFTED RECENTLY

Penalties Range Up to $1000 Fine and Year's Imprisonment for Unauthorized Photograph.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The army and navy are quietly tightening the lid on military secrets, in preparation for the speeding up of the administration's national defense program.

New rules to safeguard forts, warships and planes, indications of a closer tab on aliens in aircraft plants, and a recent hint by Presdent Roosevelt that more funds would be sought from Congress to combat spies gave evidence today of increased caution.

Military circles heard that regulations were nearing completion to keep unauthorized map makers and photographers away from army posts, naval vessels and aircraft.
Congress authorized the step early this year.

Some Aliens Discharged.
Some aliens on whom suspicion rested have been discharged in recent months or transferred from plants making warplanes for the army and navy, informed persons said. They added, however, that there has been nothing approaching a general "purge."

Since 1926 aliens have been able to work on military aircraft orders only by official permission. Now such permits are more difficult to obtain and are issued for only a few months at a time.

Congress has included in most appropriation bills a provision that salaries paid out of the appropriations be given only to American citizens or to persons who had filed citizenship papers.

British Aviation Annual Calls U. S. Progress "Nothing Wonderful"

Jane's All the World's Aircraft Says Secret
English Designs Will Cause World
"Furiously to Think."

LONDON, Dec. 8.—A trend toward building huge, fast airliners, to carry armies in war and civilian passengers in peace, is noted in the new edition of the British annual, Jane's All the World's Aircraft.

C. G. Grey, the co-editor, said this was caused, first, by a fear of collapse in the market for straight war planes "just in case there does not happen to be a war within the next 10 years" and, secondly, by the idea that "air forces in the future will have to do a great deal of transport."

Grey said it took men, not airplanes, to keep a war won and "consequently, although we may never have trench fighting such as we knew in France, the winning of the next war may depend on the very quick transport of masses of troops."

The country-by-country presentation of airplane types reflected sharp decreases in French progress and production, a sharp rise in Germany's, a slight increase in Italy's and "a comfortable middle course" in Great Britain.

Grey sharply criticized French nationalization of its aircraft industry and said it had done "untold harm."

On the other hand he said German nationalization which "throws all responsibility for progress onto individual enterprise" had precisely the opposite effect.

Russia, Grey said, had brought out no new prototypes since the end of 1937 "presumably because of liquidation of personnel rather than factories in the aircraft industry."

He described the United States progress as "quite reasonable" and "nothing wonderful." He was doubtful about what he called the American "craze" for tri-cycle undercarriages. Despite criticism of the British Air Ministry, Grey declared it made "very good progress."

The co-editor predicted that when designs now secret were made public Britain would cause the world "furiously to think."

ARGENTINA SEEKS BAR ON EUROPEAN PROPAGANDA

Envoys to Lima Conference Working on Proposal in Line With U. S. Idea of Solidarity.

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 8.—A proposal to bar European political propaganda, in line with the United States program of solidarity for the Americas, may come before the Pan-American conference which opens tomorrow, activity by the Argentina delegation indicated today.

The delegation, a conference informant said, agreed on a tentative recommendation, and will put it in more direct wording today.

A series of informal conferences between Secretary of State Hull, chief of the United States delegation, and heads of the Latin American groups demonstrated that they were taking President Roosevelt's solidarity proposals seriously.

Although none of the delegates committed their nations on any of the issues likely to come before the conference, an Argentine informant made it plain his group expected to introduce the anti-propaganda resolution.

It was inspired by increasing activity attributed to German and Italian groups, following plebiscites held by German residents in a number of American states to indorse the Nazi annexation of Austria last spring.

Secretary Hull worked today on two speeches—one for the radio tonight and one for the conference on Saturday, the first business session after the Friday ceremonies.

Hull in a press conference last night said the Latin American leaders with whom he talked expressed a determination to go forward with Pan American co-operation, but that he had made no attempt to reach decisions.

In a statement on his arrival he asserted he hoped the conference would advance for the Americas
"an international order based upon peace, confidence and a consideration for the welfare of all its peoples."

Peruvian President Speaks.
President Oscar R. Benavidez of Peru in a world-wide broadcast last night said the conference contemplates the world of today "without fear," because of "the peaceful and law-abiding tendencies of our respective democracies and by reason of our American principles, which are among our fundamental contributions to human civilization."

President Benavidez said the Western Hemisphere nations "do not wish to be strong in order to use our strength against the weakness of other countries, but only to positively insure our sovereignty and guarantee our efforts for the future."

The American states must alone be the judges of their internal life, he said, adding:
"Those who seek to pass judgment upon or to criticize the principles of our countries fall into error when they compare our principles with the doctrines, principles or practices—whether fortunate or unfortunate—of other nations."

President Benavidez was thought to be referring to criticisms against some Latin American governments on the ground they were dictatorship.

BYRNES CALLS FOR CURB ON SPENDING BY GOVERNMENT

Increase in Public Debt by 'Just One Emergency
After Another' Dangerous, He Says.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Senator
James F. Byrnes (Dem.), South Carolina, called last night for a curb on further Federal spending, asserting that although the present public debt is not dangerous
"it can become dangerous if life continues to be just one emergency after another."

Addressing the New York Southern Society, Byrnes, chairman of the special committee to investigate unemployment and relief, warned against adopting "as our national slogan, 'as long as it is going to be spent, we may as well get ours.'"

He suggested a change be made in the system of distributing Federal funds for relief of unemployment and said that under the present method Congressmen had little time to give to the consideration of national problems.

"Their time is absorbed acting as superintendents of employment agencies and as glorified secretaries of Chambers of Commerce," he said.
Thinking $500,000,000 Out Possible.
"I know that if the Congress would enact a law prohibiting a Senator or Congressman from making representations to an official of any executive department as to the making of a loan, the granting of funds for work projects, or the appointment of an official in the executive department, the Congress could reduce the appropriations for the next fiscal year by at least $500,000,000."

"And at the same time," he added,
"the Senators and Congressmen would again become legislators and have an opportunity to devote their time and thought to the problems affecting the welfare of the nation."

In his criticism of spending, Senator Byrnes said that to be liberal

Naming Mississippi Valley Trust Company Your Executor May Save Money for Your Heirs

"Why should I name Mississippi Valley Trust Company as executor of my estate?" we are sometimes asked. "Why not name a member of my family?"

One very good reason is the saving you may effect in the inheritance actually received by your heirs. Changed tax laws of the past few years, together with the complicated administration procedure of today, make the business of administering an estate economically a highly specialized one.

Every dollar paid out of your estate in taxes and administration costs means a dollar less for your heirs. Certain taxes and expenses must and should be paid; but it is not necessary for your estate to pay, in addition, the price of ignorance or inexperience in estate matters.

Because of our knowledge of taxes and administration procedure gained through 48 years of actual experience in administering thousands of estates, Mississippi Valley Trust Company—for no higher fee than an individual executor is entitled to receive—can keep taxes and administration costs of your estate at a minimum, and thus save money for your heirs.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight for the best and the best of the world, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely stating news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A "Front" for Communists.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ACCORDING to a news item in your issue of Nov. 25, Miss Louise Spencer, executive secretary of the local branch of the League for Peace and Democracy, characterized as "merely another example of Red-baiting" the protest registered by the Federation of Catholic Alumni against the use of the word "Catholic" in connection with the meeting sponsored by the league and held at Sheldon Memorial on Nov. 25.

The protest was registered because the Federation of Catholic Alumni holds the League for Peace and Democracy is a "front" organization of the Communist party in the United States. In proof of that position, it is only necessary to know the league was one of a number of Communist and Fascist organizations which, within the last few days, were referred by Congressman Dies to Secretary of State Hull for investigation and prosecution under the new law requiring registration of foreign agents.

Further proof on the status of the league is found in the comprehensive article, entitled "Communism in the U. S.," by Stanley High, which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post of July 9, and from which I quote:

"The Communist is at his best when he operates through organizations not ostensibly Communist."

"For example, the American League for Peace and Democracy—formerly the League Against War and Fascism—is not officially Communist. But it began with friends of the party. Clarence Hathaway, editor of the Daily Worker, is a member of its board. Its meetings make a place for Communist speakers and Communist book stores circulate its literature."

While Catholics are heartily in sympathy with the universal condemnation of the persecution of the Jews in Germany, the simple fact is that the matter in the meeting in question was not in any sense "Catholic," which fact leads to the simple, if ridiculous, conclusion that telling the truth is "merely another example of Red-baiting."

R. E. KRINGS.

Old German Song.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

PLEASE ask your readers if they remember this old German song:
Du bist verlickt, mein Kind,
Du mußt nach Berlin,
Wo die Verlickten sind—
Da gehst du hin.

Translation:

You must go to Berlin,
Where the crazy people are—
That's where you belong.

CHARLES J. JUDGE.

The Challenge of Smoke.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE smoke menace is a challenge to the intelligence and pride of every citizen of St. Louis. Can you not start a movement to investigate the feasibility of the plan for the city to take over Illinois coal mines on 99-year leases and convert the coal into coke, which would be distributed by the city or through the present coal dealers at a fair price per ton. The proceeds from by-products could be applied on the operating expenses of the project.

The city's excellent water service is proof it could take over the equally vital fuel servicing of its suffering citizens, who could then remain residents of one of the finest cities in the United States.

BETTER TIMES.

Angry—Also Fed Up.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AM angry. I am also fed up. I refer, of course, to the intolerable smoke situation. I intend to see if something can't be done about it.

GEORGE B. SPEAR, E. S. in Ch. E.

From a New American.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AM a German-Jewish refugee. I read recently about the manner in which German-Jewish refugees were employed in St. Louis.

All German-Jewish immigrants, however, are not employed. I know a great many who are not. In fact, most of the immigrants I am acquainted with do not have jobs at this time. It is true that a number do, but only a small number. Besides, those who are employed do not have big-paying positions. We do not complain about the pay, because we are very thankful for whatever help is given, and we are impressed with the fine spirit of America to us.

If you only knew how hard we are struggling and how anxious we are to become good Americans, you would be very happy.

A NEW AMERICAN.

Charity Begins at Home.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

HOW can America take the troubles of the whole world on her shoulders? It would be a very Christian thing to take 81,000 homeless people, but what about our own homeless hungry and unemployed? They have a country, thank God for that, but they want to live. Two hundred thousands of men and women walk the streets day after day, hoping, seeking, like wounded animals. Let charity begin at home.

PRUNE THE PAYROLL, MR. MAYOR!

Mayor Dickmann is taking St. Louis' financial problem to the taxpayers directly. He is doing this through a four-page leaflet "newspaper," called "Your Business," which was delivered to 150,000 homes in the city today.

In justification for the publication and distribution—at a cost of about $2000, to be met by unidentified "friends"—the Mayor says that his leaflet "will give full information about some subjects that the daily papers might not care to print and will also repeat and develop news that they have already printed in part or in full."

The chief theme of the Mayor's little paper is that, with a financial crisis rapidly approaching, the time has come for the people of St. Louis to decide whether they want to pay new taxes or to go without certain municipal services which they now enjoy.

The Mayor is free to place a dagger on the doorstep of the city if he wants to. The efficacy of the plan, however, may be questioned. The newspapers of St. Louis stand ready to print all the news about the city's fiscal affairs. They have printed the news in the past. They will go on printing it. It is doubtful whether very many persons will read detailed statistical data which does not have news value, and that is what the leaflet will be forced to carry if it prints much new matter.

As for appealing to the people of St. Louis to volunteer suggestions as to how more money can be raised, that is a nice gesture but it can hardly be productive of worthwhile results. People pay taxes when taxes are levied. They do not go out of their way to propose new forms, especially new forms by which they themselves would be affected.

Criticism of this approach to the city's financial problem does not remove the problem any more than the approach itself removes it. Daily the situation becomes worse. It was bad when Mayor Dickmann took office with firm pledges to give the city a business administration. By the end of the present fiscal year, which falls next spring, the deficit will have mounted to the unprecedented sum of $5,100,000.

These have been hard years. The city has been called on to meet the bill for certain relief costs, and there have been other special charges growing out of the depression. Yet, at the same time, the Dickmann administration has had outside financial help which no preceding administration has had. The Federal Government, for example, is paying the wages of some 37,000 WPA workers on city projects. A large share of the street repairs and other public improvements have cost the city only the materials. Uncle Sam has met the payroll. Were this not so, the city's deficit would today be much larger than it is.

This is the condition. What is to be done about it? The first thing to decide is whether it is fair to limit the possible attacks to two. Is it a case of either cutting services or increasing taxes? Is there not a strong probability that much could be done by effecting sensible economies?

The survey and audit by the Mayor's Committee headed by Sidney Maestre may very well disclose opportunities for substantial savings. Similar audits have shown such opportunities in other cities. Everything that will speed this survey should be done. The bill to establish it on an ordinance basis should be passed without delay. The city should not wait—as it is apparently planning to do—until next spring to furnish the funds needed for the survey.

Meanwhile, the Mayor owes it to himself—to his own professions of business ability in the 1933 campaign—as well as to the taxpayers, to see what he can do on his own. Let him take the city payroll in hand and go through it as he would go through the payroll of a business if he were hired as an efficiency expert. He will find a lot of Democratic committeemen and committeewomen drawing city salaries. Are they needed? Are they giving the taxpayers a fair return? Or are they there because the spoils system allows them a place and that is the accepted way to keep a political machine in good running order?

A cut in the payroll does not necessarily mean a cut in the city services. On the contrary, the city services unquestionably would be improved by a judicious threshing out of political hangers-on from the staff required to operate the offices and departments. See what you can do, Mr. Mayor. It will not solve the problem in its entirety, but there could be no better beginning. And if such a beginning were made, the citizens would be more sympathetic toward any new tax proposals that may be needed.

If the Mayor cares to read the handwriting on the wall, as inscribed by the voters at the last election, he will find that they are sick and tired of extravagance in national, state and city governments.

The Mayor was elected as a business man. He has before him now a situation that clamors for the application of business methods.

And to our Sugar Bowl Senators, their hosts are the salt of the earth.

MR. GARNER READS THE SIGNS.

Garrulous as the sphinx, Vice-President Garner is expected to talk freely to the press when he arrives in Washington. He will have had, as always, an interesting summer in his home land. He still believes there is altogether too much Texas for one State, which, were it left to him, would be carved into five states. He has the statistics to prove it, and they are anyone's for the asking.

Politically, will he have anything to say as to 1940? He very well might. He might inform the alert correspondents that the news of the past week has spoken more importantly about 1940 than any conjectures he could personally venture. What is the first question of the next presidential campaign? It is the third term, is it not? And Jack Garner, to whom the cuneiforms of events are as A B C, may demonstrate that the question has been answered conclusively by action.

Regardless of the millions he did or did not make in the insurance business, Jimmy Roosevelt was happy in his job as secretary to the President, thoroughly enjoyed the work, liked Washington and Washington liked him. Then why this Hollywood connection? If the President were considering a third term, would not Jimmy, his health restored, be right back there in the secretariat? But with the short prospect of a couple of years, Jimmy, as a forerunner person, prudently sought and obtained a permanent connection.

Jimmy has spread in Kleig lights: "No F. D. R."

In 1940." After this lesson to the political specialists of the capital, the Pecan King will be ready to instruct residents or visitors in the art of draw poker.

SUPER-JUNKET TO SUGAR LAND.

Ten Senators, including Missouri's Bennett Champ Clark, and 30 Representatives, most of them accompanied by their wives, forgot the campaign hurly-burly this week as they junketed from Washington on a care-free and expense-free five-day tour of Florida.

They rode in the compartments and drawing rooms of a 17-car luxury special, which included two diners, two lounge cars, two club cars and an observation car. Everything on the train was free. Everything at every stop was free—golfing, bathing, sightseeing, meals, drinks, hotel accommodations, cigars. In fact, things were so free that Representative Sol Bloom of New York, great impresario of the George Washington Bicentennial, drew a big laugh during a dinner (free, of course) in a Miami hotel when he bawled into a loud speaker, "Paging all Congressmen—go up to the desk and pay your bills!" And Senator Clark fervently declared, "I can kick myself for not coming here sooner. This is a wonderful experience for all of us."

Southern hospitality saw to it that the guests had nothing to do but enjoy balmy breezes and flattering civility—and listen to a few well-chosen words from time to time on the Sugar Control Act of 1937 and other vital matters expected to come up in the next Congress. It would be very nice, for instance, if Florida could cut into the sugar quotas of Cuba and Puerto Rico.

Clarence R. Bittling, president of the United States Sugar Corporation (which collected $1,067,665 from the Government for not growing sugar cane from 1933 to 1935) was "the busiest man on the train," according to an account in the Miami Herald. No doubt, Mr. Bittling had something to do with the junketers' schedule, which included numerous visits and inspections in the fields, refineries and experimental plants of his corporation, and according to Newsweek, the corporation underwrote the junket, with a $35,000 donation.

Technically, the Congressmen were invited by the Governor and the Florida Chamber of Commerce to take a look at the "Land of Flowers," and judge for themselves whether the South, at least as pertains to Florida, is the nation's No. 1 economic problem, as asserted by President Roosevelt.

What Senator or Representative who enjoyed this super-junket at the expense of the interests concerned in legislation would show such base ingratitude as to vote—or even speak—against such magnanimous hosts in the coming session at Washington? At that time, Sol Bloom can most appropriately repeat his jovial words—"Go up to the desk and pay your bills!"

That New York-Chicago baseball trade, in reverse scripture, is a case of old wine in new bottles.

PHILADELPHIA'S INCOME TAX MESS.

Philadelphia's city government, facing a financial crisis, adopted a municipal income tax of 1½ per cent, along lines similar to the plan discussed at intervals by St. Louis officials. The Pennsylvania Supreme Court now has approved the tax, but has knocked out the $1000 exemption, and the exemption for domestic workers, on the ground that these are contrary to the State Constitution. Another provision rejected was that allowing credit for property tax payments on the income levy, a proposal also discussed here.

So Philadelphia now has an income tax that applies to one and all, including odd-job men and casual laborers who are lucky to make $1 a week. The cost of gathering tax returns and collecting these trifling sums obviously will be more than the revenue obtained, but such is the court's ruling. The decision means the imposition of an unjust tax upon a part of the public least able to bear it. Faced by requirements that will make the tax plan virtually unworkable, it is likely the Philadelphia Council will repeal the law, but this will leave the city's financial problem still unsolved.

The clubhouse of the National Republican Club of New York is to be sold for debt—a quaint bit of news to come bobbing down the Jolly Yuletide.

HALFBACKS AND PHI BETA KAPPAS.

Where are the stars of yesterday? That was one of the questions Dr. Hutchins of the University of Chicago pressed in the death sentence he pronounced on college football in a recent magazine article. He implied, to put it mildly, that the boys who had been headlined and acclaimed for feats of prowess on the gridiron had disappeared in the arid vastness of mediocrity. "The roar of the stadium," he sentimentally observed, "is short-lived."

Now comes an answer by one of the presumably forgotten heroes, Bruce Caldwell, who some years ago carried the football into the blue immortality of Yale's Vahlha. By the Hutchins dictum, Caldwell should be puttering around in some bread-and-butter job, or even enrolled in the lost legion of relief. Instead he is a member of a successful law firm, doing right well by himself, and getting a bigger kick out of his intellectual combats, he says, than he ever did from the cheer-mounted crashes of football.

His career, as he relates it, is something of an Odyssey bestrewn with adverse situations that occasionally dowered him. But he didn't stay down, and he feels the resolution that enabled to get back on his feet and again buck the line derived in part from his football training. Further, he calls the roll of yesterday, and by name and address places the men in excellent standing. In the professions, in business, in service enterprises, in public life, they are making good.

Usurping the office of referee, we are obliged to raise Caldwell's hand in token of victory. But the issue might be broadened, it seems to us, in the interests of both drama and enlightenment. Where are the scholastic luminaries of yesterday, the good old grinds who were always exasperatingly prepared, superior to the vague beckonings of dalliance, scornful of delinquency's lures, the faithfully studious who fired the erudite Olympians, with Dr. Hutchins as cheerleader? Where are those prodigies of the classrooms? Where are the Phi Beta Kappas? How many of them are Big Shots on the rough-and-tumble campus?

The chair recognizes Dr. Hutchins.

What the Ex-Kaiser Thinks of Hitler

After years of refusal to comment on present leader of Reich, Wilhelm is moved in unguarded moment to give appraisal; once inclined to favor Naziism, he now finds it to be rule by "shirted gangsters," says Fuehrer has made a mob nation, led by liars and fanatics; new state disdains human dignities and German traditions.

W. Burckhardt in Ken.

IT is the sixth time that the ex-Kaiser has received me at Doorn. As I enter his study, Wilhelm II is seated at his table before a book-rest containing the proofs of a treatise on which he is at work. A young woman dressed in gray rises and withdraws discreetly.

I recognize her as the Princess Henrietta von Schönaich-Carolath, daughter of the Princess Hermine, who is herself seated in an armchair busy with her knitting.

The Emperor and his wife, the Princess Hermine, receive me with their customary graciousness. Wilhelm II is wearing a striped blue suit and white spats. He holds himself soldierly erect, carefully keeping the famous "withered hand" at his back, out of sight. The snowy whiteness of his waved hair, his carefully groomed beard and mustache bear witness that, despite age, his vanity at least will never abdicate.

After the usual politenesses concerning his health, his archeological studies, etc., I venture to bring up a graver subject: the dramatic events of the moment (this was the dramatic week of September). But it is really the Emperor who controls the conversation, and I, the questioner, find myself constantly questioned. He himself doesn't open up at all until I happen to say, "Everything depends on Hitler."

He agrees: "Yes, everything depends on him. It's all clear... whereas in 1914 everything depended on a dozen men, and the confusion was such that one can't untangle, even today, the exact part each played."

Suddenly, sensing a chance I may never have again, I pose THE question: "And yourself, sire, what do you think of him?"

"Nichts!" This "nothing" is spoken in an explosive tone and the Emperor turns his back on me to begin pacing up and down the room. But I'm careful not to interrupt the ensuing silence, and he goes on as if only for his own benefit:

"There's a man alone, without family, without children, without God. Why should he be human? Oh, without a doubt, he's sincere, but this very excessive sincerity keeps him apart, out of touch, with men and realities... He builds legions, but he doesn't build a nation. A nation is created by families, a religion, traditions; it is made up of the hearts of mothers, the wisdom of fathers, the joy and exuberance of children..."

Over there (here the good arm rose, pointing over Holland toward the Third Reich), an all-swallowing state, disdainful of human dignities and the ancient structure of our race, sets itself up in place of everything else. And the man who, alone, incorporates in himself this whole state, has neither a God to honor nor a dynasty to conserve nor a past to consult..."

And the circle of those surrounding him? "For a few months I was inclined to believe in National Socialism. I thought of it as a necessary fever. And I was gratified to see that there were associated with it for a time some of the wisest and most outstanding Germans. But these, one by one, he has got rid of, or even killed. Papen, Schleicher, Neurath—and even Blomberg. He has nothing left but a bunch of shirted gangsters!"

The Emperor held his silence for a long moment, before resuming his monologue: "This man could bring home victories to our people each year, without bringing them either glory or danger. But of our Germany, which was a nation of poets and musicians, of artists and soldiers, he has made a nation of hysterics and hermits, engulfed in a mob and led by a thousand liars or fanatics..."

The room darkens with the deepening twilight into the semblance of a dark gray backdrop against which, as bright points, stand out the white-bearded head of Wilhelm II, the white arms and the pearl necklace of the Princess Hermine, who sits knitting away with a seemingly endless patience.

The Emperor breaks off brusquely, as if suddenly telling himself that he has talked too much, and addresses the Princess: "Hermine, you've let us be overwhelmed both by darkness and by dark thoughts. Would you give us some light?"

With that, it's over. I know that I shall learn no more.

Decline of Whittling as an Art

From the Christian Science Monitor.

IS whittling becoming a lost art? Not until vacation time when we watched a countryman leisurely and deftly reduce a pine stick to curly shavings with his jackknife did we realize how long since we'd seen a whittler before. In our boyhood most everybody, man and boy, whittled and kept his knife sharp and shining.

You sat on the milk stand by the barn or on the porch of the farmhouse or crossroads store and whittled—sometimes alone and often as you conversed with companions. If a neighbor pulled up with his horse and buggy and stopped under a shade tree, you put one foot restfully on the hub of a front wheel, and found a stick.

Most of the whittlers we remember, except a few who whittled out paddles, watch charms or other articles, seemed to whittle just for the sake of whittling—just plain, pure relaxation, and let the shavings fall where they would.

Not all whittling, however, was as simple and guileless as that. When Hiram Stebbins was cogitating a horse trade or wanted to buy your boy coat, he could whittle so nonchalantly that horse or coat seemed the farthest thing in creation from anything that he wanted to possess; that is, if you didn't know Hiram.

Maybe a census of whittlers would show more of them left in villages and on farms than the city man thinks. If so, it's well. If whittling passed, something very American, neighborly and leisurely would go with it. It is needed to temper the tempo of today and continue its contributions to serenity and contentment as in simpler days.

False Idea on Trade Pacts

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

THE executive committee of the National Grange, as a result of the action taken at its convention in Portland, Ore., has announced a 15-point program. Among the points is one which calls for all trade treaties to be subject to Senate ratification with opportunity given for study of their provisions. It also advocates the barring of farm commodity imports "if the net result adds to idle men or idle acreage or causes American products to be sold below cost of production."

This obviously is a slap at the British treaties in general and the Anglo-American trade treaty in particular. Whenever American farmers hear of eggs or dairy products coming over the border from Canada, they begin to set up a howl. They are at once to the conclusion that such imports are increasing idle men, idle acreage and lower prices for American products.

The farmers will not see that such agreements with Canada are reciprocal and that if the Canadian farmer is permitted to send some of his produce into the American markets, the American farmer living in the border is permitted to send some of his products to the neighboring markets of Canada. They ignore the fact that, by making concessions to the Dominion farmer, the American farmer gains through the lowering of tariff barriers in Great Britain which give him a larger market.

When the National Grange proposes that trade treaties be submitted to the Senate, it is hoping that it can exert its political influence on individual Senators toward it is in favor of the treaties when they open foreign markets to American farm products and against them when they open the American markets even a crack to foreign farm products.

With the rise of the British dominion the day has passed when the American farmer can expect to receive favored treatment in the British market while refusing some degree of reciprocity to British products. The attack on the Hull treaty program indicates that that is something the National Grange has yet to learn.

A VISION OF THINGS TO COME.

William Allen White in the Emporia Gazette.

JOHNNY JONES flew across the United States the other day in a baby plane, a little crate no bigger than a chicken brooder and with about the same amount of power and machinery in it. So all the world stands and gazes. A great achievement, that of Johnny Jones!

But wait a minute. Wait until 1933 and then go back to the files and cut this out and read it and it will be a prophecy. Johnny Jones' little boy or his second cousin on the Smith side is going to fly across this country in that blessed year of Our Lord with an individual motor and his own wings that will rise and spread out when he lets down his suspenders.

A dozen or 15 years after that, we will fly around, as we go now in cars and on our little tin wings with a motor on our hip pocket about the size of a $10 radio. We shall get the power out of the sun with some kind of a newly gadgeted battery, and the whole automobile industry will be scrapped.

John Lewis and Homer Martin will be selling pencils along with Henry Ford on the bank corner. And General Motors will be running a peanut roaster!

More Peace

IN THIS Year of Our Disgrace, 1938, there was signed in the "great hall of Versailles, in Paris," a "peace treaty." It was signed in an atmosphere of hatred, cupidity and revenge. It was a betrayal of the principles and ideals for which millions of the best and bravest youth of the world had spilled their blood and given up their lives. The only justification that could be advanced for it was that it followed four terrible years of war and incorporated in itself the results of a century of battle, blood and hate. But this must also be said: hardy was the ink dry upon it when the dead-eyed, the just and the decent in all countries denounced it.

John Maynard Keynes denounced its economic provisions in a book that swept the world. Liberal journalists in America, who had supported Wilson, branded it as a betrayal of spontaneously friends of Germany. The United States of America never signed it. And the League, created along with the treaty, contained provisions for its amendment. It was dead, certainly, by the time it was signed.

Before the Nazi revolution in Germany had ever broken out, the Treaty of Versailles was a dead document. It was dead not only because Germany had never signed it; it was dead not only because it was not a peace treaty; it was dead because it was a peace treaty that was not a peace treaty.

But we learned at Versailles that "peace" is more than a word. Peace is a positive condition of affairs. It is the recognition of mutuality of interest, as between peoples. It presumes the common acceptance of certain rules of behavior. It implies the end of terror and fear in common respect for certain common principles. It is, for instance, such a state of affairs as has existed between this country and Canada for over a hundred years.

A one-way peace, dictated and enforced, can last only until the dictated becomes strong enough to overthrow it. If the dictator is strong enough, such a state of enforced peace can last for many decades. But it is not peace. It is inevitably the preface to war.

What was signed at Versailles was not a peace, but a desperate capitulation. What was signed at Paris Tuesday was not a peace, but a desperate armistice.

Nobody will doubt that pacific relations between France and Germany are a sine qua non for the peace of Europe. Nobody will doubt that an effort to secure developments in this sense ought to be the goal of a common effort. Everyone would greet a definitive settlement between the two nations. Everyone would welcome consultation in the event of differences between them.

Why, then, does no one really believe that this document means peace in any positive sense whatsoever? Why, then, are the French workers urged to lengthen their working day in order to arm? Why is Great Britain asking new concessions from everybody for defense? Why, then, is the United States contemplating a huge armament budget? Against what and against whom does the world arm?

Why is the German Foreign Minister, who is a man of peace, introduced into the capital like a burglar, the strong and the weak, to keep back the rage, furor and humiliation of the Paris population? Why, then, does this rage come from the very ranks of those Frenchmen who most consistently, for 20 years, worked for an understanding with Germany?

Why, then, does the French and German and British governments bring every possible pressure, direct and indirect, not only upon their own journalists, but upon the journalists of neutral powers, to be very quiet, not to criticize, not to ask questions, not to doubt?

Why, then, is this a peace without peace? Why, then, is this a peace without confidence? When the armistice was announced in November, 1918, people rushed into the streets—they embraced each other; strangers meeting in the street shook hands; for a few hours all men were happy. Nobody had to organize that demonstration. No one had to tell the press of the world to celebrate that peace.

The celebration of this peace is an automatic chorus of words framed in Foreign Offices.

With whom is this new peace signed? With "France." With whom was the peace of Munich signed? With General Bismarck?

Not at all. With the Prime Minister, Mr. Chamberlain. In the next moment, the German leader informs the world that if the Prime Minister of Great Britain should be Mr. Churchill or Mr. Eden or Mr. Duff-Cooper, the peace might be endangered.

Presumably we shall soon hear that if the Prime Minister of France should be, let us say, M. Mandel, the peace would be off. According to the newspaper Populaire, M. Mandel and Jean Zay, two members of the Cabinet, are not invited to the official lunch. They happen to be Jewish, and under this new peace, the German Government, apparently, dictates the dining lists of its hosts.

Herr Ashmann is attached to the German delegation. Herr Ashmann is the press representative. He is, in reality, the chief of the German disarmament commission. For the Hitler Government wants to disarm France. It wants above all to disarm the word. For the word is its most dangerous enemy.

We may expect that a result of the peace will be again an attempt to get the French Government to put into effect the decrees that M. Bonnet tried to write into the economic program of Paul Reynaud. Those decrees provided for secret trials in cases that might "have international repercussions." They provided that it "would become an offense to criticize the head of a friendly state." They amount, in fact, to giving the German Government a veto power over the French press.

The German Government will give its consent to refrain from criticizing the form of government of a friendly state, or to refrain from sending its agents to sow dissension in the midst of a friendly state, or to use its nationals to make propaganda against the forms, customs and social organization of a friendly state, or to attempt to buy, bribe or intimidate the press of a friendly state, or to spend millions disseminating anti-Semitic and anti-labor propaganda in a friendly state, or to blackmail money out of the citizens of a friendly state by, like kidnappers, holding innocent victims of its terror as hostages, in the hope of ransom money from abroad!

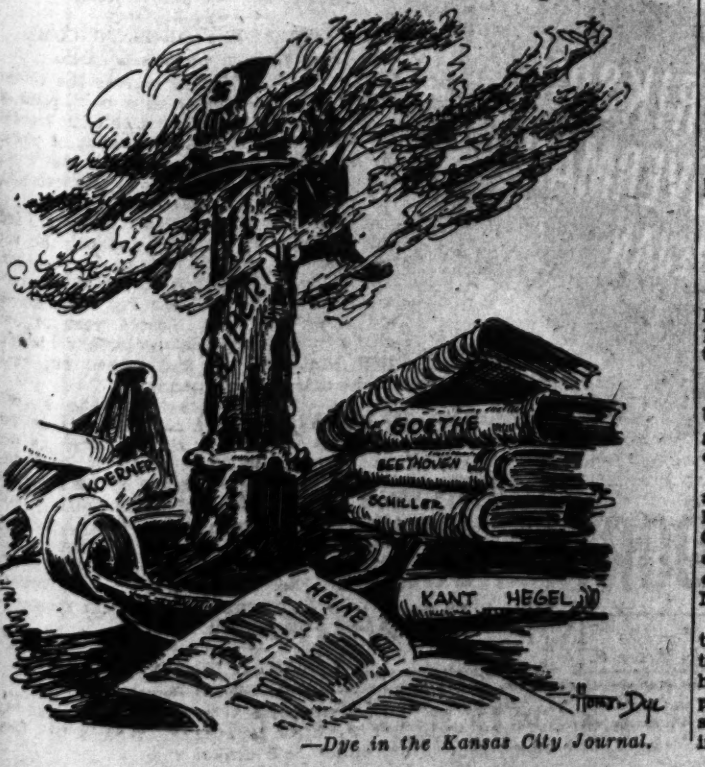

It will not consent to abandon a policy which throws millions of penniless refugees loose upon other friendly states, exploiting them, in the most cynical way, the humane instincts of the rest of mankind.

The present French-German borders will be "definitive." But if a movement for "independence" should "spontaneously" arise in Alsace-Lorraine, the German Government, of course, would recognize a new situation.

And we must always remember that this German Government believes in "dynamism." It is really Trotskyist, in that it accepts the idea of the permanent revolution, with "peace" as a means to that end.

NOTABLES EULOGIZE

PAUL Y. ANDERSON

Senator Norris Says at Funeral That Newspaper Man Passed on When Most Needed.

Post-Dispatch Bureau. 201-205 Kellogg Building. WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—In funeral services impressive through their simplicity, Senator George Norris of Nebraska described Paul Y. Anderson, Washington newspaper man, who killed himself today, as "a noble warrior who had passed on when humanity and civilization needed him most."

The other personal friends who eulogized the former St. Louis writer were John L. Lewis, president of the Congress of Industrial Organization, and George R. Holmes, head of the Washington bureau of the International News Service and president of the Gridiron Club.

Holmes disclosed that when President Roosevelt was informed of Anderson's death he observed that Anderson had been a vigorous writer with strong likes and dislikes, and that his likes had usually been on the right side and his dislikes as well. Holmes characterized Anderson as "a great reporter, a fine companion and a loyal friend."

Lewis said that Anderson had paid the penalty for the brilliance of his intellect in making his substantial contribution to the body social and political.

"Hated Hypocrisy and Sham." "He has done a man's work," Lewis continued. "He knew men and he knew life. He hated hypocrisy and sham. I am proud that he considered me his friend."

The small funeral chapel was crowded with newspaper colleagues, governmental officials and friends who had known Anderson in St. Louis and Washington. The gathering included Justice and Mrs. Hugo L. Black, Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator; Stephen Early and William H. Rorer of the White House secretariat; Congressman John J. Cochran of Missouri and Paul Kvale of Minnesota; Lowell Mellett, director of the National Emergency Council, and Oswald Garrison Villard, contributing editor of the Nation, the liberal magazine for which Anderson wrote a weekly Washington article.

The only religious formality was the playing of several of Anderson's favorite hymns on the pipe organ. Immediately after the funeral services the body was put on the train for Knoxville, home of Anderson's mother and sister. The burial will be today in the family plot.

The Washington services were begun when Lewis rose from a chapel pew and slowly walked to a speakers' stand. When he had finished a 30-minute tribute, Holmes, an intimate friend, spoke briefly under an obvious strain.

Norris was visibly moved as he began his brief eulogy. There was between the venerable Senator and the dynamic Anderson a mutual admiration, rare in Washington or any place else. He revealed that Anderson several times before his death had asked that he speak a few words at the funeral services.

Norris' Tribute to Anderson. Speaking as though Anderson had been his own son, Norris said: "Paul had unlimited courage, mixed with wisdom seldom held by men. He knew his own mind and he would write and how it should be said. In some of these qualities he was superior to any other man I have ever met. He was one of the shrewdest and ablest men in his profession, yet he was absolutely fair, just and based his conclusions on judicial study. He hated and fought crime, debauchery and dishonesty in high places. "His words will live on after we are gone and forgotten. His death is more than the personal loss of a personal friend. It is a loss that will be felt generations to come, because he passed away when the world needs more than ever the fighters for the underprivileged and the victims of the abuse of power by those who control our economic life."

The lesson to be learned, Norris concluded, was that Anderson's friends and colleagues should seek to follow his footsteps in the same heroic battle.

people's money," but that Southern political leaders did not subscribe to this view. Says South Has Been Retarded. Byrnes charged the South had been prevented from making progress industrially because of tariff duties and higher freight rates. The WPA had discriminated against the South, he said, by establishing in cities such as Alton, Ill., a minimum monthly wage of only $30.50 for unskilled labor as compared with a rate of $80.50 in New York City.

He said WPA appropriations for the 15 Southern states since 1936 totaled $50,424,221, although they had two and a half times the population of New York, which he said had received $737,219,651 during the same period.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Married at Home of Mother

ONE of the first important weddings of the new year will be that of Miss Jane Alva Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson, to John Hyman Hemingway, son of Mrs. Jay O'Brien of New York, which is scheduled for Saturday afternoon, Jan. 7, at the Johnson home, 18 Portland place.

The ceremony, to be attended only by members of the two families and out-of-town guests, will be performed at 4:30 o'clock, and an hour later a large reception will be held, for which a marquee added over the terrace, will provide additional space. Further arrangements and announcement of the personnel of the large wedding party will be made later.

Several parties, however, are already scheduled, among them a dinner dance to be given at the St. Louis Country Club Thursday night, Jan. 5. The host and hostess will be Mr. and Mrs. James Russell Forgan of New York, uncle and aunt of the bride, who will arrive later this month to spend the holidays with Mrs. Forgan's mother, Mrs. Jackson Johnson, 28 Portland place, and to remain for the wedding Friday, Jan. 6, the day before the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Shinkle and Mrs. Helen Johnson Niedringhaus, the bride's uncle and aunt, will give a luncheon at Trail's End Stables, owned jointly by Mr. Shinkle and Mr. Johnson, in honor of Mrs. O'Brien, who will arrive a few days before the ceremony. That evening the out-of-town guests will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. James Lee Johnson, cousins of the bride, at their home in Hunteleigh Village.

After a wedding trip Mr. Hemingway and his bride will return to New York, where he has an apartment at Hampshire House.

MRS. KENNARD CHARLES GOLDSMITH. FORMERLY Mrs. Eva Milius Hirsch, who was married last Thursday at home of her mother, Mrs. Gustavus A. Milius, 5542 Waterman avenue.

Miss Virginia and Miss Betty Dean. They will arrive Dec. 23. Mr. and Mrs. Dean have issued invitations for a dinner to be given preceding the Triangle Club's annual performance in St. Louis, Dec. 28, in honor of Miss Theoline Bostwick, Miss Louise French and Miss Mary Jane Allen, three debutantes of the season.

Today's debutante party was a luncheon given by Mrs. George Niedt at her home, 6285 Wydown boulevard, in honor of Miss Grace Jeanne Huette, daughter of Mrs. David Wyt Woods, 7329 Teasdale avenue.

Debutante guests were seated at a large table decorated with white snapdragons, roses and blue lilies, and at smaller tables decorated with porcelain blue filled with violets. The guests included: Miss Martha Bixby, Miss Becky Wells, Miss Laura Hale Rand, Miss Marian Spink Merrill, Miss Nancy Russell, Miss Nanon Burns, Miss Mary Ellen Niedringhaus, Miss Nancy Ellis Moritt, Miss Louise French, Miss Mary Kathryn Nangle, Miss Florence Tierney, Miss Clare Curran, Miss Mary Caroline Morrissey, Miss Elinor Curran, Miss Virginia Baugh, Miss Mary Sue Peckham, Miss Jane Westphalen and Miss Suzanne Weidie.

Mrs. Niedt entertained Mrs. Woods, Mrs. Frank A. Smith, grandmother of the debutante, and Mrs. James McCord Brady. Their table was decorated with autumn-colored chrysanthemums.

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Johns of Craig Darrah, Sappington, Mo., returned home this morning after a several weeks' absence. They visited their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. F. Winston Johns, and their family, in Tulsa, Ok., and later had an apartment in San Antonio, Tex., as has been their custom for several winters. Their son, George McDonald Johns, went to Texas and accompanied them home.

Cards will be in the mail today from Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Conklin Hobbs and Dr. and Mrs. John Campbell Moritt for a ball at the St. Louis Woman's Club Thursday night, Dec. 22, at the St. Louis Woman's Club to present their daughters, Miss Warren Hobbs and Miss Nancy Elias Moritt. Guests will be invited for 10 o'clock.

Miss Louise Moritt of Baltimore, Dr. and Mrs. Moritt's niece, who came to St. Louis for the wedding of her cousin, Miss Elizabeth Garrison Moritt and Dr. Theodore Eugene Sanders two weeks ago, will return home Tuesday, accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. James Moritt of Webster Groves.

Miss Eleanor Moll Cave, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Powell Cave, Spode road, will be guest of honor at several parties before her marriage Tuesday, Dec. 27, to Frederick Edwin Guth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Frederick Guth, 430 South Berry road, Webster Groves.

Next Wednesday, Miss Cave will be honored at a luncheon which Mrs. R. Banks McDonald, 10 Fordyce lane, will give at her home. Next Thursday Mrs. John R. Shottliff Jr., 7668 Buckingham drive, will give a luncheon at Bellevue Country Club for her sister, Miss Betty Ann Noland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Turner Noland, 21 Washington terrace, will give a luncheon Friday, Dec. 18, at the home of her parents, Mr. William Lambert Behan Jr. will entertain at luncheon next Saturday at her home, 68 Clermont lane, and that night a buffet supper for Miss Cave and her fiancé will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Lungstrass at their home on Conway road.

Only members of the two families will attend the wedding at the Cave home. The Rev. Dr. Roy Calvin Dobson will perform the ceremony. Mrs. Shottliff will be matron of honor, and Miss Sara Louise Guth, sister of the prospective bridegroom, will be maid of honor. James Guth, brother of the bridegroom, will be best man. Ralph C. Cave of San Francisco, Cal., brother of the bride, will be groomsmen. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cave will arrive this month to remain until after the wedding.

Of the modern pieces the three dances by Bela Bartok were outstanding for their vitality and rhythmic propulsion—qualities that were true both of the score and the performance. Another interesting feature of the recital was an Allegro by Clarke Morgan, a St. Louis composer, who was in the audience. Though his material was reminiscent of and whose isn't—the piece was well organized, clearly stated and was indicative in its atmosphere of a sensitive musical personality.

The last number on the program, Ravel's Toccata, was omitted. At the conclusion of Bartok's Allegro Barbaro, Miss Frederick announced that she had injured a finger and could not continue. The large audience responded cordially to the whole program.

Miss Virginia and Miss Betty Dean. They will arrive Dec. 23. Mr. and Mrs. Dean have issued invitations for a dinner to be given preceding the Triangle Club's annual performance in St. Louis, Dec. 28, in honor of Miss Theoline Bostwick, Miss Louise French and Miss Mary Jane Allen, three debutantes of the season.

CORINNE FREDERICK

IN PIANO RECITAL

Gives Program of Wide Variety, Both as to Style and Period.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN. CORINNE FREDERICK gave her first piano recital in several years last night in the ballroom of the Coronado Hotel before an audience of about 800. Her program, which encompassed a wide variety both as to style and period, imposed a thoroughgoing test of natural musicianship, technical preparedness and intellectual comprehension—a test which Miss Frederick met with apparent ease.

The two opening numbers, a Sonata in D Major and a Toccata by Domenico Scarlatti, were articulated with vivacity and warmth, with an exquisite internal balance and with a lyrical utterance that took advantage of the modern piano's capacity without forcing the music outside its classic framework. It was finely wrought execution but not at all precious.

An Arietta with variations by Haydn was disclosed with a similar clarity of design and a spirit that might be called childlike except for the fact no child could be capable of that kind of simplicity. But the high point of the evening was her playing of the Beethoven Sonata, Opus 27, No. 3, which came at the end of the first half of the program and which by being wholly faithful to the score was a complete disclosure of a work that is remarkable for its juxtaposition of moods and at the same time mounts up into a master work of architectural organization. The flowing lyricism of the opening measures was as much a study in the contrasts of the reflective slow movement as authentic as the manifestation of raw strength. Miss Frederick's ability to reconcile these contrasting phases of character and make the whole piece unified was an evidence of her thorough study of the score.

The last half of the program was divided between a group of Chopin mazurkas and a number of modern pieces. The mazurkas are not quite so familiar as the études, preludes and nocturnes and are therefore not so handicapped by the moonlight- and -honeysuckle tradition. Hence one could not expect a beautifully styled performance without the feeling that the performer was holding something back. A pianist who was a little more in love with Chopin than Miss Frederick appeared to be could, perhaps, have injected a little more feeling into the mazurkas without overstepping the bounds of good taste. For a change, however, it was good to hear Chopin that erred on the side of reticence.

Of the modern pieces the three dances by Bela Bartok were outstanding for their vitality and rhythmic propulsion—qualities that were true both of the score and the performance. Another interesting feature of the recital was an Allegro by Clarke Morgan, a St. Louis composer, who was in the audience. Though his material was reminiscent of and whose isn't—the piece was well organized, clearly stated and was indicative in its atmosphere of a sensitive musical personality.

THE NEW MOVIES IN ST. LOUIS FOR THIS WEEK

Romantic Drama, Juvenile Pranks, Music and Adventure Available At the Major Picture Theaters

"Shining Hour" and "Listen, Darling" on Loew's Screen Today, Other Programs in Tomorrow.

LOEW'S THEATER, leading off with the first new picture program of the week, today brought in the Joan Crawford drama, "The Shining Hour," and the juvenile musical comedy, "Listen, Darling," with Judy Garland and Freddie Bartholomew.

Tomorrow's new bills at the Fox, Ambassador and St. Louis promise a wave of adolescent and adult crime, with contrast of drama and comedy. "Little Tough Guys in Society" and "Up the River" are set for the Fox; "Ride a Crooked Mile" and "Comet Over Broadway" for the Ambassador; "Arrest Bulldog Drummond" and "Juvenile Court" for the St. Louis. The Missouri Theater will take over "Submarine Patrol" from the Fox and add "Thanks for the Memory," recently at the Ambassador.

"The Shining Hour" is a screen adaptation of the Broadway success of 1934, centering around a situation in which one of two sons of the aristocratic Linden family brings home his bride, only to have her fall in love with his married brother. In the stage version the setting was in England, in the picture at Loew's it is Wisconsin.

Miss Crawford is a famous Broadway dancer at the time Melvyn Douglas persuades her to marry him. They go to the family home in Wisconsin, to live under the same roof with Douglas' brother, Robert Young; his wife, Margaret Sullivan, and Fay Bainter, who has the role of a spinster sister and suspicious overseer of the two men and their romantic affairs. The sister immediately takes dislike to Miss Crawford and does everything to bring about an estrangement, especially after she discovers that the bride and brother-in-law are in love.

Frank Borzage directed and Jane Murnin and Oden Nash wrote the adaptation of Keith Winter's original play. Miss Crawford has an eight-minute dancing sequence in the picture, with Tony de Marco as her partner and the Chapin C-Sharp Music Works as her musical accompaniment.

"Listen, Darling," Loew's other film, busies itself with getting a husband for Mary Astor, who has the role of Judy Garland's widowed mother. Judy and her friend, Freddie Bartholomew, look Miss Astor in a trailer and take her on a vacation trip, during which they meet a highly eligible candidate, Walter Pidgeon. The story was written originally by Katherine Brush. Little Miss Garland introduces three song numbers, "On the Bumpy Road to Love," "Ten Pins in the Sky" and "Zing Went the Strings of My Heart."

Fox — "Little Tough Guys in Society," With "Up the River."

A group of youthful actors headed by Frankie Thomas is featured in "Little Tough Guys in Society," along with such comedy regulars as Mischa Auer, Mary Boland and Edward Everett Horton. Auer, a psychiatrist, advises wealthy Miss Boland that the thing to do for her son, Jackie Searl, is to get him some boys from the slums as companions. This she does and an altogether shocking series of escapades follows. But the "Little Tough Guys" prove their right in good society by following a robbery at a fashionable function on Long Island.

"Up the River," on the same program, is a musical farce, presenting the customary football rivalry of collegiate pictures against a penitentiary background. All the main characters are prison inmates, with Preston Foster and Arthur Treacher stars of the football team. Tony Martin and Phyllis Brooks, the romantic pair, have been unjustly convicted and part of Foster's and Treacher's efforts are directed toward proving them innocent. Slim Summerville is coach of the penitentiary team, Eddie Collins, Alan Dinehart, Sidney Toler and Bill Robinson are the others in the cast.

Ambassador—"Ride a Crooked Mile" and "Comet Over Broadway."

A KIM TAMIROFF, Frances Farmer, Leif Erikson and Lynne Overman are featured in "Ride a Crooked Mile," at the Ambassador tomorrow, Tamiroff as a former Russian who becomes a racketeer in the Middle West, Erikson as his son, Miss Farmer as a Russian girl Tamiroff has befriended and Overman as a hard-boiled inmate of the Leavenworth Penitentiary.

Tamiroff is engaged in stealing cattle shipments when his son, whom he has not seen in 20 years, comes to his home. The boy falls in love with the Russian girl living there and the father, for the sake of the two, decides to give up racketeering. He is arrested, however, convicted and sent to Leavenworth. The son joins the United States cavalry, in order to help his father escape from prison, but eventually gives up the idea. The father makes his escape alone and is drowned.

The story is an original by Ferdinand Keyser and John C.

"Submarine Patrol," to be continued at the Missouri, is an action drama built on the activities of the "splitter fleet" of submarine chasers in the World War. In the cast are Richard Greene, Nancy Kelly, George Bancroft, Preston Foster, Slim Summerville, John Carradine, Henry Armetta and Maxie Rosenbloom.

"Thanks for the Memory" features Bob Hope and Shirley Ross as a husband and wife who separate when she goes back to work as a dress model. In the cast are Charles Butterworth, Roscoe Karns, Hedda Hopper, Otto Kruger and others. The film was one of the Thanksgiving week shows at the Ambassador.

Gorky's partial autobiography, "My Childhood," published in 1934, supplied the source material for the screen play. Alaysha Lyarsky, Moscow schoolboy, was chosen for the leading role because of his physical resemblance to Gorky. V. O. Maslennikov, People's Artist of the Republic, plays the grandmother, the character second in importance.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1938

dependent studios turn out on a bi-weekly schedule. Instead, they require big mob scenes as "atmosphere"—but it's mostly made. Of a list of 45 films programmed by major companies, only one, "Café de Paris," is using a sizeable number of women extras for a prolonged period.

The other day a report got around that Paramount had ordered hundreds of pounds of artificial hair to make up the cast of "Hotel Imperial." There was a flutter of excitement among Hollywood's unemployed glamor girls. "Hotel Imperial" had an exotic title and what girl couldn't envision herself as being—well, at $16.50 per—such a foreign drama? Next day hopes fell.

The hair had been made into mustaches and beards for a pseudo-Russian army.

STRIKE TIES UP NEW YORK FREIGHT TRUCK TERMINALS

Drivers Join in Sympathetic Walk-out After Stevedores Quit Work.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Paralysis of trucking in New York, with attendant crippling of Christmas shopping deliveries, was threatened today when stevedores employed at highway terminals struck and truck drivers joined in a sympathetic movement by refusing to handle cargoes.

Before noon, all the major freight terminals reported stoppage of work at the platforms.

Strike leaders said 2000 stevedores were involved in the walkout and that the strike, which started at midnight, would extend to Jersey City and Hoboken, N. J.

The striking organization, a local of the Motor and Bus Terminal Checkers' Platform, and Office Workers' Union, was originally formed by the International Longshoremen's Association headed by Joseph P. Ryan, but later obtained a separate charter from the American Federation of Labor.

The strike was called when an agreement between 200 trucking firms which handle out-of-town shipments and the union expired.

3 BANK ROBBERS WHO AIDED IN PRISON EPIDEMIC PAROLED

Gov. Stark Acts on Plan of Judge Who Sentenced Them; Companions Got Shorter Terms.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 8.—Three bank robbers once denied clemency in spite of their volunteer work in the prison hospital during a spinal meningitis epidemic at the State prison were paroled by Gov. Lloyd C. Stark today on a plea from the judge who sentenced them.

The three men—Sylvester Ziegler, 31 years old; Lynn Clark, 30, and Edward Bloebaum, 29—all received 15-year sentences May 4, 1931, for the robbery of the Hawk Point bank in Lincoln County. They have served more than seven and one-half years each and would have been eligible for release under commutations in a few months. They were eligible previously because of "merit time" for their services during the epidemic.

The Governor made public a letter from Circuit Judge Edgar E. Woolfolk of Troy, who sentenced the three. Judge Woolfolk pointed out that another participant in the robbery, Jasper Holmes, received only a 10-year sentence and added that 3000 St. Charles and Lincoln County residents had petitioned for the release of the men.

Angelo Sala Testifies Before Jury in $80,000 Action.

By the Associated Press. The suit of Angelo Sala, proprietor of Sala's Cafe, South Kings highway and Daggett avenue, against the city for $80,000 damage to his property by construction of the Kingshighway viaduct over the Missouri Pacific tracks, continued today before a jury in Circuit Judge Frank C. O'Malley's court.

After the start of the trial yesterday, Sala testified he paid $10,500 for the restaurant and adjoining ground, later spending more than $40,000 for alterations and remodeling. His attorney, in an opening statement, said the property had depreciated from a value of more than $100,000 before the viaduct was built to a present value of less than $30,000.

The city last December paid off a $20,000 mortgage on the property with the understanding the payment did not affect the status of the suit.

Attorney-General's Office Says Old Law Was Repealed in 1931.

By the Associated Press. JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 8.—It is not against the law to sell liquor to University of Missouri students, the Attorney-General's office held today.

Liquor Control Supervisor E. J. McMahon asked the legal department yesterday whether an old law which prohibited liquor sales to students at the university and other schools still was operative.

The law was dropped as obsolete in the 1929 revision of the statutes but the Current Revision Commission said recently it was doubtful if the provision had been officially removed from the State law.

However, J. F. Allebach, an assistant Attorney-General, held today the law was repealed by the Legislature in 1931.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Weak-voiced House members will be able to make themselves heard in the next session, but elevator operators and other Capitol employees will have to wait longer for uniforms.

Officials said today that Speaker Bankhead had authorized installation of a new loud speaker system in the House chamber. The money must come temporarily from funds intended for new uniforms, expenses of the Capitol, including the uniforms.

RECIPES FOR NEXT WEEK

Calvo Cocktail Salad.
Four to five calvo half-shells.
Lemon juice.
Salt.
One cup flaked cooked fish.
Two-thirds cup tomato cocktail sauce.
One-third cup mayonnaise.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
Few drops tabasco sauce.
Cracked ice or salad greens.
To prepare calvo half-shells, cut chilled fruit into halves lengthwise and remove seeds. Sprinkle cut portions with lemon juice and salt, arrange fish in seed cavities. Blend cocktail sauce, mayonnaise, lemon juice and tabasco sauce and pour over fish. Serve in a bowl of cracked ice or on salad greens. This is correctly accompanied by a spoon. Serves four to six.

Deep-Dish Cherry Tapioca.
One-half cup quick-cooking tapioca.
One cup sugar.

One teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon nutmeg.
One-half teaspoon cinnamon.
Two cups canned sour cherries, drained.
Three cups cherry juice and water.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
Two tablespoons melted butter.
Combine tapioca with remaining ingredients in greased baking dish. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) 30 minutes, or until done, stirring well every 10 minutes, and again when removing from oven. Serve warm. Serves eight.

Fresh Pear Upside Down Cake.
One cup brown sugar.
One-half teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg.
Four tablespoons butter.
Three pears.
One-fourth lemon.
Peel and cut pears into eighths. Meanwhile simmer until melted in a frying pan, over low flame, the brown sugar, butter and spice. Squeeze the lemon juice onto pears. Then place the fruit in flower pattern in the frying pan, and pour over it the following mixture:
One cup white sugar.
Three eggs.
One and one-half cups flour.
One teaspoon baking powder.
Six tablespoons milk.
Pinch of salt.
Beat yolks with milk, add sugar and salt, beat until dissolved. Fold in flour and baking powder (which have been sifted together) and add stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in 300 degree oven for one hour and then turn on level tray and serve hot or cold, with whipped cream. Chocolate Fruit Cookies.
One cup raisins.

One-half package dates.
Three-fourths cup water.
Four tablespoons butter.
One cup sugar.
One and one-half cups flour.
One-half teaspoon soda.
One teaspoon baking powder.
One-half teaspoon cinnamon.
One-fourth cup cocoa.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One egg.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One cup nut meats.
Cool: sliced dates, water, butter and sugar in saucepan until dates are soft and syrup slightly thick. Drain; measure syrup (should be about three-fourths cup) and cool. Sift flour, soda, baking powder, cocoa, cinnamon and salt together. Add sour milk, beaten egg, vanilla, nut meats, dates and syrup. Drop mixture by rounded teaspoonfuls two inches apart, on well oiled baking sheet. Bake in slow oven (250 degrees) 15 minutes. About four dozen cookies; will keep fresh over long period.

Ham in Noodle Ring.
One-half pound sliced uncooked ham.
Six tablespoons flour.
Three cups milk.
One cup cooked peas.
One-half cup sliced stuffed olives.
Brown ham in hot skillet for 10 or 15 minutes. Add dry flour and stir until each piece of ham is coated with flour. Slowly add the milk, preferably hot, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Just before pouring into the center of the noodle ring, add the other ingredients.
Shrimp Creole.
Three cups hot boiled rice.
Two tablespoons fat.
Four stalks celery, chopped.
One tablespoon flour.
One teaspoon salt.
Two cups tomatoes.
Two cups peas.
One tablespoon vinegar.
One teaspoon sugar.
One and one-half cups cooked or canned shrimp.

Two tablespoons chili powder.
One cup water.
Cook onions and celery until brown in fat, add flour, seasonings, and add the water slowly. Cook for 15 minutes. Add tomatoes, peas, vinegar, sugar and shrimp. Continue cooking 10 minutes more or until shrimp are thoroughly heated. Mold rice either in cones or ring and surround with the shrimp creole.
Noodle Ring.
One and one-half cups broken egg noodles.
Two and one-fourth cups milk.
One-half pound American cheese.
Four eggs.
One and one-half cups soft bread crumbs.
One pint tomato, chopped.
Two tablespoons chopped parsley.
One tablespoon chopped onion.
Salt, pepper, paprika.
Cook the noodles in boiling salted water until tender; drain. Beat the milk in a double boiler, add the cheese which has been grated or broken up in small pieces and stir until melted. Beat eggs as light as possible and add to cheese mixture. Add other ingredients except the noodles and combine thoroughly. Add noodles and stir carefully. Pour into a well buttered ring mold. Set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 minutes. Serves eight to 10.

COCONUT COOKIES

One-fourth cup butter.
One cup sugar.
One-third cup sour cream.
One egg.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-half cup coconut.
One-half teaspoon lemon extract.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
Two cups flour.
Two-thirds teaspoon soda.
Cream butter and sugar. Add the rest of the ingredients. Mix well and chill. Place bits of dough on greased baking sheets. Bake.

APPLE ROLL WITH SAUCE
TEMPTING FAMILY DESSERT

Who doesn't like a spicy Apple Roll—especially when it is served with a tempting sauce. Apple Roll With Butterscotch Sauce. One and one-half cups flour. Two teaspoons sugar. One and one-half teaspoons baking powder. Three-fourths teaspoon salt. One-fourth teaspoon soda. Four and one-half tablespoons butter. One-third cup buttermilk. One and three-fourths cups finely chopped apples. One-half teaspoon ground cinnamon. One-half cup brown sugar. Mix and sift the flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and soda. Cut in the butter with two knives or rub in with the fingertips. Add the buttermilk and stir just enough to moisten the dry ingredients. Turn the dough onto a floured board, knead lightly for a few seconds and pat or roll out into a rectangular shape. Brush with butter, cover with the chopped apple and sprinkle with the cinnamon mixed with the brown sugar. Roll up like a jelly roll and place in a buttered baking pan. Brush with milk and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for about 30 minutes. Serves six. Serve with Butterscotch Sauce made as follows:
One cup brown sugar.
One-third cup water.
Few grains salt.
One-sixteenth teaspoon ground nutmeg.
One-fourth to one-half teaspoon ground cinnamon.
One-half cup heavy cream.
Cook the sugar, water and salt together over low heat, stirring constantly until the sugar is dissolved. Increase the heat slightly and cook to 236 degrees F. or until a soft ball forms when a little is dropped in cold water. Stir occasionally. Remove from the heat, add nutmeg, cinnamon and cream and mix well.

RABBIT PIE

One rabbit.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One onion, chopped.
Two tablespoons chopped green pepper.
Three tablespoons butter.
Pie pastry.
Wipe meat with a damp cloth. Cut into serving pieces. Put into a kettle and barely cover with boiling water. Add salt, cover partially, and simmer until tender, about one and one-half hours for a mature rabbit. Drain and measure the broth. Remove the meat from the bones in large pieces. Cook onion and green pepper in a skillet with melted butter, stirring frequently. For each cup broth, measure 1½ tablespoons flour and blend into fat with onion and green pepper. Add broth slowly and stir until thickened. Season to taste, using a dash of tobacco sauce, if liked. Add rabbit meat and turn into a baking dish. Cover with pastry rolled one-eighth inch thick and bake in a hot oven of 425 degrees F. until pastry is baked and browned and the rabbit mixture boiling.

SHRIMP SALAD BOWL

One can shrimp.
Two cups celery, diced.
Four hard-cooked eggs, diced.
One-fourth cup sweet pickles, chopped.
Two tablespoons lemon juice.
Two tablespoons pimientos, chopped.
One teaspoon salt.
One cup stiff mayonnaise.
Paprika.
Olive.
Mix half the mayonnaise with the shrimp, celery, eggs, pickles, lemon juice, pimientos and salt. Chill. Serve in a bowl lined with crisp lettuce. Top with the rest of the mayonnaise. Sprinkle with paprika and garnish with strips of olives.

HOLIDAY RUSH CALL FOR QUICK BINGBy Eliminating Details of licated Dishes Little T
Need Be Consumed

These are busy days for housewife, what with shopping for the holidays and cleaning to be considered. Were quick meals as a minimum than they are in those weeks just before Christmas. Whipping up an appetizing in short time is a real accomplishment. The emergency canned goods is one possibility. Elaborate details such as elaborate salads the preparation of a meal may be cut to a minimum.

Soup is a good starting point for an emergency meal. Even a plain can of tomato soup may come something unusual in cream or evaporated milk is here are three menus for meals:

Cream of tomato soup
Broiled chicken
Lettuce with dressing
Bread and butter
Fruit compote

For the broiled chicken use chops, pineapple rings and potatoes. To serve pineapple sprig with brown sugar brush with melted butter. Parsnip potatoes cut into slices in half lengthwise, with butter and season with and pepper. Preheat broiler for 10 minutes. Place chops in broiler for 10 minutes first on one side, then turn and broil five more. During the last five minutes of broiling, put in pineapple and sliced potatoes.

For the fruit compote use apricots, prunes and figs. Here is another menu plan around a broiled main course:

Soup
Grilled Hamburg patties
Hashed browned potatoes
String beans
Pickled beets
Bread and butter
Cream cheese with currant

Coffee
The main course of the following menu may be varied:

Tomato juice
Casserole of noodles and turnips Escalloped oysters
or Smothered pork chops

Bread and butter
Raw vegetables salad
Broiled peach halves with molasses

Tea
Rice may be served with the pork chops. For the ringed peaches, top canned halves with beaten egg which, when baked, has been added brown under broiler flame.

*Casserole of Noodles With Fish.
One package (6 oz.) egg noodles.
One green pepper, chopped.
One can condensed cream mushroom soup.
One cup milk.
Two hard cooked eggs.
One can (7 oz.) tuna fish.
One-fourth pound pimiento, sliced.
Two tablespoons bread crumbs.
Cook the noodles in boiling water until tender. Remove seeds from green pepper and cut in small pieces. In a large bowl, mix well the soup, milk, eggs, green pepper, tuna fish, pimiento and bread crumbs. Sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs over the top and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 30 minutes. Serves eight.

Escalloped Oysters.
Four cups soft bread crumbs.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Dash of pepper.
Dash of paprika.
One-half cup melted butter.
One pint oysters, drained.
One-third cup oyster liquor.
One-half cup milk.
Combine bread crumbs, salt, pepper and paprika. Add butter to mix lightly until well mixed. Sprinkle one-third of crumbs in bottom of greased baking dish. Arrange oysters in dish. Sprinkle crumbs over oysters, repeat, topping with remaining crumbs. Combine oyster liquor with milk and pour over oysters. Sprinkle crumbs with paprika, bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for about 30 minutes.

Smothered Pork Chops.
Six pork chops, cut one inch thick.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon sage.
Three tart red apples, cored.
Four tablespoons brown sugar.
Three tablespoons flour.
One tablespoon vinegar.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-third cup raisins.
Sprinkle chops with salt and sage. Sear slowly in hot oil, turning to brown both sides. Place in large baking dish. Slice apples in thick rings and arrange on chops, sprinkling with brown sugar. Sprinkle with flour and mix until brown, stirring constantly. Add water and stir until mixture boils, then add vinegar and raisins. Pour this sauce over chops and apples. Cover and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) for 15 minutes or until apples are tender.

HOLIDAY RUSH CALLS FOR QUICK BINNERS

By Eliminating Details of Complicated Dishes Little Time Need Be Consumed.

These are busy days for the housewife, what with shopping and baking for the holidays and housecleaning to be considered. Never were quick meals at a higher premium than they are in these crowded weeks just before Christmas. Whipping up an appetizing meal in a short time is a real accomplishment. The emergency shelf of canned goods is one possibility, the all-broiler main course, another. By eliminating details such as fancy sauces, complicated desserts and elaborate salads the preparation time of a meal may be cut to the minimum.

Soup is a good starting point for an emergency meal. Even the simplest can of tomato soup may become something unusual if thin cream or evaporated milk is added. Here are three menus for quick meals:

Cream of tomato soup
Broiled dinner
Lettuce with dressing
Bread and Butter
Fruit compote Cookies

For the broiled dinner use lamb chops, pineapple rings and sliced potatoes. To glaze pineapple rings sprinkle with brown sugar and brush with melted butter. To prepare sliced potatoes cut cooked potatoes in half lengthwise. Brush with butter and season with salt and pepper. Preheat broiler for 10 minutes. Place lamb chops in broiler for 10 minutes first on one side, then turn and broil five minutes more. During the last five minutes of broiling, put in pineapple rings and sliced potatoes.

For the fruit compote use canned apricots, prunes and figs. Here is another menu planned around a broiled main course:

Soup
Grilled Hamburg patties
Hashed browned potatoes
String beans
Pickled beets
Bread and butter
Cream cheese with currant jelly
Coffee

The main course of the following menu may be varied:

Tomato juice
Casserole of noodles and tuna fish Escalloped oysters
or Smothered pork chops
Bread and butter

Raw vegetable salad
Broiled peach halves with meringue
Ice Cream
Rice may be served with the oysters or pork chops. For the meringue peaches, top canned peach halves with beaten egg white to which sugar has been added and brown under broiler flame.

Casserole of Noodles With Tuna Fish.
One package (6 oz.) egg noodles, fine.

One green pepper, chopped.
One can condensed cream of mushroom soup.
One cup milk.
Two hard cooked eggs.
One can (7 oz.) tuna fish.
One-fourth pound pimiento cheese, sliced.

Two tablespoons bread crumbs, buttered.

Cook the noodles in boiling salted water until tender. Remove the seeds from green pepper and cook for at least 10 minutes in salted water, then chop.

Add milk to condensed cream of mushroom soup, a little at a time, and stir until smooth. Heat and add tuna fish, chopped green pepper, chopped eggs and cheese. Add the noodles and mix well. Then put into a greased casserole, sprinkle buttered bread crumbs over the top and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 30 minutes. Serves eight.

Scalloped Oysters.
Four cups soft bread crumbs.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Dash of pepper.
Dash of paprika.
One-half cup melted butter.
One pint oysters, drained.
One-third cup oyster liquor.
One-half cup milk.

Combine bread crumbs, salt, pepper and paprika. Add butter, toss lightly until well mixed. Sprinkle one-third of crumbs in bottom of greased baking dish. Arrange oysters on crumbs.

Sprinkle crumbs over oysters and repeat, topping with remaining crumbs. Combine oyster liquor with milk and pour over oysters. Sprinkle crumbs with paprika and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for about 30 minutes.

Smothered Pork Chops.
Six pork chops, cut one-inch thick.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon sage.
Three tart red apples, cored.
Four tablespoons brown sugar.
Three tablespoons flour.
Two cups hot water.
One tablespoon vinegar.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-third cup raisins.

Sprinkle chops with salt and sage. Sear slowly in hot skillet, turning to brown both sides. Place in large baking dish. Slice apples in thick rings and arrange on chops, sprinkling with brown sugar. Add flour to fat in skillet and cook until brown, stirring constantly.

Add water and stir until mixture boils, then add vinegar and raisins, and salt. Pour this sauce over chops and apples. Cover and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) for 30 minutes or until apples are tender.

SERVE EGGS NEW WAYS FOR MEATLESS DAYS

Meatless days call attention to eggs and different ways of serving them other than fried or scrambled.

Poached Eggs in Cheese Sauce.
Four tablespoons butter.
Four tablespoons flour.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
Dash of pepper.
Two cups milk.
One-half cup grated cheese.
One tablespoon lard.
Four eggs.

Heat the butter in a saucepan and stir in the flour and seasoning. Add cheese and stir until melted. Grease a baking dish with the lard and pour in the sauce. Let cool slightly to thicken and then make four hollows with the back of a spoon. Into each hollow break an egg. Cover and bake until eggs are firm.

FRUIT DROP COOKIES

Two teaspoons molasses.
One-half cup brown sugar.
One-half package seedless raisins.
Three-fourths cup flour.
One cup rolled oats.
One egg.
Five tablespoons shortening.
One-half cup pecans.
Few grains salt.
Add sugar gradually to fat and cream together until white and very light. Add well beaten egg and mix. Add raisins, nuts, oats and flour last. Mix lightly, press off side of tablespoon onto cookie sheet lined with oiled paper. Bake in moderate slow oven, 350 degrees F.

Christmas Cookies Give Pleasant Social Security

Goodness, Whether Plain or Fancy, Depends on Tenderness and Crispness of Finished Product.

A full cookie jar is always a pleasant sort of social security. At Christmas it becomes a necessity; not only the proverbial jar, but this time overflowing with stacks of gaily decorated, fancifully shaped cookies. No matter how many pies, cakes or puddings are baked, there are always those moments when cookies seem best to meet need or refreshment needs.

Cookies need not be elaborate or expensive to be good. Their goodness, whether plain or fancy, depends chiefly on how they are made. Crispness and tenderness are largely a matter of handling the dough, assuming that a well-balanced recipe is followed and that good ingredients are used.

Little Handling Needed. Since stirring and kneading develops the gluten in flour, it follows that one of the cardinal rules of cookies making is this: when adding the flour to the batter or dough, stir it only enough to mix all ingredients. Observing that rule keeps cookies tender.

To insure crispness, there is another rule: use only enough flour so that the dough may be easily handled. If the dough seems too soft to roll out or shape, chill it in the refrigerator. The chilling hardens the fat so that even a fairly soft dough can be comfortably handled. Rolling out only a portion of the dough at a time while the remainder is kept cold is also helpful.

For a good, uniform blending of flavors and spices in the dough, add them to the creamed shortening and sugar instead of waiting until the dough has been made. This saves stirring after the flour has been added.

With so many kinds of fancy cutters and cookie presses on the market it is possible to make even the simplest cookie unusual. Colored sugars, dragées, or chocolate shot also help to give them a festive appearance. Be sure that cookies are cool before storing them in tight covered containers. A warm cookie is apt to develop a mold. And last but not least for the baking process we recommend an oven watcher. If you delegate the task of watching the baking to one member of the family the task of making Christmas cookies is no longer a chore.

Anise Snaps. Three cups sifted cake flour. One teaspoon soda. One teaspoon cream of tartar. One-half teaspoon salt. One-half cup butter. One and one-fourth cups sugar. Two tablespoons whole anise seed.

Two eggs well beaten. Sift together three times the measured flour, soda, cream of tartar and salt. Cream butter, add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. Add eggs; then the flour mixture and anise seed. Shape into small balls about one inch in diameter. Sprinkle additional anise seed on greased baking sheet and place dough balls far apart on the sheet. Bake in a hot oven for about eight minutes.

Butter Balls. Three-fourths cup shortening (part butter). One cup brown sugar. One egg. Two cups flour. One-half teaspoon salt. Two teaspoons baking powder. One teaspoon vanilla. Topping Mixture. One-half cup chopped nuts. One-half cup sugar. Cream shortening and sugar. Add egg and vanilla. Sift dry ingredients and add. Chill dough. Roll into balls the size of marbles. Mix nuts and sugar and roll cookies in this mixture. Bake on greased cookie sheet in moderately hot oven (400 degrees) eight to 10 minutes. (These flatten while baking). Yield: About 72 small cookies.

Butterscotch Nut Sticks. One-half cup butter. Two cups brown sugar. Two eggs. Two cups flour. Two teaspoons baking powder. One-half teaspoon salt. One cup chopped nutmeats. Melt butter and add sugar. Blend thoroughly. When cooled, add beaten eggs and vanilla. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together and add to butter mixture. Add nuts. Mix only until well blended. Spread in greased rectangular pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) about 30 minutes. Cut in sticks and let cool in pan. Yield: About 42 sticks. This is a chewy cookie.

Pfeffernusse. One-fourth cup butter. One-half cup lard. One-half cup white sugar. One-half cup brown sugar. One and one-half cups maple syrup.

One-half cup cold coffee. Six cups flour. Two teaspoons baking powder. One-fourth teaspoon cloves. One-fourth teaspoon black pepper. One-fourth teaspoon cinnamon. One-fourth teaspoon allspice. Three-fourths teaspoon anise seed.

One-half cup chopped Brazil nuts. Cream shortenings and sugar. Add syrup and coffee. Sift flour, baking powder and spices together and add to liquid ingredients with nuts and anise seed, working the last portion of the flour with the hands if necessary. Cover and let ripen over night in icebox. When ready to bake, roll dough into long rolls, not more than three-fourths inches in diameter. Cut off in short bits, place on ungreased cookie sheet and bake 5 to 7 minutes in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees). These may be kept for a month or more, as the flavor improves with age. Store in covered container. Yield: About three quarts tiny cookies.

Lebkuchen. Four eggs. Two cups brown sugar. One and one-half cups flour. One teaspoon baking powder. One teaspoon cinnamon. One-half teaspoon cloves. Three-fourths cup raisins. Three-fourths cup chopped nuts. Three-fourths cup wine or coffee. Beat eggs well. Add sugar, cloves and cinnamon. Sift flour three times, add baking powder and sift into egg mixture alternately with the liquid. Mix nuts and raisins and sprinkle with a little of the flour. Add to other mixture and beat well. Pour into a greased pan and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) for about 15 minutes. When slightly cool cut into strips or squares.

Coconut Date Bars. One and one-fourth cups sifted cake flour. One and one-fourth teaspoons double-acting baking powder. One-half teaspoon salt. One cup sugar. Two eggs, well beaten. One tablespoon melted butter. One cup finely cut dates. One cup shredded coconut. One tablespoon hot water. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Add sugar gradually to eggs, beating thoroughly. Add butter; then dates and coconut, mixing thoroughly. Add flour, alternating with water, beating well. Turn mixture into two greased pans, 8x8x2 inches, spreading batter thin. Bake in slow oven (325 degrees) 30 to 35 minutes.

PLANKED SALMON CARRIES QUICK-DINNER APPROVAL

For a quick dinner this planked salmon with buttered spinach and glazed beets should meet with approval:

Planked Salmon Savannah.
Two cups canned salmon.
One-half cup evaporated milk.
Two tablespoons chopped onion.
One bay leaf.
Three tablespoons butter.
Four tablespoons flour.
Two eggs, separated.
One-half teaspoon salt.

GRILLED CHOP PLATTER

Heat juice from salmon, milk, onion, bay leaf in a double boiler. Blend butter and flour, then add hot liquid and stir until smooth, about 10 minutes. Stir in beaten yolks, seasonings, parsley. Cool and combine with flaked salmon. Shape six cutlets. Roll in flour, then in slightly beaten egg whites and bread crumbs. Butter and place on a greased plank or heat-proof platter. Border with mashed potatoes and brown in a hot oven (450 degrees).

Vitamin "D" of Prime Importance in Winter Enables Body to Make Use of Calcium and Phosphorus by Aiding Absorption of These Minerals.

Winter, with its short and dark days and its usual supply of fog and smoke, is here in earnest. And with it comes a need for extra consideration for the supply of vitamin D, the vitamin that plays its part in good development of bones and teeth, and in the prevention of rickets in children.

Only a few foods naturally contain this vitamin in important quantities. Many foods, however, and also the human skin, contain small quantities of certain wax-like substances which are changed into vitamin D by the ultra violet rays of the sun. On winter days we cannot count on sunshine to form vitamin D by irradiation of body surfaces. With the exception of our Southern states, what little sunshine there is on winter days is poorly supplied with vitamin-building ultra violet rays. Such rays as there are do not pass through fog, smoke or ordinary window glass.

Aside from the vitamin D that is produced in the body there are only a few excellent sources, fish liver oils, and egg yolks if the hens have had a diet high in vitamin D. Any egg yolk, however, is a good source, as are butter, salmon and sardines. Liver, cream, whole milk and oysters contain a little of this vitamin.

With so few chances to supply enough vitamin D in foods that are used in the diet of the infant and young child, it is not surprising that nutrition experts now recommend that every child under two years of age should have two teaspoons of cod-liver oil, or an equivalent amount of vitamin D, from some other source daily, except when exposed to the direct rays of the summer sun. It is desirable for many children to continue taking cod-liver oil at least in the winter throughout childhood, to assure a good bone and tooth structure.

Protective Vitamin.
Expectant and nursing mothers, as well as children, require a liberal supply of vitamin D, both for their own protection and that of the infants. New cavities in teeth are not a necessary experience of the expectant and nursing mother, as was formerly thought. Damage to the teeth is believed to be an evidence that the diet was lacking in one of the three principal bone-building essentials—calcium, phosphorus, vitamin D. But as in other periods of life, there may be other causes.

No amount of vitamin D can build bones and teeth in a child's body, without the help of the "building stone" materials, calcium and phosphorus. Plenty of milk is essential to supply these minerals. And a diet well-balanced in all respects—plenty of fruits, fresh vegetables, and eggs, as well as cereals and meats—is always a boost toward the desired goal of buoyant health through childhood and into adult life.

Vitamin D enables the body to make the best use of the calcium and phosphorus supplied in food, by aiding the absorption of these minerals from the digested food in the intestine. The blood accordingly carries more building materials to the bones, and a harder, more healthy bone structure is formed.

Nutrition specialists usually make their recommendations for adding vitamin D to the diet in terms of cod-liver oil. Cod-liver oil, the oldest known remedy for rickets, still remains the cheapest and most easily secured, reliable source of vitamin D in the diet.

America imports nearly all (about 95 per cent) of the cod-liver oil it uses, and nearly 6,000,000 gallons came into the country last year.

Since most of this cod-liver oil comes in large shipments, often as much as 1000 barrels, a large amount of the nation's vitamin D

INDULGE IN PRE-HOLIDAY CHEER WITH CRANBERRY SHERBET

CRANBERRY in some form will help make any holiday meal a success. In case you want to indulge in a little pre-holiday cheer try this sherbet with roast beef.

Cranberry Sherbet.
Four cups cranberries.
One cup boiling water.
Two cups sugar.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
One-half cup orange juice.
Two egg whites.
Cook cranberries and water for 10 minutes. Add sugar, salt and orange juice and put through a sieve. Cool. Turn into refrigerator tray and freeze until mushy. Add beaten egg whites and continue freezing until firm.

supply readily comes under the surveillance of the Food and Drug Administration of the United States Government.

Cod-liver oil shipments are tested in Government laboratories while the oil is held at the port of entry. If the samples of oil fail to meet the Government standard of 85 U. S. P. (United States Pharmacopeia) or international units of vitamin D per gram (about 300 units to the teaspoon) the shipment must be exported, or destroyed.

Cod-liver oil is not entitled to the name "cod-liver oil" unless it meets this standard, according to Dr. E. M. Nelson, chief of the vitamin division of the Food and Drug Administration. Shippers and manufacturers are required to "play safe" and most of the cod-liver oil accepted for distribution in this country contains more than the required number of units per gram. On the average, this acceptable oil contains at least 350 U. S. P. or international units in each teaspoonful.

Government standards have been established for two other types of vitamin D preparations, viosterol and cod-liver oil emulsions. Viosterol must contain at least 10,000 U. S. P. or international units of vitamin D per gram (36,000 units per teaspoon) and cod-liver oil emulsions must be at least half cod-liver oil. Viosterol is prescribed in drops, and five drops daily is all that is usually needed to prevent development of rickets.

But the Government does not stop with preparations for which there are legal standards, in safeguarding the nation's vitamin D supply. All vitamin D preparations must live up to the claims on their labels, whenever these claims are expressed in units or in "dosages."

Testing samples of cod-liver oil, and other preparations and foods for their vitamin D content, is a slow process, although the time required has been officially shortened from 10 to 7 days during the past year. Only biological tests can be used for vitamin D, that is, the food must actually be fed to animals to see how it makes their bones grow. While rats are generally used because scientists have reason to believe that rats respond to vitamin D in almost exactly the same way that human beings do.

Chemists are now developing short cut processes for measuring the very minute quantities of some of the other vitamins in foods. A satisfactory chemical method of measuring vitamin C, for instance, has been in use for some time. But so far, there are no prospects for any of these hurry-up tests for vitamin D. For one reason, vitamin D is present in such very minute quantities, even in the so-called "rich" sources.

Vitamin D is being added to natural and commercially produced foods, in various ways. Sometimes D is added by irradiation, that is, exposing the food to the rays of an ultra-violet lamp. Sometimes a concentrated form of vitamin D is added directly to the food. Or irradiated yeast or other very potent sources of vitamin D are fed to cows to make their milk richer in the vitamin.

Vitamin D milk, enriched with the vitamin in various ways, is one of a few of these products sufficiently standardized so that it may be labeled as containing a definite number of units to the quart. Irradiated mushrooms on the bone side of the chop contracts upon heating and closes the pocket. Pork chops after stuffing, are browned on both sides in a hot skillet, a small amount of liquid added, the pan covered, and the chops are cooked slowly until done. It is very important that pork chops be cooked very slowly until thoroughly done, in order to develop the rich, delicious flavor which every one likes.

STUFFED PORK CHOPS ARE COLD WEATHER FAVORITES
Pork chops are a winter favorite with every family, and when cut thick and stuffed with a savory bread dressing, they are doubly appreciated. But there is a right and wrong way to prepare them.

For stuffing, pork chops should be cut thick and the pocket should be made by cutting into the chop from the side next to the bone. When cut in this way no toothpicks will be needed to hold in the dressing, as the membrane on the bone side of the chop contracts upon heating and closes the pocket. Pork chops after stuffing, are browned on both sides in a hot skillet, a small amount of liquid added, the pan covered, and the chops are cooked slowly until done. It is very important that pork chops be cooked very slowly until thoroughly done, in order to develop the rich, delicious flavor which every one likes.

RIPE OLIVE TUNA SANDWICH
One seven-ounce can tuna fish.
One-half cup mayonnaise.
Five drops Tabasco sauce.
Two-thirds cup chopped walnut meats.
One cup chopped ripe olives.
One canned pimiento, chopped.
Drain tuna fish; flake and combine with mayonnaise and Tabasco sauce, blending thoroughly. Add nut meats, olives and pimiento and mix well. Sufficient for six or eight sandwiches.

Appetite.
Another modern use for the old fashioned apple is "appetite," a fast candy-like product suitable for holiday and company meals. Use four cups of apple pulp, four cups sugar, one-eighth teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon of orange extract, four tablespoons gelatin, one cup of cold water and three cups of nut meats, chopped.

For the apple pulp, cut the apples and cook them until tender, using apples which will cook up. Put the pulp through a sieve. Then add the sugar and salt and cook until very thick so that when it drops from a spoon it retains its shape. Remove the pulp from the stove, add the gelatin that has been softened in cold water. Mix well, being sure that the gelatin is thoroughly dissolved. Add the nut meats and orange extract when the mixture is slightly cool. Pour into buttered pans about three-fourths inch thick. When firm cut into pieces and roll in powdered sugar.

NEW DRESSING AND BASTING FOR BAKED CHICKEN NOW IN OR

The roast chicken season is here, and new recipes to put the fam- ily before the family in more really appetizing culinary. There's no resisting the bak- ing of roast fowl basted in a delicious dressing and stuff- ing calls for a small portion of the same liquefied mixture of the binding agency.

Fruit Glazed Roast Chicken
One roasted chicken (2 1/2 pounds dressed).
Fruit and pepper.
Eight and one-half cups water.
One-half cup melted butter.
One-half cup finely cut celery.
One-third cup sliced onion.
Three-fourths cup minced parsley.
Three-fourths cup chopped sliced ripe olives.
One teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon sage.
Pepper to taste.
One and one-half cups peach or apple sauce.
Prepare chicken for roast- ing. Sprinkle inside and out with salt and pepper. Heat butter in a kettle. Add bread cubes and stir about five minutes. Add vegetables, olives and season- ings and stir until bread cubes are lightly brown and vegeta- bles are wilted. Remove from fire and add fruit and celery. Stir one-half to three hours or until tender. If evaporation is rapid, add water as needed. Cover when chicken is sufficiently basted. Any otherectar of the whole variety—apricot, plum, peach—makes an equally deli- cious and stuffing binder for chicken.

If metal tops come off shoot dip them in mucilage. This stiffen the ends and make it to put them through eyelets.

The word "lady" originally meant "giver," and was applied to the wives of noblemen who were bread to the needy.

SMALL PRICE LOSSES MARK QUICK STOCK LIST TRADE

Leaders Are Subjected to Mild Selling Pressure
a Few Aircrafts, Rails and Specialties Make Minor Gains.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—With a few exceptions, stocks drifted lower in today's market, leaders generally yielding fractions to a point or so.
Brokers attributed the setback partly to a little more year-end tax selling and to some fresh apprehension over European events resulting from the growing Italian desire for French-owned territory. The British pound was under pressure and French francs dipped in terms of the dollar. Foreign exchange markets were ragged.
Wall street derived considerable comfort from the fact that volume dwindled noticeably on the decline.
Transfers were 739,150 shares, or more than 300,000 below yesterday's rallying session.

A handful of aircrafts, utilities, rails and specialties gave a fairly good account of themselves, but most other groups slipped rather easily.

Among the Losers.
Prominent losers were Bethlehem
Steel, Chrysler, General Motors,
United States Rubber, J. I. Case, Anacosta, Kennecott, Sperry, Texas Corporation, Transamerica and American Commercial Alcohol.
Resistant were Glenn Martin, Electric Auto-Lite, American Telephone and Telegraph, Republic Steel, Santa Fe, U. S. Gypsum, Goodrich, C. C. Penney and Sears Roebuck.

Bonds were uneven. Italian dollar futures were in supply. Grain futures tilted forward. Other commodities were mixed. Wheat at Chicago was up 1/4 to 1/2 cent.
Cotton gained 1/4 to 1/2 cent.
Sterling came back a trifle near mid-afternoon and was quoted at $4.87-1/2, off 11-16 of a cent. The French currency was .004 of a cent lower at 2.63 cents.

On the "big boys" U. S. Smelting and Devoe & Ray were weakened, the former following weakness in yesterday's dividend omission.
Universal Pictures preferred was up sharply to a new high for the year.

Orders for 13,000 tons of rails by Norfolk & Western drew some support for steel shares on the supposition other carriers would have to come into the market soon.
In addition, steel, as well as motors, were aided by demands for metal from the automobile makers. General Motors announced a brisk upturn in November, 1937, over October and November, 1937.
Disparity between the domestic and export copper rates, despite heavy purchases abroad and a cut in refinery allowances overseas, interfered with copper issues.

Overnight dealings were quiet.
Bank clearings in New York City, which swung up to a new peak for the year, and other cities throughout the country, showed totals well above the previous period totals.
The corresponding year-ago figures were 120 and 110 per cent, respectively, above last year's and the preceding week.

At the beginning of foreign currency dealings, the dollar was off 1/2 of a cent at $4.87 1/2. The French franc was .004 of a cent lower at 2.63 cents.

GOVERNOR OF MEMEL QUIT; PRO-NAZI ELECTION PREDICTED

Successor to Be First Representing Minority Since Area Was Given to Lithuania.

KAUNAS, Lithuania, Dec. 8.—Jouzas Kubilius, Lithuanian Governor of Memel, and his deputy resigned today.

As a concession to Memel's Nazis, the Governor's successor will be a Memellander, the first to hold the post since the former German territory was given to Lithuania in 1923.

The Nazis dislike Kubilius because he vetoed a number of bills they backed in the Diet prior to the recent abrogation of martial law in the territory.

His resignation was regarded as a prelude to a complete change in Lithuanian policy concerning Memel. A shift toward German favor was expected to follow Sunday's elections in Memel.

Medill McCormick's Estate. ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Dec. 8.—Medill McCormick, killed in a mountain fall near here last summer, left an estate valued at $2,072,872, appraisers reported to Bernalillo County Probate Court yesterday. The youth left no will and his mother, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, was named administratrix of the estate. He was a grandson of the late Mark Hanna and son of the late Medill McCormick of Chicago.

CITIES WOULD LEVY ON U. S. BONDS IF THEIRS ARE TAXED

Municipal Law Institute to Work for Such Legislation in Event Federal Exemption Ends.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—City attorneys from 60 municipalities asked for legislation yesterday to give states the right to tax Federal securities and salaries in event the Federal Government ends its exemption for state securities and salaries.

The resolution was adopted at the concluding session of the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers after Henry Parkman Jr., corporation counsel of Boston, had urged removal of the tax immunity which state, city and Federal bonds now have.

Parkman contended Congress could enact the necessary legislation without a constitutional amendment. He said approximately 50 billion dollars worth of bonds now were tax exempt.

Spent $1575.55 in Campaign. JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Dec. 8.—State Superintendent Lloyd W. King told the Secretary of State yesterday he spent $1575.55 in his successful Democratic campaign for re-election. King listed total contributions of $1315 including $140 from the employees of his department. Today was the last day for filing election expense accounts.

6 CIO MEN TO BE ARRAIGNED SATURDAY ON VIOLENCE CHARGE

United Automobile Workers Indicted in Connection With Strike at Chrysler Plant.

By the Associated Press. NEW CASTLE, Ind., Dec. 8.—Prosecutor M. M. Edwards indicated yesterday he would seek early trials for six young New Castle men indicted on assault and ## battery charges by a grand jury which investigated reports of violence in a labor dispute at the Chrysler Corporation plant here.

The men, to be arraigned before Henry Circuit Judge John H. Morris Saturday, are Crooby Anderson, Kent Romine, Hiram Jones, James Tucker, Virgil Gavin and George E. Lewis. The first four were arrested Tuesday after the jury reported and Gavin and Lewis yesterday. They are free under $500 bond each.

Edwards said all belonged to the United Automobile Workers of America, which closed the automobile parts factory down four days over the week-end in a drive to organize all the 3800 employees. The UAWA now claims 96 per cent of the force.

AMERICA'S FIRST GIN IS EXTRA DRY

NOT SWEET

If your taste is for dryer drinks

As America's first gin distiller, we cater to the American taste for dry drinks. Fleischmann's is not a liqueur type gin. It is extra dry—not sweet. That's one reason why it blends so beautifully with vermouth and fruit juices. Another plus in its favor is the quality of the spirits that go into Fleischmann's Gin. Every drop is Fleischmann-distilled from grain to bottle. Try it in your home. Call for it at the bar. See if you don't agree that it makes a better beverage.

Case Records of a PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Of Northwestern University

D ID you ever feel jilted or cheated of a loved one by death? Then you can fully sympathize with Hilda. But if you want to regain your joy in living, send for my BLUEPRINT FOR HAPPINESS.

CASE K-171: Hilda J., aged 41, is the wife of a successful baker. "I've been married for 18 years," she began, "and have always wished I could have had some children, but we were never so fortunate. We thought some of adopting a couple of children but never did. "Then about 12 years ago my husband brought me a black puppy. I named him Ace. He has been just like a child to me. I loved him so. But he died last month, and I can't get over the shock. I just walk the floor and cry. My husband stayed home with me for a week, and then took me to visit a sister, but it didn't do any good. "I can't forget Ace. I never belonged to a church or any clubs, and have never made friends with my neighbors. The only friend I have in this town died a year ago, so you can see I am all alone while my husband is at work.

"I USED TO TALK to Ace, and tell him that as long as he was with me, I'd be happy. After his death, my husband suggested that I get another dog, but I couldn't stand it to have another take his place. My sister says I ought to move away, but I can see the little marks on the doors where Ace used to come in and out. I just can't leave all of these fond memories and reminders.

"Dr. Crane, I am losing weight and growing very thin. I just can't get over the death of my dog. Sometimes I feel as if I were losing my mind. What can I do? I just cry every time I see any reminder of Ace around the house."

DIAGNOSIS: Hilda demonstrates the strong maternal attachment that can develop between mother and child, or a mature woman and her cat, dog or even a canary, goldfish or geranium. Many thoughtful persons may laugh at the devotion a woman may pay to a pet. But there is tragedy in such a case as this of Hilda. She is almost as bereaved as if she had lost her only son.

Love is a matter of many emotional habits that we develop with reference to some person, animal or thing. Whether we lose our child, our kitten or, like Silas Marner, our cherished gold, we feel disconsolate. It is hazardous, therefore, from the emotional angle to carry all of our eggs in one basket. Emotional balance and stability depend on our growing many social roots which will anchor us firmly in times of storm.

HOW MANY SOCIAL roots do you have? Do you belong to church, to any clubs, to civic groups? Have you parents or brothers and sisters? Have you a sweetheart or a mate? Children? Friends? How many speaking acquaintances do you possess, including the sales clerks and neighbors, or business associates? Do you go to parties or entertain in your home?

Unhappy people will obtain a low score on such a test for happiness, while those who are gay and delighted with life will usually have a high score. I urged Hilda to join a church, and throw herself deliberately into social affairs. It will be hard work at the start, for all habits are slow and difficult to develop. But happiness and love are habits. They must be developed in this laborious manner.

Send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope in care of this paper if you wish a copy of my BLUEPRINT FOR HAPPINESS. It will show you how to forget your sorrows and heartache.

Return of Elsie Janis

By Inez Robb

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. "H. I never could see that double hitch when Will Rogers did it, either. It was always too fast for the eye," said Elsie Janis critically, as she watched 11-year-old Bill Walker flip his larlet around the banquet room of the Hotel Dauphin.

"Yes, you're good," said Elsie, absent-mindedly picking up one of the smaller ropes and giving it a few expert twirls. "But remember what I said about your patter. Don't say 'and now ladies and gentlemen, I'm going to do a double hitch and I hope you'll like it' as if you were about to add 'and the heck with you if you don't.' " "I hope you didn't mind waiting," she said a few minutes later as we sat in the sunny sitting room of her apartment in the same hotel. "The boy's father was in the A. E. F. and he wrote and told me where he had seen me in France. So I told him to bring the kid over and I'd see what he could do. And he's really remarkable."

SO THE BOYS of the A. E. F. haven't forgotten that Elsie, despite 10 years of uninterrupted retirement, was once the brightest luminary and mimic of the international theater. At last it has lured her back for a series of Sunday night entertainments at the Music Box, beginning Jan. 1.

"I'm just going to prow around the theater and do a little gabbing," is all she's willing to say about her scheduled return to Broadway. "Even if I knew whom I was going to impersonate, I wouldn't tell."

Elsie is much more excited over the fact that her youthful husband, Gilbert Wilson, with whom she is divinely happy, is to have a part in Noel Coward's new show, "Set to Music," starring Bea Lillie. When Elsie, 42, married Gilbert, 26, on New Year's eve, 1932, the Broadway wise guys said it wouldn't last six months.

"I ALWAYS SAID I'd retire when I was 40, and I did," said Elsie, neither chic, glamorous nor beautiful according to 1938 Broadway standards, but so slim and mercurial, so full of vim, vigor and personality as to make those other qualities seem like so much Hollywood pap.

"I'll be 50 on March 16. Maybe a new cycle is beginning for me. Maybe this is the chance Gilbert has been needing." These were the thoughts that decided Elsie Janis to quit her small home in Beverly Hills and return to Broadway. Not money, of which she once had plenty and now has barely enough, or fame, of which she had all she wants, has tempted her once in the past 10 years. For she has had, on an average of once every three months, far more lucrative offers from stage, screen and radio than the one she has just accepted.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU—By Bob Burns

I USE to think that a picture actor was bothered more than anybody else because it looks like everybody that can play an instrument, sing or make funny faces expects the actor to get 'em in the movies, but now I'm beginnin' to believe that a picture actor ain't got no troubles at all.

The other day I was made mayor of Canoga Park and the first day I drove through town. I stuck out my hand to make a left-hand turn and 14 office seekers swung it before the light changed.

Semi-Circular Canals Center Of Equilibrium

They Are Closely Connected With Eyes and Feeling Of Nausea.

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

ONE of the curious triumphs of science is that no one ever speaks any more of the five senses, but only of the six. The sixth, of course, that of equilibrium, began to be emphasized in textbooks on physiology only a few years ago, or, at best, decades ago. The organs for equilibrium and posture are the semi-circular canals. These little bony canals are anatomically by pure accident because they do not necessarily belong there, set in the bony part of the skull near the inner ear. It is as if you cut three doughnuts in half and then joined the open ends. One doughnut would be flat, one upright and one downward and somewhat askew. Now imagine that these were hollow and that a fluid circulated inside them, and that they were lined with a membrane very sensitive to the movements of the fluid.

You know when you are standing erect, when you are lying on your side and when you are lying down because of the movements of the fluid in these canals. In the fish the organ of equilibrium has a little stone in it, or rather, several little particles of stone which move around on change of position and give the sensation of posture and position in space. Perhaps the stone gives a stronger sensation. At least the fish has a marvelous perception of itself in space, as anyone can tell by watching his goldfish.

The nerve from the canals is, for another anatomical reason which has no basis in logic, mixed up with the nerve of hearing and ends in the cerebellum. So disturbances of the middle ear and of hearing are very likely to be associated with dizziness. Meniere's disease, the classical example of this, can be treated by cutting the optic nerve and nerve of equilibrium.

The great practical interest in the end organs of equilibrium today is in connection with aviation. Perhaps because it has been put on a commercial basis, tests for aviation pilots all include a test of the organs of equilibrium.

Some of these tests are very simple, but most of them very complex and curious. The simple ones are simply on the old principle of the merry-go-round or the old blindfold game of pin-the-donkey. The aviation candidate is put into a swivel chair, swung around in one direction and then requested to get out of the chair and walk. If his canals are normal he should stagger in a certain direction, depending on which direction he has been rotating.

If you are asked to close your eyes and then put your forefinger rapidly on the end of your nose, you can do it perfectly. Your sight is not necessary to accomplish this feat; only your sense of position in space. But if you are walked around blindfolded, you can't do it, and the drunk can't do it. That is one of the aviation tests.

The most curious and complex of these is the caloric test. If hot water is poured into the ear when the head is in a certain position,

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. J. L. M.: "How accurate is a blood count for determining appendicitis (chronic)?"

Answer: It is valuable (rather than accurate) as a factor in diagnosis in connection with other symptoms and signs in acute appendicitis. It has no value in chronic appendicitis, even if chronic appendicitis exists, which I personally doubt.

"Every One of Us Is a Lonely Soul in Revolt"

But, Says Columnist, We Cling to Idea Our Own State Is Unique.

By Elsie Robinson

SOMETHING ought to be done about these Souls in Revolt. Ever since the war they've been increasing in number. Now they're swarming all over the place. They're at least one in every family and office gang. They practically support Uncle Sam's postal system. And you never can tell. The most stodgy guy who comes around to sell you a new bath brush will haul off and confess he's one, if you give him a chance. In fact, you don't even need to give him a chance. He'll make his own. For if there's one thing above all others which a Soul in Revolt likes to do it's to describe his symptoms.

That's how most of our columnists manage to eat. By listening to S. I. R. symptoms. Every mail, in they come by the dozen, the score, the hundreds. All uttering and all in revolt.

Now get me right. I'm not sneering. There's nothing I have more sympathy for, or understand better than a Soul in Revolt. I should. I've hung up some pretty good medals in that line myself. And still do. Smatter of fact, that's how I happened to accumulate the following valuable tips on the subject, which should be read at least once daily by every S. I. R.

Sp'ose you are a Soul in Revolt . . . what of it? What makes you think that's front page news? So are 120,999,998 other American citizens. Sensitive? So are they. High-sounding? And idealistic? You're nothing on them! Lonely? Misunderstood? You ought to hear them tell it!

Am I kidding? I am not. I'm simply stating everybody's secret. We're all Souls in Revolt. Rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief, doctor, lawyer, Indian chief—and The Friendly—each and every one of us is lonely, wistful, rebellious at fate. And each one of us feels that this is a unique situation.

But it isn't. If we were all skinned and our souls laid out like so many dead onions, you couldn't tell one from another. Which, if you're able to take it, is a very salutary fact. For there's the answer to all your own loneliness and bewilderment, your bitterness and despair. How often you've cried—"If I could only find somebody who could understand me!" You can—without turning a hand-firm millionaires. Millions who are just as proud and high-strung, just as hurt and heart-hungry. Millions whose misery you might, through—or comfort—and be comforted in turn by that companionship.

Then why don't you? Why don't we all? Why do we go our solitary way, hugging our sore soul, when we might pool 'em all and make a party of it? Ah—there's the catch. We don't because we don't want to! What's the fun of being a Soul in Revolt if everybody else is like that too? How can we capitalize our sensitiveness if the other fellow is also a shrinking flower? Indeed, what becomes of all our grand act if we once admit that it's just part of the regular program? So we don't admit it. We go on being Souls in Revolt. Revolt against what? Mostly—I suspect—against being found out.

A Spot on the Wall. If you have tried everything you have read about to remove the ugly spot on the wall paper, figure out if you cannot change the pictures or hang a tapestry over the spot, in this way obliterate it until you can afford to repaper. So often our faults in the home can be hidden and we never think of covering them up.

Reception :-: :-: By Emily Post

DEAR Mrs. Post: (a) Don't you think it rude for the bride party to be seated comfortably at a table at the wedding reception while all the other guests are served from a buffet? (b) And don't you think it is the ultimate in discourtesy for the bride's family to provide champagne for the wedding party and a sticky punch for the others?

Answer: (a) No, it is quite all right for the bride party to be seated at the table. In fact, it is the rule rather than the exception. (b) I agree with you. There should be champagne for all or else for none. In no case is there an excuse for a "sticky" punch unless of course you think all beverages sticky except champagne!

Dear Mrs. Post: Do you know of any cases where the hostess gives a bridge party for her bridge-loving friends and does not herself play bridge? Even if you haven't heard of such parties, do you think it a curious thing to do, and could it be questioned by any one?

Answer: I know of not only one case, but hundreds. In fact, I've done it myself scores of times. But even among people who play bridge all the time and who like it better than anything else, a hostess very often leaves herself out. For one reason, she is then able to substitute for one who may give out at the last moment; for a second, she is ready to pay attention to her guests, which she isn't free to do if she herself is playing—especially if tea is brought in during instead of after the games. Of course, when she is having only one table she usually plays.

IF YOU ASK My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr:
AM just another one who enjoys your column. There is one subject in which I am much interested; that is the overworking of practical nurses, who sometimes are on duty 24 hours. I happen to know two, one a fine young woman who is well-educated and has had over two years professional training; the other experienced. They work long hours for people who pay a paltry sum. They are worn threadbare.

One nurse was on a baby case. She had to answer telephones, get meals, do the baby's laundry and answer the door. At this place the husband comes home dead tired but gets his rest. The nurse is dead tired, but must keep on duty in order to keep the place.

What I cannot see is, that although St. Louis is so far advanced in other ways, this imposition is not faced. Wouldn't it be a fine thing to establish an hour limit for the practical nurse? Another thing is, that the pay is not established; sometimes these nurses are hired at one price and paid another.

R. W. M.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
THE BOY I GO with takes me to nice places, is very polite and always acts the perfect gentleman; but he never dresses up. He has nice clothes; I have seen them. Do you think I should tell him about it or just quit going with him?

BEWILDERED.

If he is just lazy and slovenly, you really have a right to let him know your disapproval in some way; because, although he probably does not suspect it, this carelessness shows indifference and disrespect to you. You might occasionally point out a boy who is neat and trim, showing your appreciation of his neatness; and, also, should there be another boy in your crowd, or among your acquaintances, who is indifferent to looks, you might cite him with a little curve of the lip and an expression of disdain.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
I THOUGHT IT only proper to take the liberty of answering the letter signed "An Interested Parent" to express my thoughts on the public schools of our country. I cannot understand how anyone can say that there are false activities in the high schools, and that the modern youths are turned out as "Hill Billies." I also disagree with the statement, that youths on graduation from our schools fill our institutions. Usually the people with the least learning are the so-called "bad eggs." Home rule is a very fine thing, but the youths of today must have higher learning; learning which parents are unable to give them.

The laws of nature may be handled in many ways and by different methods. We must remember that we are now in a modern world and not a world of 25 or 30 years ago; and on our faith in the public schools system the youth of our next generation depends. We are certainly fortunate in having such an educational system and it is up to the people to put their faith and confidence in this system. Our present economic condition is such that changes are necessary even in the schools and therefore parents should take this into consideration before criticizing our methods.

W. M. W.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
I SEE SO MANY methods about how to reduce fat, but none about how to gain. I have been married 14 years and have had seven children. I am 30 years old and 5 feet tall and I weigh 91 pounds. I should like to gain 10 pounds, at least.

MRS. K.

I have a folder, "Gaining and Developing," which may be very helpful to you and which I will mail to you if you will send me self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Dear Martha Carr:
WILL YOU PLEASE print the names and addresses of places where ballroom dancing is taught free of charge and the day and time?

JESSIE VADA, MARIE AND DORIS.

Dancing is taught free of charge at the following community centers: Mullaphy, Sherman, Buder and Soudard. Dancing is also taught, for a small fee, at Christ Church Cathedral, 1210 Locust street and the Maryland Club of the Convent of Helpers of the Holy Souls, 4012 Washington boulevard.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
I thought you might be able to help us for Christmas. We are two boys 12 and 14 and a little girl 8 and a little boy 6. He just came out of the hospital and is in a cast and can't walk. All he talks about is Santa Claus and his daddy is out of work. But we know Santa Claus won't find us unless someone is kind enough to help. My mother is in a hospital. My little brother prays every night that Santa Claus will come. Thank you from the bottom of our hearts.

TWO BUDDIES.

Hollywood Happenings

By Harold Heffernan

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 8. Two outstanding stars who probably will be hunting new sponsors after the first of the year are Fred Astaire and Warner Baxter. Fred's last teaming picture with Ginger Rogers, "Carefree," hasn't won back the returns its investment demand, and RKO executives are said to feel that the dancing duo's new picture, "The Catfish," must be their last as a team—at least for a long time to come.

Astaire draws big money and has indicated in one previous sole picture without Ginger that he can't successfully travel alone, so RKO may be obliged to pass when his agreement expires Jan. 15.

Baxter, whose troubles can also be traced to high salary—he reportedly receives $7500 a week—up a straight seven-year contract with Twentieth Century-Fox at the conclusion of one more picture. His farewell chore, ironically enough, will be a remake of "The Coco Kid." His performance in the original, made in 1921, brought him that fat contract. Now the picture looks as a death warrant for his career.

Hollywood loves a winner, provided he keeps on winning. But it is quick to turn cold if the fellow gets a couple of bad breaks. Which brings us to the case of Victor Moore, now winning Broadway plaudits for his performance in the

An EXPERT on WINDOW DISPLAYS

Mrs. Grace Everest Is Believed Only Woman in Charge of Such Work in a Large Department Store.

By Marguerite Martyn

WHILE we are all enjoying the Christmas window displays in the stores downtown, gathering up the kids and making special trips of an evening to see them in their glory of light and movement, it should interest women to learn that a woman is responsible for one of the most elaborate of the window show displays.

Mrs. Grace Everest has been the power behind the ever-changing scene in Scruggs, Vandervoort and Barney's windows for the past four years. . . . She alone is responsible for the arrangements which focus attention on the wares being specially featured each week within the store. She directs the crews of artists, craftsmen and workmen who design, build and place the exhibits. In fact, she is responsible for everything that comes under the head of "display," both within the department store and in all the 34 windows surrounding the block wherein the store turns the best of its merchandise or the best of its bargain outward to attract attention of passer-by on the street.

It is quite a responsibility for anyone, and for a woman—well, it seems Mrs. Everest is the only woman display manager of a department store of this size in the country. She is, she believes, the only woman member of the National Display Men's Association, or at least was the only woman attending their convention last spring.

"There are women in charge of display in specialty shops and special departments in stores but none that I know of in charge of display for a complete department store," Mrs. Everest said. "I have seen a number of display women come and go," she added. "I don't know why they go unless it is that they just can't take it. It takes the strength and endurance of a horse. A race horse, at that. You have to do so much running and be in so many places at once. They are threatening here at Vandervoort's to put a bell on me so they can find me when they want me."

Cornered at last in her office, very much behind the scenes, down labyrinthine passageways, through stockrooms and workrooms on the eighth floor, Mrs. Everest seemed not at all the hurried, flustered and powerfully constituted person she described. She was a smartly dressed, middle-aged figure, a little sad and subdued as she spoke of being entirely alone in the world. Born in Kansas City, she lived in London most of her adult life, and no longer has any relatives except distant cousins, among them Mrs. Eugene Senseney and Mrs. Talton Francis of St. Louis.

"That may be why," she said, "I can give such wholehearted devotion to my work and love it so." Her expression changed to gladness as she really meant that. A little, it was 4 o'clock, the end of her working day, "for we begin an hour earlier and stop an hour earlier than the rest of the store," and "I don't take my work home with me," she said.

"There is some night work to be done at this season, sudden news breaking in some department that has to be covered in the windows. I try not to have any night work. I help the boys keep the windows lit at night when the store is closed and stocks put away. Then we don't want too many windows curtained off in the evening, for that is the time many of our window shoppers are abroad. For us in the display department, Christmas is over—it ends Thanksgiving day. It's Palm Beach season with us now."

How did she get into this most unusual work for a woman? "Just sort of insinuated myself into it," responded Mrs. Everest. "I came to Vandervoort's eight years ago, as stylist, I believe I was called, in home furnishings. My job was to go from room to room, draperies, rugs, carpets, pictures, lamps, wall paper, interior decorating and co-ordinate stocks, see that we had everything of a given period or style in each department. Stylings were all over the place in those days. There aren't so many now. Buyers, it has been found, can attend to co-ordinating stocks themselves. I can't quite recall how I gravitated into arranging windows. I helped the boys keep the windows lit at night when the store is closed and stocks put away. Then we were all taking charge of all the windows. It was during the depression when his first; the blacksmith pulling nails out of the hoof of an inquisitive and offended horse, and our own Post-Dispatch Hickory Hollow with the well-known characters of Grumpy, the bear, Inspector Bones, the hound, Billy Bunny and O'Hann, the "possum" singing carols in a swirling snow storm to the tune of Grumpy's woodnot banjo—all these are new and original.

"Only this morning Mr. Mayfield accosted me on the third floor, where many new gift displays have been set up for the holidays, and said, 'This all looks pretty extravagant to me.' I asked him if he had signed requisitions for display on the third floor. He couldn't say he had. 'Nor you won't be asked to,' said I. For the third floor I have used only materials left over and made over from last year. Except these evergreen wreaths which we have been weighed by his Equi-maux assistants, an artist painting a barnyard scene, a goose held by a peasant woman pulling at his beard, another goose squawking at his feet; the blacksmith pulling nails out of the hoof of an inquisitive and offended horse, and our own Post-Dispatch Hickory Hollow with the well-known characters of Grumpy, the bear, Inspector Bones, the hound, Billy Bunny and O'Hann, the "possum" singing carols in a swirling snow storm to the tune of Grumpy's woodnot banjo—all these are new and original.

ADOLESCENT RESPONSIBILITY

By Angelo Patri

HERE is a problem that faces many a mother at least once in a lifetime: "I have to go to the hospital and remain there for a month. I have a daughter, aged 18, who wants to take charge of the household during my absence. I thought I would have my sister come, but my daughter and she never got along well. There are three younger children, all in school. I don't know what to do to be wise."

I would vote to give Daughter a chance. First because it is always best for a family to be self-contained and self-helpful. If it is at all possible for the children and father to get along together without the presence of a relative, however loved, it is best for them to do so. The experience knits them together. They learn more of each other and learn to value each other's good points as well as to discount the less happy ones. By all means let the family see it through by themselves.

A girl of 18 is in the first flush of womanhood. She is eager to do for her family, eager to know how well she can manage in her mother's place. Feelings here at the head of the family gives her the dignity and the self-appreciation, that she needs at this time. The actual work, the actual responsibility will be an experience worth all it costs. Mothers ought not to wait for emergencies like this before giving their older daughters a chance to carry household responsibility. All girls, no matter what place they intend to occupy in the working world, should know how to manage a household. The only way they will ever learn is by actually taking hold and doing the job. If mother can go away for a time, so much the better, because the experience will be more practical. It is better not to have mother on hand when a question about how much baking powder, or what temperature in the oven is needed. A few burned biscuits are allowed every beginner, and until the allowance has been burned there is little chance of the perfect ones appearing.

One more suggestion that arises from my experience with such situations. When daughter is married and goes to her own home, let her have it all her way. Stay out. No matter if she doesn't know how to buy groceries, or make a pie, or flavor the soup. Stay out. Stay out until you are invited, and then don't be too eager to accept the invitation. Make yourself so scarce that your presence will be something to talk about.

Young people need to be left alone to learn about their own business. They have to learn first on their own, with each other, and that is better learned without outsiders. They need to fit themselves into the new scheme of living; that calls for first-hand experience. Mistakes will not be so bitter if there is nobody to say, "Why didn't you do as and the contrast of shining metal reflecting colored lights against soft velvet backgrounds produce some striking effects.

"I had seen a good deal done with tin in the way of wreaths and trees," said Mrs. Everest, "but the formalized animals, the slights and the amusing tin angels were our very own ideas."

All 34 windows are changed at least once a week throughout the year, Mrs. Everest told me, so I expected to see a regular Cain's warehouse of discarded scenery when she offered to show me through the studio and stock rooms, but there were hardly any trappings in view. Along narrow passageways she opened doors to show stores of manikins, fixtures, plaster statuary and papier mache ornaments neatly packed away. In the studio was one long table and in boxes and cupboards fabrics, cellophane, artificial flowers, were neatly stored. Here two men were fashioning background draperies and ornaments as needed.

"We don't want too many materials," explained Mrs. Everest. "There would be the temptation to use them and the more things the background, the less cluttering up with ornament, the better the window. The important thing to bear in mind is the display of the merchandise. A decorative setting that distracts attention from the merchandise defeats the main purpose, which is selling. Backgrounds should attract attention from a distance, as many of our window shoppers ride along in motor cars. We make sure our effects are visible and arresting from across the street. But as you come nearer, unless each piece of merchandise is given its due value in the picture, a pretty window is not worth a cent to the store."

Across Locust street in a warehouse the mechanical work is done by a corps of regular carpenters, painters and electricians augmented by additional workers seasonally. "I can give those boys my ideas but they can teach me more than I can teach them," their boss remarked generously. However, the nine "boys"—ranging in age from 22 to 42—who carry out her directions in the windows, she spoke of fondly as her own individual assistants. "They are all co-operative, dependable and adaptable in any emergency," she said. "They are all fine young gentlemen. I am quick to resent that sort of class consciousness you run up against in a department store that classifies them merely as 'winning trimmings' as if they were something apart. They are display men and very important in the selling force."

"You mean you came straight from merchandise into display work without any special training?" Mrs. Everest was asked.

"Merchandising, working in sales departments and accompanying buyers to market was the most essential part of my training," she replied. "You can't know too much about merchandise values when you are making a display. It is always the merchandise which suggests the decorative arrangement and I believe there are schools teaching window decorating but I haven't had time to attend one. Naturally, I keep in touch with what is being done in my line elsewhere in the country. I read all the trade journals. I study historical ornament and design and I get lots of ideas from the interior decorating magazines. But I must confess," she concluded, meditatively, "I do most of my decorating and arranging instinctively. By ear, I guess you would call it."

I told you?" Give the girl a chance. Start early to share the house with her. Learn early that she is a person in her own right, ready to carry her share of the world's work. Get out of her way and so help her mightily.

An Unorthodox But Logical Bid Of Five Hearts

Grand Slam a Laydown Though Illogical by Other Means.

By Ely Culbertson

Answers to Last Thursday's Questions.

QUESTION 49—Neither side vulnerable, the bidding proceeds:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	2 hearts	3 spades	4 hearts
You are South and hold:
♠ Q 10 6 5 2 ♠ 7 3 ♣ 4 3 ♣ 10 8 5

What call do you make?

Answer—You should pass. To give a first round control bid five hearts, which is absolutely nothing but trump support, and not even good distribution, is one of the worst errors in bridge. Partner could not possibly read such a raise and might be trapped into all sorts of fatal actions. (Twenty points demerit for two spades; 30 points demerit for any other bid.)

QUESTION 50—Both sides vulnerable, the bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	2 hearts	3 spades	4 hearts
You are South and hold:
♠ K 10 8 5 2 ♠ None ♣ K Q 6 3 ♣ K Q J 5

What call do you make?

Answer—You should bid five hearts. Admittedly, this is a "master bid," but a strictly logical one. It is the only method by which you can indicate first round control in your own partner's second bid suit. If you really had heart support, you would, of course, redouble. Hence your apparent "raise" is clearly readable as a cue bid. For full explanation see today's hand below. (No demerit for going back to spades, but take 20 points credit if you bid five hearts.)

QUESTION 51—Both sides vulnerable, the bidding proceeds:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	2 spades	3 spades	4 spades
You are South and hold:
♠ A Q J 9 4 ♠ A J 10 8 7 ♣ 6 ♣ J 9

What call do you make now?

Answer—You should bid four hearts. This is a "master bid," but a strictly logical one. It is the only method by which you can indicate first round control in your own partner's second bid suit. If you really had heart support, you would, of course, redouble. Hence your apparent "raise" is clearly readable as a cue bid. For full explanation see today's hand below. Reform investigators reported that Sister Aimes Semple McPherson, numerous movie stars and 500 others received honorary Battalion Fire Chief appointments in Los Angeles.

This is an old, old dodge in machine politics. It could be stamped out by requiring that honorary fire fighters lug honorary hose at every two-alarm fire.

"My personal belief is that the way to popularize capitalism is to make capitalists in some degree out of the largest possible number of our people," says Senator Vandenberg.

And at first glance he seems to have something there.

But being a capitalist, to hear the capitalist tell it, is such drug-dry. So unappreciated, too.

Besides, with everybody capitalists, who'd there be to blame for the way capitalism is working, or isn't it?

ATTENDED THE ANNUAL CARRICK CAMP MEETINGS FOR 70 YEARS—ENJOY YEAR OF HER LIFE

When the British Government commenced the construction of the Uganda Railway in 1896 at Tesero (Kenya), it was halted by the depredations of two lions who carried off 133 laborers in nine months. The construction was not resumed until J. H. Patterson of England slew the man-eaters, but in the meantime the Prime Minister of England acknowledged in Parliament that two lions were powerful enough to halt the construction of a British railway.

TRAILER GIRL

While the Car Is Repaired Rene Accepts a Job Painting a Garage—Funds Are Very Low.

CHAPTER FIVE

LYNN, standing at the door of the trailer, heard the farmer's offer of hospitality. "Oh! It had never occurred to Lynn that she and Rene might have to explain their unconventional but highly proper situation. She stood there, her hands clasped together, and watched the cars move away. Then she forced herself to prepare supper. For Rene would be hungry when he came back. As she was lighting the stove, Mrs. Lovell, the farmer's wife, walked down through the barnyard and knocked at the door. Lynn could do nothing but ask her inside. If they could leave tonight, it would not matter. But if they stayed on? Lynn tried to be polite, and she was quite overcome when Mrs. Lovell put the white pitcher she was carrying on the table.

"I thought you folks might like some fresh milk. And here are a couple of pieces of apple pie. There's just you and your husband."

"Yes," Lynn managed the word. "We've talked of buying a trailer. Do you like yours? How much does one like this cost?"

Lynn struggled now. She managed a vague reply.

"Mr. Boucher can tell you all the details. I'm not quite sure. It was a second-hand one when he bought it." Rene had told her that much. Mrs. Lovell, frankly admiring Lynn, settled herself for a stay.

"It seems too bad to leave Florida now when the winter's only half over."

"Yes, Mr. Boucher's business brought him back."

"What did you say his business was?"

"He's a painter. He can keep things up around the trailer. Now when Melvin tries to paint he makes such a mess of everything."

Lynn did not go into details about what kind of painter Rene was. In desperation she offered to make Mrs. Lovell a cup of tea.

While the water was boiling, Lynn showed Mrs. Lovell all the trick gadgets. The apparatus for holding pans on the stove when the trailer was moving, the clothes closets, the radio, the stove. Lynn even showed her how theunks made up.

"You folks must be just married," Lynn murmured something and she blushed violently.

"Now, I won't tell a soul. I know how sensitive you honeymooners are."

Would Rene never come? Lynn served the tea, found some biscuits to go with it, and Mrs. Lovell chatted on. Lynn was about at the end of her rope when Mrs. Lovell heard a car drive in.

"That must be the men-folks," she got up, and both she and Lynn went outside.

Lynn knew from Rene's face that there was something seriously wrong with the car.

"I'm afraid we'll be tied up for a about everything is wrong with it. The last guy who tinkered with it certainly fixed it! The bill is going to be plenty."

"How much?"

"At least $40. That will take all our cash."

"Oh, Rene!"

"Now don't worry. The old boy said he'd give me $5 if I'd paint the garage two coats. I can do it in two days."

"But, Rene—"

"I know what you don't like. Besides, I've done a lot of painting for folks. We're going to drive in after supper and get the stuff. I want to start first thing in the morning."

"Do you think we can scrape enough together to get back to New York?"

"We'll manage somehow."

"Rene!" Lynn did not know how to begin.

"I know what you're going to say. Yes, he thought we were married, and I let him think so. I never dreamed we'd be stuck here. There was nothing else to do, Lynn. They'd never understand."

"I don't suppose anybody else would, either."

"Of course, they would, if they knew you."

"You'll have to be Mrs. Boucher until we can get out of here. What about supper?"

Rene's visit to town that night was not reassuring. He stopped off at the garage and found his car strewn about the floor, the worn parts in a heap. His report to Lynn was gloomy.

"I've got $40. It will be more than that, I'm afraid. We have got to have a little something to get the rest of the way. If we have any more bad luck we'd be sunk."

"Why shouldn't I send a letter air mail to Mrs. Warren's attorney? He would send me my check."

"Maybe we better do that, just to be on the safe side. It could come general delivery here."

So Lynn set down promptly and wrote to Charles Mortimer asking for her check by air mail immediately.

"Maybe I should tell him to wire it? What do you think?"

"It will cost money to do that, but maybe it is better than being stranded."

So that is the way it was left. Mortimer was to wire the money to Lynn to the Western Union office in Lu Lu, the nearest town.

Bright and early the next morning Rene was up and at his painting. Lynn waited until the hired man was going to town and sent her letter in by him to be mailed. And there was nothing to do but for the two young people to hope for the money Mrs. Lovell came to call on her in the morning.

"Why don't you folks come up to the house and eat with us? It will save you money, and my husband tells me you are a little hard up. You can help me with the work."

Obediently Lynn went up to the house and ate with the Bouchers. That morning she helped Mrs. Lovell clean an upstairs bedroom. Mrs. Lovell gave her a couple of cotton dresses, for which Lynn was grateful, and she wore one of them to the dinner table.

Of course, there was the dreaded conversation always. Lynn finally told Mrs. Lovell clean and up-to-date how she and Rene had been married in Florida. That seemed simplest. It never occurred to Lynn that the woman might wonder how she got down South for her wedding.

"How did things go? I'm sorry I let you in for all this."

"I'm all right, just tired," she said as she brushed her teeth, hunted up Rene's pajamas and fell into her bunk. She sighed. Rene was so inept at housekeeping. The bunk was lumpy, the sheets no lucked in, but she knew if she remade it he would hear her and that his feelings would be hurt.

"Did Mr. Lovell ask you where we were married today?" Lynn called.

"Lord, did she ask you, too?"

"I said Florida," Rene groaned. "I'm a fool."

"I should have told her I didn't remember," and Lynn began to laugh hysterically.

"Let them think what they want to!" Rene called back. "Forget it! At that very hour back in Palm Beach two young men were sitting on the veranda of the Beach and Tennis Club talking about Lynn. 'Wouldn't you think she'd have demanding McNair.

Austin laughed and threw away a cigarette. "You're an incurable romanticist," he said. "I'll bet you $500 Mortimer's never heard of her or her mysterious Mrs. Warren."

"But Wild! I was right there when she got that note, I tell you!"

"Did you go into the office with her? How do you know what happened in there? You're a nice 'pick-up' my fine fellow!"

McNair glared at Wild through the darkness. "She was a good kid!"

"Of course!"

"I mean it! Know what I think? I think you've got her hidden away some place. You've been mighty busy lately. If I thought you'd double crossed me, Wild, I'd crown

"The young woman walked out of my mother's house like the end of Act II which was just about what it was."

"I don't believe it!"

"All right, that $500 stands. We'll telephone Mortimer in the morning to prove my point," Austin said. "But I want to be on hand when you talk to him!"

"It's a go. Let me see the check!"

"All right, we'll get somebody to hold the money."

McNair and Austin went inside the club and wrote out their checks. They found Tim Morley there and he agreed to hold them.

"You're a nasty mind, Wild! McNair said petulantly.

"How you can suspect a lovely creature like that—"

"You talk like a college boy, Terry!"

"Don't you think she was beautiful? I think she was the loveliest thing I ever saw!"

"She was pretty enough—"

Wild struggled to keep his voice level. "Probably she's from Hollywood. She'd do well out there. Next time we hear of her it will be something like that."

Terry slumped in a chair and thrust his hands into his pockets. "Lord, I hate to think of her being hungry and having to scrub for a living!"

"Don't worry about that, my boy. That girl will never have to worry about making a living. There will always be somebody anxious to buy her dinner—or sables, whichever she prefers."

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Dec. 9.—Premier

"It is only when a country strong that it can rise to pre anyone touching its territory, declared as he faced the cha to defend the decrees by whic has been ruling the nation.

He spoke against a backlog of Italian clamor for French possessions in Africa and the Mediterranean, clashes of French and Italian colonists in Tunisia and bitter position at home to his labor economic policies.

His declaration was taken as a simplified warning that Italy was waiting for the right moment to try to partition France's empire. In his 50-minute speech Daladier defended his decree laws, the drastic measures he took to break the general strike and demanded a mandate.

Indications were the Chamber would give him a majority, probably in a vote tonight.

To Fight if Necessary.
Earlier today sources close to De Gaulle said that France would fight, if necessary to defend itself.

The same sources said that the military chances of attacking and seizing Tunisia from Libya or the sea were "zero."

They viewed the Italian camp for the French protectorate simply as a "propaganda advantage" for other and more tangible demands concerning the rights of Italians living in Tunisia. French military sources were scornful of Italy's chances of regaining Tunisia.

Tunisia's Fortifications.
They pointed out that Tunisia had been the eastern outpost of France since 1883 and, as such, had been well protected.

A line of fortifications, modeled after France's famed Maginot line, covers the flat approaches to the city from the sea coast to the desert plateau. Beyond the "African Maginot line," South
